Farmers endorse Thornburgh

BY SHEILA MILLER

ELIZABETHTOWN — "What's that button you're wearing?"

Answering that question, dairyman Charles Benner of Mount Pleasant Mills, Snyder County, proudly stuck out his chest to permit a better view of a bright yellow tractor with farmer on board, surrounded by the words "Farmers for Thornburgh."

Benner, who co-chairs the Farmers for Thornburgh-Scranton committee, wasn't the only one wearing the eye-catching pin on Thursday afternoon. At least 50 other farmers were sporting these political buttons as they shared stories about the crops, cows, and other topics while waiting for the governor to make his appearance at Bob and Mim Kauffman's farm.

The Kauffmans, renowned throughout Lancaster County and the state for their top-of-the-line Holsteins, hosted the committee's first public press conference at their 220-acre farm. According to Mim, this is the first time a governor has visited their farm during the 20 years they lived there.

When asked if she did anything special to prepare for the governor's arrival, Mim said, "We swept up a little more than usual and we got the lawn mowed earlier." The little extras that require special efforts on a farm where spare time is the exception and not the rule were all for a man the Kauffmans say is "doing a good job" for farmers.

On schedule, the governor's car rolled dustily down the graveled road leading to the Kauffmans' immaculate homestead. After a few words with the assembled farmers, the usual handshakes, and a wolfed-down sandwich, Thornburgh was ready to meet the press, taking his position next to dairyman Benner. The two men and other key supporters posed in front of a white-washed wooden gate as young Holstein heifers curiously peeked around the boards while munching on a strategically placed bale of alfalfa hay.

Expressing the committee's sentiments, Benner said farmers are happy with the job Dick Thornburgh has been doing over the past four years. "We want to keep a man like this in Harrisburg," he stated.

Benner and his fellow farmers applauded Thornburgh's legislative efforts in preserving the family farm and his support of agriculture and agribusiness. The 30 farm bills that were signed into law during Thornburgh's four-year administration were offered as proof of this politician's concern for agriculture.

With an ear-to-ear smile, the governor accepted the farmers'

A & B trims salaries; Hatfield expanding

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — The volatile, ever-changing meat packing industry in Pennsylvania shifted again in the past week or so with one company cutting wages to combat current economics and another proceeding with the final stages of expansion that will significantly increase its capacity.

In Allentown, the A and B Meat Packing Company put into effect an approximate 15 percent cut in wages, which will continue during the remainder of the year.

And, Hatfield Packing Company, which is a full-line packer and manufactures meat products, expects to complete expansion of its cut floor and kill floor in the fall, bringing slaughter capacity to 3500 - 4000 hogs a day.

The A and B wage cut went into effect on June 27, following approval by employees belonging to the Meat Packers and Teamsters unions at the company.

The decision to trim wages, which amounts to a $1.50 an hour cut for the union employees, is due to the present status of the economy, according to Lorin Hoffman, executive vice president of A and B.

The reduction cuts the unionized base rate from $9.57 to $8.07 an hour.

"By tightening up during these harder times, we plan to come back in the better times," Hoffman said.

The A and B wage cut program includes plans for reinstating the original wage level on January 1 and then repaying the lost income to employees, plus interest, over an 18-month period.

The lost wages, plus 10 percent interest, are to be repaid to employees in three installments six months apart in June and December, 1983, and January, 1984.

Hoffman also reports that the customary seasonal summer dropoff in pork demand from the New York market is greater than normal this year, causing a larger than usual reduction in the A and B slaughtering schedule recently.

As a slaughtering firm, A and B primarily provides dressed hog carcasses to the New York area.

"In the past, our summer slaughter had dropped off to about 2600 to 2700 head a day," Hoffman said.

"Now, we're ranging from 2000 to 2500 a day."

During the fall and winter, A and B had been processing up to 3500 hogs a day.

"The New York market is tighter," he explained.

"There has been reaction to the higher hog prices and their effect on retail levels and they tell us that the cut-outs just aren't good at this time."

At Hatfield Packing Company, the present slaughter schedule numbers 2250 to 2300 hogs a day, which is about 5 or 6 percent above last year, according to Jerry Clemens, of the buying department.

"The expansion of the cut floor and the kill floor, which is due to be completed in September or October, will increase our capacity to 3500 to 4000 a day," Clemens said.

"We won't be going to that number right away. It all depends on the economy and how the products are selling at that time."

Growth at Hatfield has been averaging about 10 to 12 percent a year, according to Clemens.

Last year, the overall state meat packing situation changed considerably with the cessation of operations by Penn Packing of Philadelphia, which had been processing some 5500 to 6000 hogs a day.

In the interim, Porkland Industries, Inc., of Riverside, N.J., opened a hog slaughtering facility in the Ezra Martin facilities along the Old Philadelphia Pike in Lancaster.

The slaughter is averaging about 1200 head a day, according to Tony Bonaccurso, plant manager.

The carcasses are then shipped to the Porkland fabricating plant in Riverside, N.J.

Conestoga cleanup moves ahead

LANCASTER — After the first year of sign-ups by farmers in the northeastern section of Lancaster County, the federally funded, cost sharing program for the cleanup of the headwaters of the Conestoga River is moving head about on schedule.

Thus far, $175,000 in federal funds have been committed out of the total $1.4 million in federal funds available for water quality improvement contracts.

"This means that about 12 percent of the funds available for actual contracts have been committed in the first year of the 10-year project," Ray Brubaker, of the Lancaster Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office, said.

"That would put us just about on schedule over the full term of the project."

To date, 18 water quality plans have been developed and approved by the county committee for contracts on a cost-sharing basis.

Of these plans, the first year of eight contracts have been paid.

Thus far, a total of 48 applications are on file at the ASCS Office to participate in the program.

Based on the average cost of approved plans during the first year of the program, it would appear that approximately 150 farms can be aided in the project to install improved management practices to reduce agricultural pollution in the Upper Conestoga.

With a total of $175,000 committed during the first year to the 18 approved plans, the average federal share per farm is running about $9,700. Thus, some 150 farms can be included in the project with total federal contract funds of $1,448,000 available.

Some 400 farms are included in the critical areas of the project. Critical areas have been defined as those near small tributaries, those with animal density of more than 1.5 units per acre and farms using high rates of commercial nutrients or pesticides.

Federal cost-sharing funds are designed to cover 50 to 75 percent of the cost of installing improved pollution control practices and facilities, with a maximum limit of $50,000 per farm over the 10-year life span of the project.

Pennfield's New Baby Pig Feed Will Maximize Your Gains!

Pigs weaned at three weeks of age need special care and nutrition to minimize the stress of early weaning. That's why Pennfield developed 603 Pig Power, formulated for better digestibility, palatability and nutrition. It is composed of selected, highly refined ingredients that minimize the stress of going from a whole milk diet to a dry feed.

Pig Power produces excellent gains, superior feed conversion, and more uniform pigs, and produces a better skin color and hair color.

We thoroughly tested our new feed in the field. Take a look at the outstanding results. →

At Pennfield, we can show you the way to increase your productivity and achieve peak performance. Ask your Pennfield representative or call today for more information on Pennfield's swine feeding program.

PIGS WEANED

According to the USDA, the average number of pigs weaned per litter has not improved over the past 25 years. DEKALB's genetic research program selects for female lines that farrow and wean large litters.

Cummulative 12-month 1980 records on several customers farms indicate that DEKALB females are second to none. 9,045 litters from DEKALB hybrid sows bred to DEKALB hybrid boars on these farms averaged 9.22 pigs weaned per litter — over two pigs per litter better than the national average.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

JULY 12-18, 1982

Here's wishin' you've gone fishin'.

Blueberry picking time now . . . "Wrong Way" Corrigan left New York for California, arrived in Ireland instead July 17, 1938 . . . Last quarter of the moon July 13 (Tues.) . . Average length of days for the week, 14 hours, 58 minutes . . . Democrats nominated Jimmy Carter for president July 14, 1976 . The girl who can't dance says the band can't play.

Ask the Old Farmer: I have a map of Windham, Conn., from the 1850s which shows many buildings with the letters "T.H." instead of the owner's name. Do you know what the initials stand for? D.M., Litchfield, Conn.

Probably "Taxed House" to indicate a private residence. Some dwellings, such as a parsonage, were not taxed.

Home Hints: When making peanut butter cookies use a meat pounder instead of a fork for the design Dip the pounder in flour and press down on the round ball of dough

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Partly cloudy and cool, showers north to start; followed by some clouds, cool temperatures.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Week is sunny, cool, and pleasant.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Clearing and cooler through midweek; rest of week is cool and cloudy, with rain south.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Clear skies begin week; midweek is hot; cool, with heavy rain, for weekend.

Finding a substitute for food, farmers

I couldn't believe my eyes for the second time this year as I flipped through the news releases sent to us by the Penn State Extension Service. The first time I was aghast at the reading material they sent out was about five months ago. And it was quite a shock to me, since they're usually an excellent source of health, farm and food information.

At that time and against my better judgement, I decided to overlook their grand faux pas in hopes that it was merely a freak blunder, and the embarassed writer would never make the same mistake twice.

Instead of being red-faced however, it's now apparent the staff writer is unappalled and ready to repeat the previous act of indiscretion by churning out more anti-meat, anti-milk stories.

Although I was irritated by their February release entitled "Try Meat Substitutes for a Change of Pace" in which the Extension writer typed out reasons why stand-ins for meats are both economical and nutritious, plus a list of "hearty, inexpensive meatless dishes," I was furious when I read a release sent out the last day of June Dairy Month which outlined how consumers can "cut their milk bills."

Amazing, isn't it? Last month Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell announced farmers turned down a program to educate consumers on the benefits of drinking more milk, and at the same time Penn State was preparing a story to educate consumers on how to pare down milk bills.

Written to be used as a public service announcement on the radio, the release advised parents not to deny their kids the "nutrition packed food" — milk — but to keep the budget balanced by purchasing nonfat dry milk.

Sure, you might say, milk's milk. Whether they drink it after it's been dried or straight from the pasteurizer, it doesn't matter as long as they gulp it down by the gallons.

But pushing dry milk consumption now doesn't help dairy farmers move their fluid milk into the marketplace instead of federal warehouses as production continues high after a record spring flush. Isn't it more economical to all concerned for consumers to buy the product that requires the least processing? So why push a product that costs more to take out the water when the consumer will just put it back later?

If any radio stations do use the news release, it's doubtful whether there will be a run on dry milk at the local grocery store. Why? Because consumers will remember that nonfat dry milk "may cause noses to wrinkle, if you remember the dry milk of old with its cooked flavor and undissolved particles."

Ugh. Who wants to take a swallow of milk after hearing that? Even though the release does go on to disclaim the old dry milk reputation, bringing up bad memories is one sure-fired way to kill a sale of dry milk — and it could also have a ricochet-affect on other milk sales quite inadvertently.

Why does Extension feel it's necessary to advocate substituting and cutting corners in any food department — meat, dairy, grains, fruits or vegetables? Better they recommend substitutes for home video games, gas-guzzling cars, extravagant vacations, motor homes, and the other thousands of luxury, non-essential items consumers spend money on every day.

We expect this kind of cheap food propaganda from consumer advocate groups, but not from Extension — the folks who should understand well the serious economic dilemma facing American farmers. Funding for Extension's existence is channeled down through the U.S. Department of Agriculture — the same agency that provides the subsidies and price supports needed to keep farmers in business.

It is apparent the Extension news personnel are taking their cues from their boss, Secretary of Agriculture John Block who just recently led a U.S. delegation to the eighth ministerial meeting of the World Food Council in Acapulco, Mexico. The representatives of the 36-member countries reviewed major international food and hunger issues at the meeting, including greater efforts to overcome hunger through national food strategies.

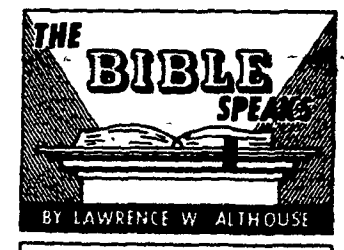
The U.S. national food strategy has always been "cheap at all cost." And so our farm economy continues to slip under the weight of feeding the world's hungry.

Farming is not a charity — at least not based on the amount of taxes farmers pay to support middle-class America's share of the nation's budget deficit. Farmers need to receive full value for their product so that they can recoup their costs. Processors, too, should tack on their costs, and so on down the line. By the time the consumers put food into their basket, the cost of producing these life-sustaining nutrients should be summed. And, you can bet it won't be cheap.

Instead, farmers are forced into "missionary" status and will continue to carry the load of feeding the other 97 percent of the U.S population and the rest of the world until the "burden of bills" overwhelms them.

Until their "dying" day, they will be lured into continuing the struggle to survive by fleeting profits which are quickly stripped away as packers and processors recoil from the sting of paying the farmers a better price, and consume s boycott higher-priced meats, milk, vegetables, and fruit.

Extension radio announcements and news releases are quick to find substitutes for meats and slimmer budgets for milk, when they should be advocating "fatter" budgets for food and farmers. There's just no substitute for them.



YOUR RIGHT TO BE ANGRY
July 11, 1982

Background Scripture:
Acts 6:1 through 8:4.
Devotional Reading:
Philippians 1:19-26.

Stephen had every right to be angry.

He was simply trying to do his job as a follower of Jesus Christ. It was not his intention to become involved in a dispute of any kind. He had been chosen to help in distributing equitably the goods to the whole congregation of Christ's disciples. He also spent much of his time as a teacher of "The Way," as Christianity was called in those days.

But, as so often happens in life, some people, it appears, had taken a disliking to him. For one thing, when they disputed with him about Christ, Stephen always prevailed in his point of view. The writer of Acts tells us: "they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit with which he spoke." Worst of all, as they saw it, this upstart was a Greek. Where did he get all his authority to teach the Gospel?

They Secretly Instigated Men

So, they determined to get him out of their hair. Having failed to best him to his face, they chose to plot behind his back, starting rumors that eventually would finish him. If the plot sounds somewhat familiar, it is just because so much of the affairs of life are conducted on that same level. They did not like him and they were determined to "get" him. Who could blame Stephen if he had been bitter or even outraged? After all, it hadn't been the first time he had been insulted. Even when he had been chosen for special work in the Christian community, there were some impression that the Apostles considered the work he was to perform as beneath them: "It is not right that we should give up preaching the word of God to serve tables."

How should Stephen react to all of this? You and I might counsel him to get back at his enemies in some way, to try to embarrass them or start a rumor campaign about them. Somehow, Stephen needs to find a way to get even.

Brethren, Hear Me

But Stephen wasn't looking to get "even" with his enemies. Instead of hitting back at them, he realized that, if he was to be faithful to Christ, he would have to rise above vindictiveness. Although he had every right to "blast" his critics and turn the tables on them, he chose to win them over instead of subjecting them to defeat.

It was a worthy goal, but it didn't seem to work. After teaching and appealing to their consciences, he found that it was all in vain. They didn't want to understand him, and they were doing all in their power to make sure that there would be no meeting of minds.

At this moment, Stephen, I believe, could have gone either way. He might easily have denounced them for their hardness of hearts and pronounced a scathing judgement upon them. Instead, Stephen decided there was only one way to cope with their hatred against him: he would bless them, just as Jesus had done when men had done their worst to him. "Lord, do not hold this sin against them."

To Be Aware of Summer Water Needs of Poultry

We know that hot weather increases the water consumption in our systems; well laying hens need a good water and nutrient supply during hot summer months also. It's important to keep hens as cool as conditions permit during hot weather. Furnish plenty of cool, high quality water and expect the hens to spend more time drinking and less time eating.

Make a special effort to avoid stressing or exciting your chickens in hot weather and provide good ventilation with all fans clean and running properly.

Keep in mind that chickens have no sweat glands, but cool themselves through respiration from their combs and wattles. Birds cannot stand continuous high temperatures and high humidity. Let's do all we can to keep the birds comfortable during hot weather.

Mow it, bag it. One-step lawn care with John Deere Lawn Tractors

Take care of your mowing and bagging chores in one operation with a John Deere lawn tractor and optional 6½ bushel rear bagger.

John Deere lawn tractors are available in four models — the 8-hp 108 with 30-inch mower; the 11-hp 111 and 111H Hydrostatic with 38-inch mower; and the 16-hp 116 with 38- or 46-inch mower. All feature color-coded controls and roomy operator's area.

A new two-hamper, rear-mounted bagger holds 62 percent more than the former one-hamper type. It has two 3¼-bushel hampers that can be lined with trash bags for quick disposal. It fits on the 68 Rider and John Deere lawn tractors with 30- or 38-inch mowers.

Stop in. We'll show you a John Deere lawn tractor and new rear bagger — a combination that can't be beat.

sidering using this new grain in their feeding program. The feeding of new grains to livestock is possible under very careful management. If fed in too large amounts, digestive disorders such as bloating and scouring may occur. We suggest that the grain be allowed to go through a two-week curing period before being fed. Then it should be included into the grain ration at a slow rate - 10 to 20 percent.

Barley is a very popular livestock feed and is a good substitute for corn. In a few weeks wheat will be ready and may also be fed with care. Again, it should be allowed several weeks to cure before feeding. Wheat is not used as much for feeding purposes because of the greater danger of digestive problems. Smaller amounts in the ration, compared to barley, are suggested. Barley and wheat can be used as livestock feeds, but need special care when mixing in livestock rations.

To Prepare For Fire Protection

Our barns are filling up with new crops of hay, straw and grain so we need to be concerned with fire protection. We urge farmers to give some thought to water supplies for fighting fires. Many farmers indicate that their fire company would be unable to supply adequate water; this increases the risk of serious fire losses. Farms with streams nearby should have plans developed to move the fire engine within 25 feet of the water. Owners of farm ponds should have all-weather driveways to the pond. There have been cases where buildings burned while the fire truck was mired down in the mud trying to get to the pond. It's a good idea to inform your local fire company of the source of water supplies for fighting fires. A good water supply for fighting fires is good insurance against severe losses.

To Use Caution When Shipping Hogs

Far too many hogs are fed up to market weight each year only to be lost because of careless hauling during hot weather.

There are ways to prevent these losses. Whenever it's possible, haul these hogs to market early or late in the day - when it's coolest. Avoid mid-day or early afternoon trips. That's when temperatures are worst.

While the hogs are being loaded onto the trucks, take things easy. Don't hurry them. If you do, they'll just become overheated. And, to make sure they can be comfortable in the truck, use wet sand for bedding. Don't use straw - or other materials that hold heat and fail to help cool the animals.

Once the animals are loaded, start right then for the market - and go directly to the market without stopping.

Take these few precautions and you'll market all your hogs instead of just some of them.

appreciative of the article's educational value. New farmers are very ignorant of the health problems and I am sure that you have many readers who would benefit from the article.

Somehow the animal-sex angle is quite remote from our thoughts when tending our herd and flock. I am quite surprised a farmer would apply such services to his personal life (Readers Write, June 26 issue).

We are only concerned for the wellbeing of the animals and the sex angle doesn't crop up. From my fairly wide experience with young people who work with animals that are pregnant or open, I find they are practical-minded and healthy about such matters — not at all prurient in their thoughts.

Also, concerning the (supposed) cancer link with meat and dairy products, I knew two vegetarian women who died of cancer.

Just beginning

I am taking this opportunity to express my appreciation for printing the article about the Cumberland couple beginning in the dairy business.

The reason I appreciate this and such articles is that we are also young beginners in this business on a similar scale. We knew exactly what the Hairs were talking about of their problems and anxieties.

It was a pleasant change reading their story when we are used to reading success stories of accomplishments made by large farmers. Big new expensive, modern milking parlor, high head averages, and high test seem to be all that is published at times.

Then in the same issue we read articles urging farmers to cut production which is rather frustrating to us.

We are sure that the people with big new barns, high test and milk herds are proud of their accomplishments but it gives us encouragment to know we are not the only small beginners.

We wish success to the Hairs and all other young farmers that are starting from the bottom.

PASTURE NUTRIENT BALANCER

As you know good pasture provides an excellent source of protein during the spring and summer months. In fact, lush green pasture may be as rich in protein, on a dry basis, as corn gluten feed or brewers' dried grain. Occasionally, some persons become so enthusiastic about the nutritive merits of pasture that they conclude it is fully the equivalent of a protein-rich concentrate. This is a considerable exaggeration.

In two important respects the best of pasture differs decidedly from a high-grade concentrate ration. This is in the percentage of fiber (fiber is undigestable and has no feed value) and consequently in the TDN or net energy. Lush pasture will usually contain 18 to 20 percent fiber compared to approximately two percent fiber in ground corn (when both are dried to the same dry matter content.)[1] Since it is impossible to balance rations for grazing animals, energy, vitamins and minerals should always be made available. To insure that the animals nutrient requirements are met during these upcoming months, we recommend that you consider MOPRO 16% Liquid Protein fed free choice.

MOPRO 16% Liquid Protein is a High Energy Feed which has been specifically designed to economically carry more cattle per acre while increasing gains on pasture without grain. Our stable guaranteed vitamin and mineral package has proven helpful in the prevention of pinkeye, thrush, and ringworm while improving general herd health and conception rates. Good pasture along with MOPRO 16% Liquid Protein supplies the most economical feeding program for grazing animals during the growing season.

Bred heifer tops Ayrshire Firecracker sale

CARLISLE — Buyers from New York, New Jersey, Virginia and Georgia turned out, Wednesday for the annual Firecracker Ayrshire sale at the Carlisle Fairgrounds.

Masonic Homes F.F. Lou topped the sale at $1,530. Consigned by Masonic Homes of Elizabethtown, the bred heifer was purchased by Dean E. Varner of Shirleysburg.

The heifer is sired by Oak Ridge Flashy Fortune and out of a high producing Mar-Ral Hi Kick daughter with records to 15,248 pounds of milk and 633 pounds of fat.

The annual sale, sponsored by the Central and Southeastern Pa. Ayrshire clubs grossed $20,480 and averaged $853.33 on 24 head.

William Yoder of Montezuma, Georgia paid $1,500 for a fresh 3-year-old, the second high-selling animal. Benayr Peter Puff, consigned by Donald Benson, of Mt. Crawford, Virginia is sired by Peterbarb Harold out of Benayr April Love.

Yoder also paid $1,000 for a bred heifer consigned by Sam Diehl of Bedford. Mine Choag Liberty Bell is sired by Granbyenne Royal Command. She is due in September to Cove Creek Madge's Boy.

Another fresh cow, consigned by Daryl and Doris Martin of Bethel brought the third high price of $1,310. Tower View Kelly's Rhonda, a 5-year-old, was purchased by Robert and Sharon Nolan of Cochranville. The Very Good Oak Ridge Flashy Kellogg daughter has records to 10,468 pounds of milk and test of 4.9 percent butterfat.

Leroy Bittner of Myersdale, took home a fresh 4-year-old for $1,075. Consigned by Peach Bottom breeder Karen Schmuck, Pine Lane Choice Bonnie is sired by Conholm Commander Jack's Choice and out of a Very Good Mar-Ral Commander's Pride with records to 14,651 pounds of milk and 584 of fat.

Maryland breeder Phillip Minor of McHenry purchased a fancy bred heifer, Toll Gate Ayr Choice Lady, for $1,010. Bred to an Oak Ridge Commander's Star son, the heifer was consigned by Dwight and Katherine Hunter of West Alexander.

In addition to cattle, the Ayrshire clubs offered a variety of show equipment which included blankets, halters, tack box, brushes and combs. Semen from eight plus PD bulls was also auctioned.

Future Ayrshire events include the Pa. Ayrshire Field Day at Penn State on Saturday July 17 and the Keystone Classic Ayrshire Sale at the Guernsey Barn in Lancaster on August 26.

Timely harvest, fertility are keys to alfalfa

LANCASTER — The key to maximizing an investment in alfalfa is good management through timely harvest and fertility maintenance.

The timing of alfalfa harvest, when the weather permits, is critical to achieve the proper balance between highest yield and highest quality. Maximum yields per cutting generally occur near the full bloom stage. Highest quality, however, is reached at a more immature stage, pre-bud.

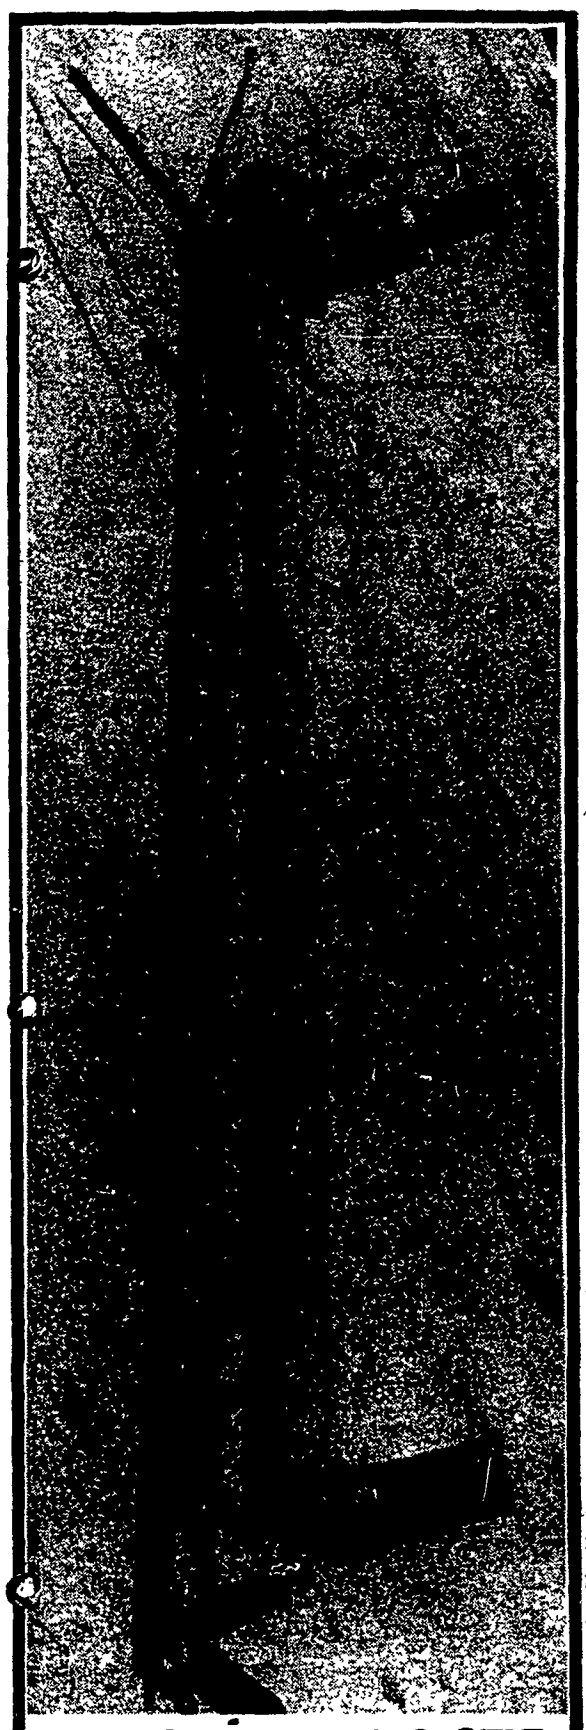
When deciding on a harvest schedule, most growers should compromise between highest yield and highest quality. Regardless of the time chosen, storage cannot improve forage quality. To produce high quality livestock feed, harvest must occur when quality is high. On the other hand, cutting alfalfa continuously at the pre-bud stage can weaken and reduce stands, especially in northern areas.

Using a method, or combination of methods, that permits harvest to be completed rapidly is essential to avoid quality and yield loss. In addition, rapid harvest lessens the risk of quality decline due to inclement weather.

Harvesting early, may help conserve soil moisture. Good soil moisture after the first cutting hastens recovery and can make a difference in the second cutting's yield. Also, if recovery of the second cutting is delayed, the second harvest date probably also will be delayed. If delayed too long, there may not be sufficient time or moisture for third or fourth cutting's, reducing total yield for the year.

Every time alfalfa is harvested some of the soil's nutrients are removed. Keeping soil fertility at adequate levels helps alfalfa produce to maximum capacity. One ton of alfalfa hay removes about 60 pounds of potash, 15 pounds of phosphate and 50 pounds of nitrogen. In alfalfa culture, the elements of greatest concern to the grower should be the potash and phosphate since alfalfa, a legume, works symbiotically with certain bacteria to fix its own nitrogen from the atmosphere.

If adequate potash is not present in the field, alfalfa stands quickly degenerate to weeds and grasses. This phenomenon is even more prone to occur in alfalfa-grass mixtures, because grasses can outcompete alfalfa for potash. Alfalfa uses phosphate to a lesser degree than it does potash, but phosphate is equally vital. Phosphate plays a key role in photosnythesis, carbohydrate and protein synthesis, cell division and other processes.



HERE'S THE FILL & STIR PIPE FOR YOUR LIQUID MANURE TANK

Whenever you fill an above-ground liquid manure storage tank you worry if you will ever be able to get it empty again. Will the solids settle in the bottom to cause an impossible mixing problem? Will your equipment clog? Will you need to add so much water you'll be hauling manure for days?

Now you can relax. Because US Farm Systems of Pennsylvania has just designed a unique fill and stir pipe unit. This fill and stir unit sits vertically in over the top of the tank and you use your present transfer pump. You can transfer/fill the manure under the top crust. And since the top crust is not broken you keep all the plant nutrients in the tank.

When you get ready to haul manure, the mixing capability of this unit really goes to work for you. The top opening with a flexable snout moves up and down and sideways to allow you to discharge a stream of liquid in any direction to break up the top crust. At the same time, you can start a stirring action at the bottom of the tank by forcing liquid out the lower opening of this unit.

So don't worry if you will get the manure out of your above-ground liquid manure tank any more. Write to US Farm Systems of Pennsylvania, 3053 Barren Road, Oxford, PA 19363. Or call today for an action-packed demonstration. Phone: (301) 398-2948.

praises and thanked them for their vocal support in his reelection effort. He equated his feelings for Pennsylvania's agriculture to a "family affair" and related experiences shared by First Lady Ginny and him as they visited farms across the state. He extended this "family" feeling to include the Department of Agriculture secretary, Penrose Hallowell, and staff.

"The family farm is more than just an economic unit," stressed Thornburgh, further defining it as a "quality of life and values that has played an important part in the history of Pennsylvania." He boasted of Pennsylvania's largest rural population and attributed the state's ability to weather current economic storms to its citizens' "toughness and perseverance."

Thornburgh once again confessed to being a "city boy" but was quick to point out he had learned about agriculture from the grass roots level — "from the ground up." Through town meetings he heard what was on the minds of family farmers, he said.

With enthusiasm rising in his voice, Thornburgh proudly proclaimed the state has experienced "four straight years of a balanced budget with no tax increases." Meanwhile, as if not to be drowned out by the political rhetoric, a bass-pitched lowing was heard coming from inside the barn.

"A moo of applause," exclaimed Thornburgh, praising the cow for her good timing and sense, only to learn the vocal accompaniment was the sentiments of a beckoning bull.

For the first time in her 20 years on the Elizabethtown dairy farm, Mim Kauffman had the chance to entertain a governor. Thornburgh quickly wolfed down a sandwich before speaking to nearly 100 farmers, reporters, and other guests.

Undaunted, Thornburgh confessed he is proud of his administration's record in agriculture and expressed his desire to "carry on what we've started."

"We've had an auspicious beginning," he stated, while mentioning his hopes of keeping the "farm partnership" going four more years. During another term he predicted another 30 "pro-farm" bills could be enacted into law.

Areas of concern, he said, include exports, interest rates, and the ultimate lowering of farm costs and raising of farm income.

When queried by an Associated Press reporter about the possibilities of Pennsylvania taking part in a dry milk giveaway program, Thornburgh turned to Hallowell for confirmation that Pennsylvania was not currently in the federal hand-out program. Hallowell said Pennsylvania is not one of the three pilot states

Governor Thornburgh was all smiles after receiving the voiced confidence from some of Pennsylvania farmers including Lancaster County Holstein breeders Bob and Mim Kauffman. Posing for pictures is Penn Spring Elevation Candi Ex-91, a homebred Elevation daughter who recorded more than 25,000 pounds milk, 975 pounds fat, and a 3.8 test. She is out of an Ex-91 Admiral daughter and an Ex-94 Astronaut granddam.

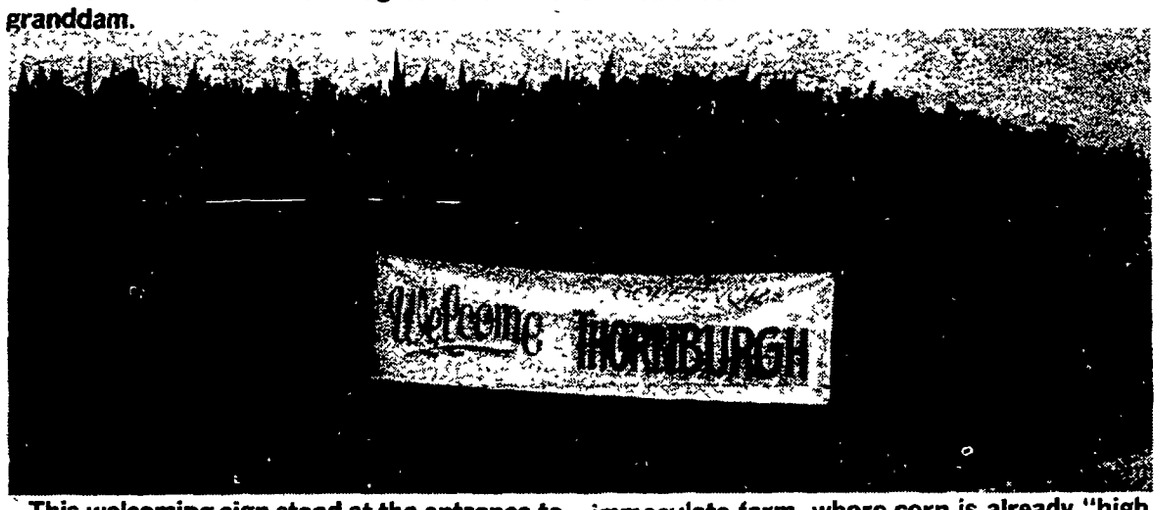
selected for the dry milk program and further expansion will not be announced until later this year.

Thornburgh's reaction to the question, however, was music to the ears of the dairymen in the audience. "We're not interested in a giveaway program for Pennsylvania. What farmers need is to be able to sell their products for a fair price and get a fair return. You don't solve the problems on farms by giving away food.

When asked about the possibilities of Pennsylvania buying farm development rights, Thornburgh said optimistically, "That's something we'll work on next year. We're not working for control in Harrisburg but to keep balance between rural and urban factions in a tension-resolving, positive role."

When asked if Pennsylvania might be facing similar court cases where nonfarm citizens are opposing the state's purchase of development rights for farmland preservation as is occurring in neighboring Maryland, Thornburgh stated, "I don't expect litigations here. Our farmers are self-reliant. They're not looking for handouts."

Lancaster County's Rep. Noah Wenger was on hand for the festivities during Thursday's swelteringly hot press conference. Here he chats with host Bob Kauffman, right. Both sport the "Farmers for Thornburgh" buttons on their pockets.



This welcoming sign stood at the entrance to the Robert and Mim Kauffman farm on Thursday. Governor Thornburgh visited the immaculate farm, where corn is already "high as an elephant's eye" and received the endorsement of farmers for re-election.

On the same note, Thornburgh also predicted the state would not step in to pick up where federal dairy price supports fall short if the "new federalism" passes the buck to individual states. He termed a state price support program for agriculture "a major departure for the state" and "unlikely."

Instead, Thornburgh said the state's agricultural budget will continue to fund research, veterinary and other services — with no cutbacks.

Benner co-chairs the farmers' Thornburgh reelection committee with Nellie Crawford of Port Royal, a dairy farmer and chairman of the State Women's Committee of Pennsylvania Farmers' Association. Benner noted the committee will work with the Thornburgh-Scranton campaign and with the Pennsylvania Ag Republicans. He added the committee's membership is bipartisan and will represent all agricultural sections of the state, as well as all farm commodities.

Adams twi-light meeting features mating guidelines

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

LITTLESTOWN — Adams County Holstein breeders recently received guidelines to help them make their mating selections at a Twi-light Meeting held at the farm of Guy and David Kehr, Kehr Acres, Littlestown. Also included in their information-packed agenda was a slide presentation on herd promotion, plus an opportunity for breeders and friends to sharpen their dairy cattle judging skills.

Featured speaker for the evening was Ron Buffington, sire director for Select Sires. Buffington, who has been with the artificial insemination unit for the past six years, is in charge of product knowledge, bull and daughter pictures, and sire directories.

In discussing mating selections, Buffington demonstrated the linear system to evaluate the cow's traits, matching them to the linear coding of the bull's traits as listed at Select Sires. Other studs have similar linear coding for their bulls. The linear system has been endorsed by every major U.S. dairy breed association.

When choosing a service sire, Buffington explained, "Look for the cow's good traits and appreciate them. Hope that those traits will transfer. Then, list the things that you would ask the sire to do and choose from there."

Noting that a single mating will not correct all the cow's faults, Buffington said, "The trouble with type evaluations is that you can't go for the whole package. Sometimes you have to sacrifice fixing everything, but the correlation of parts is helpful." Buffington explained that breeding to correct one fault may help to correct another fault since, genetically, they seem to correlate. He used the example of bulls that improve stature and also improve pasterns.

Buffington stressed the importance of using good A.I. bulls in the breeders' programs.

He stated, "The most important thing about breeding cattle is to use good bulls, but use them selectively. Don't breed good bulls randomly."

Using good bulls and understanding how to use them is more important than just using high predicted difference bulls or high total performance index bulls. The sire director also stressed that while it is beneficial to know as much as possible about the cow's pedigree, breeders should not become lost in the traits and numbers involved in too many generations back in the pedigree.

When asked whether the genetic base of the breed had become saturated with Elevation blood, Buffington replied, "It happens a lot and it seems that most of the really good animals of the breed have some doubling-up of blood in their pedigrees. We're seeing it happen more and more with Elevation daughters being bred to Elevation sons. A lot more people are going to try it just to see what they get.

We have better animals today and better traits. With the data that we can get today on a greater number of cattle, I think we're writing a new chapter on inbreeding and linebreeding in dairy cattle. It seems that everyone asks for outcross bulls, but then everyone only wants to buy semen from those Elevation sons."

While adjourning from the cow stable to the upper floor of the barn, breeders were given the opportunity to view the Kehr's new 90 stall Rigid-Ply freestall barn and their new manure storage area. Seated on bales on the Kehr's barn floor, breeders viewed a slide presentation by Buffington which featured herd promotion techniques. Buffington stressed that for breeders to take full advantage of their registered Holsteins, they must learn to breed them to good AI bulls, manage them properly, and then do a good job of merchandising and retailing them from the farm.

Ron Buffington, Sire Director for Select Sires, places a heifer class at the Adams County Holstein Breeders Twi-light Meeting held recently at the farm of Guy and David Kehr, Kehr Acres, Littlestown. Buffington was the featured speaker for the event, discussing sire selection and herd promotion.

Buffington noted that there is a tremendous demand for dairy cattle in the South. He predicted that those who know how to retail their cattle, would be the ones who would profit from this demand through increased sales.

Hosting the evening meeting were Guy and David Kerh, a father-son partnership, operating on 159 acres and milking 68 cows. The partnership was formed two years ago. According to Dave, improving their herd average and taking better care of their cows are their present objectives. They are trying to improve their homebred stock, Kehr explained by only using bulls that are plus on type, plus on test and have a PD$ of at least $150.

The next event scheduled for the Adams County breeders is their dairy tour to Lancaster County set for Friday, July 23. The tour will include farm visits and lunch at Groff's Farm Restaurant. The cost is $18 per person which includes the meal plus transportation and disposable boots.

Walker expresses concern over dairy base system

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

EAST PETERSBURG — Would dairy farmers in the Northeast be penalized if a base or quota system is adopted to attempt to solve the surplus milk problem?

This emerged as a major concern of Congressman Bob Walker, of the 16th District, in a five-farm tour on Friday sponsored by the Lancaster County Farmers Association.

First stop on the tour was the Holstein operation of John L. Landis, near East Petersburg, so it was natural that the federal dairy situation should be among the chief topics of discussion.

"The Administration's plan to give the Secretary of Agriculture more discretion in setting price support levels doesn't stand a chance on Capitol Hill," Walker predicted.

"Therefore, there will be alternates considered and the one that seems to have the best chance is the Gunderson Bill, which has the backing of the National Milk Producers Federation.

"My main concern, and I'm trying to determine if it is valid, is whether dairy farmers in the Northeast will be penalized by a base or quota system since some 92 percent of the milk overproduction comes from other sections, like the Midwest and West."

Walker, who fielded questions from about 20 farmers on the first stop, said there are always winners and losers in any program that involves federal formulas.

"I want to make certain that here in the Northeast we don't end up being the losers," he cautioned the interested dairymen.

He explained that by setting up a farm quota based on the average of the past three years of production, the Gunderson plan would freeze into place the overproduction that has largely taken place in the Midwest and West.

Then, when quotas are adjusted to attemt to solve the overproduction, the dairy farmers of the Northeast could be more severely affected.

"The Northeastern dairy far-

Soybean growers get extra help with weeds

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

LANCASTER — First the bad news.

Many farmers shared the frustration of late soybean planting due to wet weather. And for those who planted but couldn't get into the fields with herbicide before the 4 to 5 day post-emergence, came the added frustration of weeds and volunteer corn.

Now the good news.

By the 1983 planting season, farmers may have an over-the-top grass herbicide which can be applied during the post-emergence stage, reports Joe Antognini, manager of Marketing and Development with BASF, Parsippany, New Jersey.

Antognini notes that a post-emergence spray is commercially available but has a limited activity range. Additionally, pre-plant incorporation, conventional herbicide application, says Antognini, uses a great deal of energy and some grasses still manage to appear.

The BASF product, Poast (pronounced "post"), however, is designed to control all perennial and annual grasses, such as Bermuda grass, Quack grass and Johnson grass, Antognini says. The product also is expected to be useful against volunteer corn.

"Volunteer corn is getting to be the number one weed," comments John Yocum, manager of Penn State's Southeastern Research Farm near Landisville. The corn results from kernels or ears which take hold in the soil during a corn-soybean rotation. During its experimental stage, Poast has been used with success on the research farm, Yocum reports.

"With no-till you get the least amount of volunteer corn," Yocum explains. "But with minimum till you can get real, real bad volunteer corn."

Almost inherent in a corn-soybean rotation is the troublesome and costly weed, volunteer corn. But next year, soybean growers may have stronger control for the weed in the form of a post-emergence herbicide.

Harold Musser, left and son Jim, beat the early summer rains and stand knee-deep in the results. The Salunga dairymen planted their full-season beans in mid-May and spent two days hand-pulling volunteer corn, a practice Jim observed while on a trip in Missouri.

If a farmer just chisels and discs, it just preserves the corn. The problem is usually worse following a mild winter.

But a stormy spring and early summer, notes Yocum, could have-shortened the growing season for soybeans planted in May and June.

Extremely wet or cold soil, caused by excessive rainfall, could have retarded the beans' growth, says Yocum. The condition may be seen as a lack of color in some beans because they haven't nodulated.

Dry weather, on the other hand, can work against the farmer, also. Yocum adds that beans will not grow sufficiently under this condition. Additionally, the soybean flowers may weigh down the plant and droop. Consequently, beans tend to get missed during combining.

The effects from wet weather, says Yocum, could be combated by switching to an early maturing variety. Yocum says he doesn't anticipate major problems with this year's soybean crop, providing

NU-PULSE MILKING SYSTEMS

"The Biggest Breakthrough Since Milkers Were Invented"

NU-PULSE OWNERS SINCE May 1981

Father, Leon Hepler (right), his son Jim and grandson Jesse of Pitman, Pa.

"We knew the Nu-Pulse milker was simple to use and the easiest to carry from cow to cow." Nu-Pulse was the lowest cost unit for us to install and operate. Since using the Nu-Pulse milker, we've found the cows' udders have become much softer and more pliable. There are also fewer sore teat ends. Shortly after changing to Nu-Pulse milkers, our S.C.C. dropped to 250,000.

Among our herd of 60 cows with a herd average of 16,000 milk and 550 fat, we have found Nu-Pulse milkers to stand up to everything we were told."

Dutch Country plans annual dairy goat field day

MANHEIM — A Dairy Goat field day will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 17 at Jacob Fisher's Windy Hill Farm, near Manheim. The event is being sponsored by the Dutch Country Dairy Goat Club, and all interested people are invited to attend.

In addition to a tour of Windy Hill Farm, the program will feature demonstrations on dairy goat management. There will be discussions related to milk handling, veterinary concerns, poisonous weeds, and hay quality.

Ample time will be available for questions. Those who attend are invited to bring samples of weeds and plants for verification if they are poisonous or not, plus samples of hay (good and bad). People are also encouraged to bring samples of dairy goat products and recipes for display.

Samuel B. Guss, world reknown dairy goat expert and former Penn State Extension veterinarian, will also be present. In addition to his regular column in the Dairy Goat Journal, Guss has also authored a book on dairy goat management.

We salute you DAIRYMEN

College to use State Farm for instruction

WILLIAMSPORT — Students taking agricultural instruction at the Williamsport Area Community College will begin receiving practical experience this fall with the signing of a cooperative agreement between the college and the Danville State Farm.

the Danville State Farm is operated by the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture. It is the only remaining farm of 10 which had been operated by the state in connection with state hospitals.

The Danville Farm dairy operation houses 120 milkers with a herd average of 18,000 pounds of milk and 720 pounds of fat. Of the 335 acres on the farm, 265 acres are tillable. Primary crops are corn and alfalfa.

Along with the dairy is a milk processing plant and students will be able to participate in its operation.

Robert L. Breuder, college president, said that under the terms of the contract, the school will test the idea for one year. Students will be transported by bus from the Earth Science Campus near Allenwood to the farm at Danville on a regular schedule, Breuder said.

Students will have the opportunity to review the milk and butterfat production of the herd, including individual cows; review and discuss the breeding program; participate and assist in milking, grooming, and care of the herd; assist in calving and care of the newborn: be allowed, under supervision, to operate machinery and assist in planting and harvesting; assist in the processing of milking; assist and participate in the preventive maintenance of farm tractors and equipment.

At the end of the year, the state and College have agreed to evaluate the program and determine future activities. This includes the possibility of the college leasing and managing the farm.

Ceba-Geigy tour features herbicide

MANHEIM — Dual herbicide used in many cropping programs to control weeds in corn was recently cleared for use in potatoes, said Ceba-Geigy representative Jack Beideman.

The herbicide was one of several products on display, Thursday, during Ceba-Giegy's annual Keystone Farm Tour.

According to Beideman, Dual was used in test plots of Katahdin pototoes on the Dan and Dudley Rohrer farm and in plots of Norchips on the Noah Kreider farm.

Dual was also used in test plots of corn and soybeans on the Leroy Espenshade farm. Beideman noted that the farm tour not only displayed Dual's control of nutsedge but its effectiveness agains foxtail, as well.

"Dual and Bicep will also control foxtail longer than some of the other herbicides," Beidemen said.

The all-day tour, said Beideman, included large growers, dealers, custom applicators and county agents from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

The group had a chance to view the progress of Tilt, a fungicide applied to wheat and barley stands, currently in the research stages. According to Ceba-Geigy mers have largely been producing at a level to meet market needs," he said.

Walker

"Quotas would then freeze the Northeast at a level almost equal to what has been sold here.

"If quotas are then cut, perhaps by 10 per cent depending on the surplus, you could have those other over-producers, who have been a greater part of the problem, sending their milk into your market area.

"I don't want penalities for our dairy farmers here who have not been the chief cause of the problem."

Walker compared a possible base or quota milk system to the tobacco quota system.

"And we all know the horror situation we recently went through concerning tobacco quotas and the growing of Maryland tobacco in Lancaster County," he said.

The Congressman said that legislation to correct the county tobacco problem is scheduled to come before the Senate on Wednesday.

An amendment is atteched to the overall tobacco program legislation, which would exempt states from quota restrictions in which 20 acres or less of tobacco are under quota. Pennsylvania has only a 12-acre allotment in the northern part of the state.

The legislation has already passed the House.

"There is no question about the Pennsylvania part of the bill," Walker said, "just as long as the overall legislation is passed."

Farmers also expressed concerns about other problems in agriculture, including exports, grain supports,and high interest rates.

Other stops on the congressman's farm fact-finding tour included the farms of Earl Newcomer, Millersville; Gereald Kreider, Buck; Fred Crider, Little Britain; and Kenneth Meck, Refton.

Ceba-Geigy tour

rep Neal Orr, Tilt was applied to a test field of wheat. While the plot cannot be used for human or animal consumption because the fungicide is still in the research stages, the wheat will be harvested and analyzed for its control of mildew and septoria leaf spots.

For the first time, the tour featured Ceba-Geigy's no-till system for corn. Invited tour-goers also witnessed a bulk pesticide system. Dubbed Farm-Pak, the mini-bulk tank includes a pump and meter. Orr explained the system would be economical for growers with more than 300 acres.

The group had a chance to see Ridomil's blue mold control in tobacco test plots. Visitors were encouraged to rate the condition of all the crops. The group was transported to each farm via pick-up trucks and treated to an ox roast at the Leroy Espenshade farm. — DT

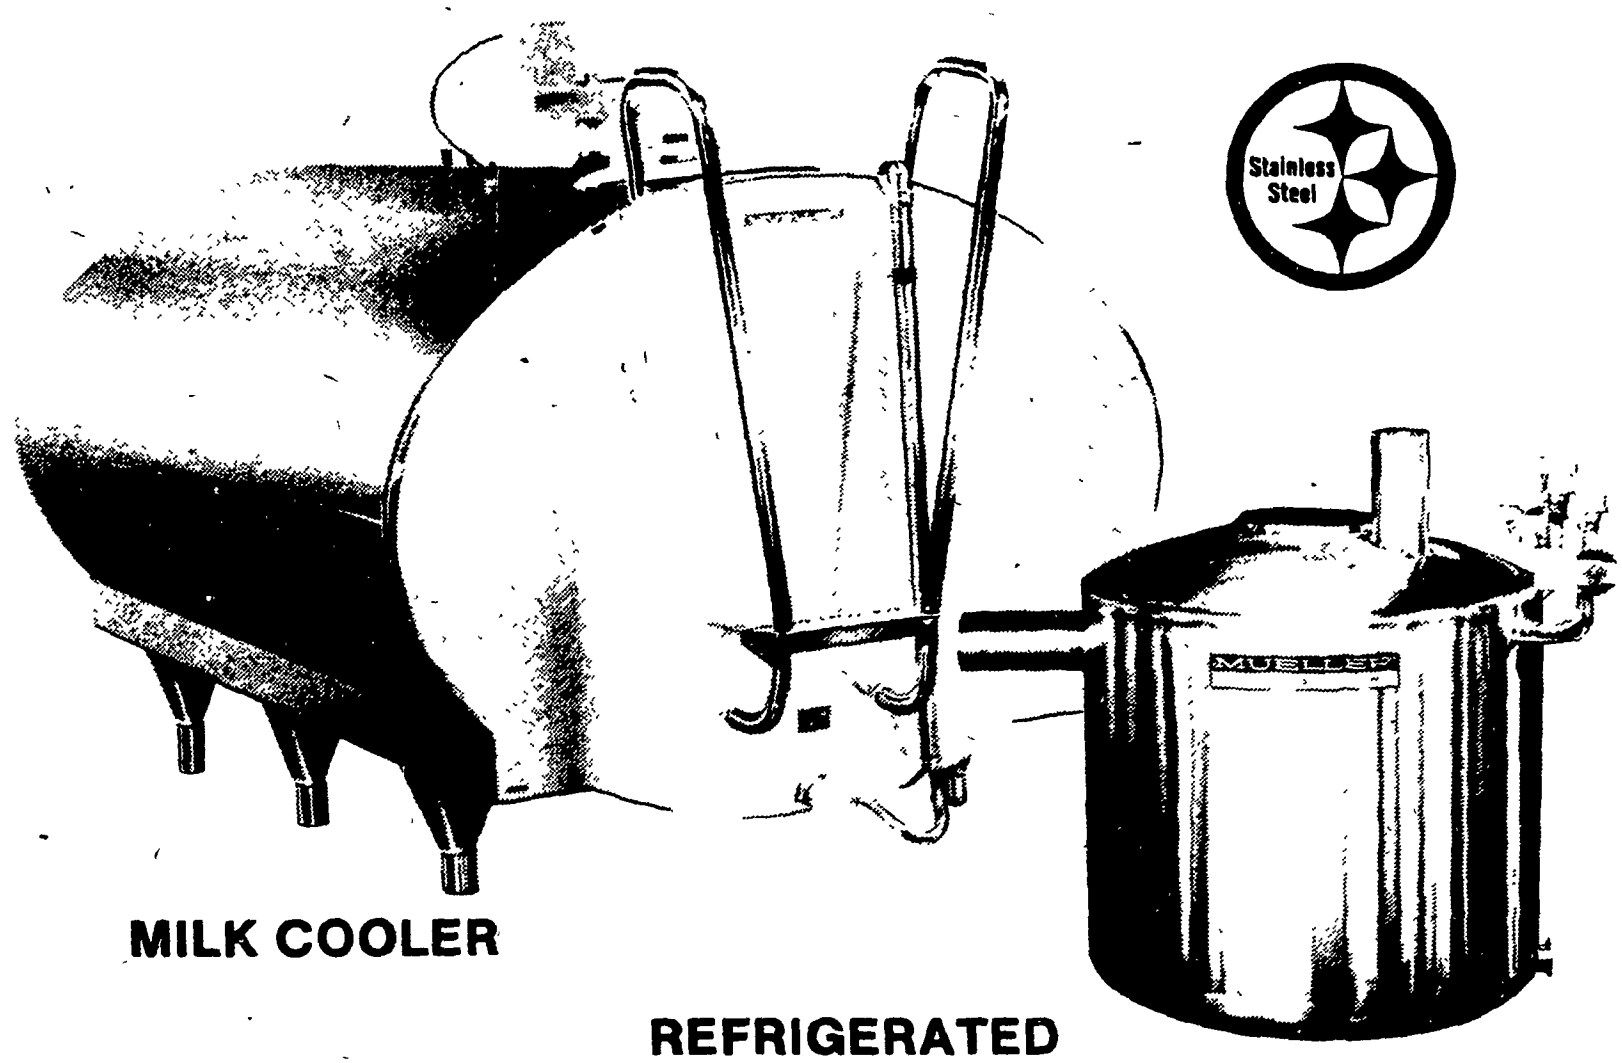
MUELLER'S UNBEATABLE MILK COOLING COMBINATION



MILK COOLER

REFRIGERATED RECEIVER

MUELLER Milk Coolers®

You've known about the reputation of Mueller Milk Coolers for years. You know it's the Number One Cooler selected by dairymen around the world because of its automatic washing system, its efficient temperature control and agitation system, its cooling efficiency, reliability and durability.

MUELLER Refrigerated Receiver

Now Mueller has added something new in milk cooling. The Refrigerated Receiver. Milk travels through the pipeline to the stainless steel Refrigerated Receiver, where it is rapidly cooled to 55° F. or lower. The milk is then pumped to the milk cooler. The Refrigerated Receiver retards bacteria growth and saves money by reducing cooling time while promoting conditions for higher butterfat counts.

New Holland auction sets record

NEW HOLLAND — Area farmers pushed 2,150 cattle through the New Holland Sales Stable, Thursday, making it the largest one-day auction in Lancaster County in 25 years, said USDA spokesman Jim Anderson.

Anderson said a rough estimate of the day's receipts totaled more than $1.6 million as the bidding continued close to midnight.

The farmers turned out to take advantage of rising cattle prices. Last week, New Holland reported prime and choice steer prices at $71 to $74 a hundredweight. On Tuesday, a farmer sold 80 head and took home a check for $76,000, Anderson said. Some steers sold for $75 a hundredweight on Thursday.

Thursday's auction was the largest Anderson had seen in his 18 years with USDA in the county and had surpassed all county auction totals since the USDA began record-keeping 25 years ago.

Soybeans

the weather remains fairly normal.

"But if we have an early frost in September, haridly any beans planted after wheat will make it," he adds.

Harold and Jim Musser of Salunga, have been planting beans for four years and found this year quite normal. According to Jim, the Mussers had their beans in the ground May 11 at a rate of two bushels to the acre. Following the early summer rains, the Mussers walked through their 30 acres of beans and pulled all the volunteer corn.

"It took four people two days," Jim explains.

The Mussers, who operate a registered Holstein dairy, a layer operation and a grain farm, switched from tobacco to soybeans because the beans are cheaper to harvest.

"You just combine and ship them to market," adds Harold. The Mussers also leaned toward the beans because they didn't require as much fertilizer.

Unlike the Mussers, Lebanon dairyman Ivan Burkholder uses the beans for a protein source in his dairy herd. This year, Burkholder beat the rains as he put up 20 acres on June 26 following barley.

"At first we were worried we wouldn't get the barley off," Burkholder comments.

Another Lebanon farmer, John Herr didn't have many weed problems since he sprayed right behind the grain drill. But the rains did present a problem to the grain farmer.

"I just couldn't get in...the fields were too wet," Herr explains. Herr had planned on 40 acres in full-season beans, but after the first 20 were in, the rains came. Consequently, Herr finished planting the remaining 20 about two weeks ago, the same time he planted 40 more after barley.

On May 14, Myerstown farmer Dennis Grumbine planted his full season beans.

"Those beans look real nice,"

Grumbine says. However, he waited before finishing the 35 acre field.

"I thought it was too dry, earlier and waited. Then it rained and rained," Grumbine says.

Grumbine put a second planting of full season beans in on June 8, which was, "as quick as I could get them in," he notes. "The ground was in less than ideal condition."

The addition of a new herbicide may help to assuage many frustrations next year. Now if someone can only work on the weather.

KEYSTONE MILLS

Kleen Leen SPECIAL

GPR Tested Boars

Both Crossbred & Purebred

First, take a look at these aggressive Checker Boars

BLACKLINE A Duroc x Hamp cross that's especially recommended for a herd which has already attained a high level of sow productivity. (Heavy York and/or Landrace breeding). These aggressive breeders give offspring ability to grow fast and yield good carcasses.

WHITELINE A Duroc x York cross that gives extra breeding power when there's a lot of black or red in your herd. Particularly suited to providing gilt replacements with fast growth and excellent reproduction.

M-LINE A York x Landrace cross that provides replacement gilts with the ability to farrow large litters, milk well and wean larger pigs.

HAMPSHIRE Complements red and white breeding by maximizing offspring vigor, reducing backfat, and providing good muscle.

DUROC Known for their ability to improve offspring growth rate and feed efficiency.

YORK Passes along a maternal ability that can result in larger, stronger litters.

LANDRACE A mother breed adapted to confinement that milks well and gives good pig survival.

All this, Plus volume Discounts:
0-6 BOARS — REGULAR PRICE
7-20 BOARS — 10% DISCOUNT
21 & Up — 20% DISCOUNT

KLEEN LEEN CHECKER GILTS:
* To qualify, orders must be for a minimum of 3 primary boars of the same breed or same source herd per delivery.
* All animals must be delivered during a 12 month period. The delivery date of the first group of boars determines the start of the 12 month period.

Only 1 out of 3 boars qualifies to become a Checker Boar

...HARVESTORE® STRUCTURES AND HIGH MOISTURE CORN!

Left to Right: Glenn, son Galen and daughter-in-law Donna with 7-year-old Bambi — over 25,000 lbs. milk and 926 lbs. B.F.

"WE'VE INCREASED 2,000 LBS. MILK AND 23 LBS. BUTTERFAT SINCE STARTING ON HIGH MOISTURE SHELLED CORN!"
Glenn Gockley
Mohnton, PA

"Since combining HARVESTORE high moisture shelled corn and HARVESTORE haylage, we feed less than 100 lbs. of soybean meal a day to 38 cows. WE HAVEN'T FED BALED HAY TO ANY MILK COWS FOR THE LAST TWO YEARS!" Galen adds, "We decided on shelled corn after talking to other farmers who felt they made more milk on shelled corn than on ground ear corn."

"It used to take us an hour and a half to grind feed for 28 cows. We especially like not having to do that grinding every three to five days!"

"Another reason we went to HARVESTORE high moisture corn was to eliminate the drop in production we had at the end of each batch of feed. High moisture corn is a more consistent feed. OUR COWS SEEM TO PEAK HIGHER AND HOLD THE PEAK LONGER NOW. WE RECENTLY HAD ONE COW PRODUCE 120 LBS. WITH A 5.1% TEST!" exclaims Glenn.

Get the pests that cut into tobacco profits.

ORTHENE® Tobacco Insect Spray is a proven, practical pesticide that knocks out most profit-robbing tobacco pests, including budworms, green peach aphids, hornworms, cabbage loopers and flea beetles. And it does it in two ways: It kills on contact, then it's absorbed into the plant's system to keep killing insects as the season goes on.

While ORTHENE really lays into tobacco pests, it's surprisingly gentle to tobacco plants. So gentle, in fact, that you can spray for insects right in the plant bed without injuring young plants. And ORTHENE is now registered for use in transplant water in Georgia, Kentucky, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. Always read label directions for specific use rates.

What's more, ORTHENE can be applied without masks, goggles or other protective equipment. Workers can return to the field as soon as the spray deposit has dried.

ORTHENE Tobacco Insect Spray is registered for use on both flue-cured and air-cured tobacco. So, why not put it to work in your field? You'll find that ORTHENE is an economical way to keep your pest populations way down and your tobacco returns way up.

Israel's lifestyle, beliefs, farming differ

The Rodgers visit a land of contrasts

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

Israel is a land of broad contrasts. It has wide fertile valleys, high mountains and deserts. Its historic richness is kept alive next to the most advanced agricultural technology in the region.

It was to this land of many faces that Steve and Michelle Rodgers traveled for three weeks in May to learn more about the land, its people and its history.

For Steve the trip represented a cross-cultural exchange which is required for his graduation from the Lancaster Theological Seminary, and he will get three credits for his preparation for the trip, the actual learning experiences and the paper he will write as a result.

Extension Home Economist Michelle Rodgers used her vacation to accompany her husband on the trip, which provided many insights for both of them.

Steve could have chosen any culture, but he chose Israel for several reasons. One of his goals was to experience being a Christian in a Jewish majority. He also wanted to get in touch with his Christian roots, something they experienced every day. However, Michelle pointed out, "It is hard to imagine that Jesus walked around in those conditions. All holy spots have gaudy churches built over them."

Steve pointed out that the most realistic possibility of imagining Jesus in his surroundings was a visit to a model of the old city of Jerusalem. Showing the old city as it was in Jesus' time allowed the tourist to gain a better perspective.

A highlight, according to Steve, was a visit to the Temple Mount excavations, "which have uncovered roads where Jesus could have walked."

Jerusalem proved to be a fascinating city to the Rodgers, because, according to Michelle, "It is a fabulous mixture of the old and new. It is a golden city. When the sun goes down it looks golden." A law requires all new construction in the city to be covered with Jerusalem stone, a yellow dolomite, which makes the city uniform and beautiful.

Four days after they left Israel for home, Israel invaded Lebanon in their attempt to destroy the Palistine Liberation Organization. Steve recalls, "I knew it would happen. We saw the tanks moving toward the border, but it was very calm."

Michelle adds in wonderment, "We stood at the border where the tanks went through and saw the tanks from observation towers." Although there was a military presence everywhere in the country, Michelle said, "There wasn't a feeling they were at war. We heard sonic booms from surveillance planes, but we never felt threatened while there."

Their recent visit has made them very aware of the continuing war. Michelle noted, "It hurt to think they had gone through that border. Real people are going to be affected and real places may not be there as a result. It is hard to imagine. I think life probably went on in Israel as usual."

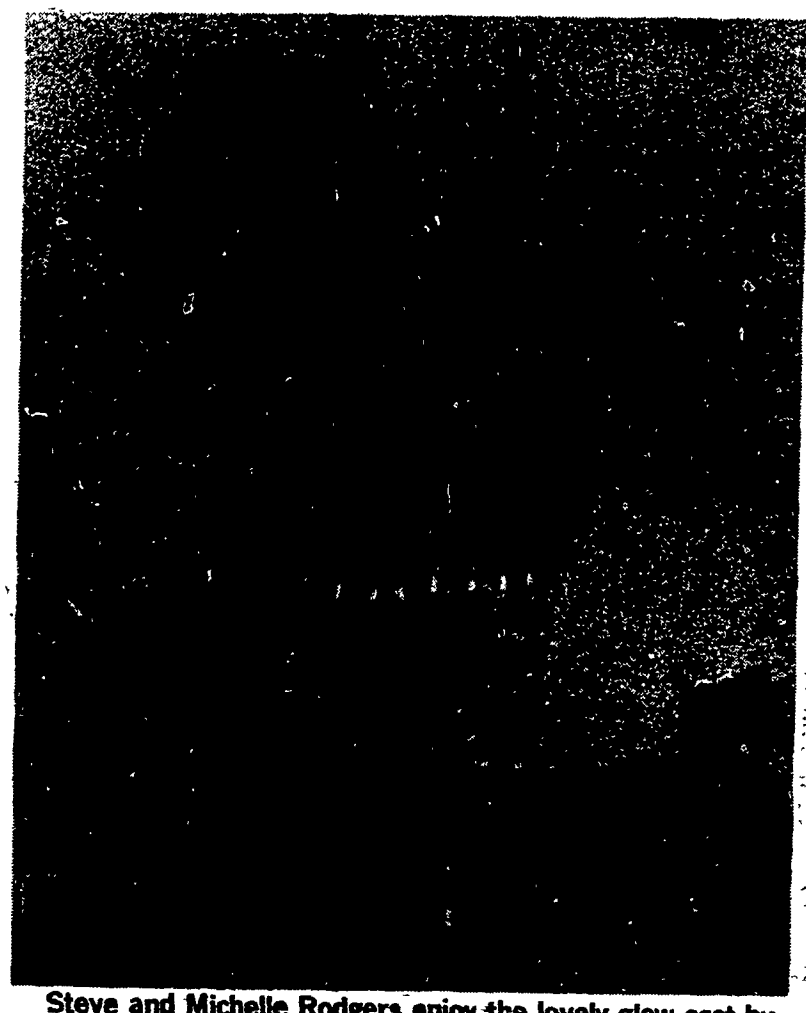
The future for the region? "Gloomy," according to Steve. "Their future (the Arabs & Jews) is mutually exclusive. The Jews want a Jewish answer and the Arabs want an Arab answer. It doesn't seem to be in the make-up of the race to have peace." He continued, "They see war as a matter of survival. Either you kill them or they will kill you."

The military presence is everywhere in the land, and soldiers walk the streets carrying M-16 rifles and Uzi submachine guns, some with loaded clips. Sometimes off-duty soldiers dressed in civilian clothes would also be carrying guns.

All young people, men and women, go into the service for three years, immediately upon graduation from school.

Military spending makes up a large part of the country's budget, Steve explained. "Where we spend six percent, they spend 25 percent." Such a high percentage helps contribute to their ever-growing inflation which presently is 100 percent a year. Steve laughed and said, "Every five days when we exchanged money we got more." He noted that military hardware is one of Israel's largest exports.

Despite the long-standing hatreds among the Israelis and the Arabs, Michelle pointed out, "Some get along; others can't stand each other." There are separate buses for Arabs and Israels, and there are separate areas of the city where each nationality lives. All signs in the country are in Hebrew, Arabic and English.



Steve and Michelle Rodgers enjoy the lovely glow cast by the candles on the Menorrah, an important tradition in the Jewish religion. Their's is a memento of their educational trip to Israel.

These tiles were made in Israel, and Michelle is using them for a hall decoration as a memento of their recent trip to Israel.

These tiles also were made in Israel. The colorful tiles were arranged to spell the word "Shalom" a universal greeting in Israel.

These handcarved pieces of a nativity scene are made from native olive wood from Israel. Some were purchased individually and some were purchased as a set, and they will serve as a meaningful remembrance from Steve and Michelle Rodgers' trip to Israel.

Steve called the landscape of the country "infinitely varied." While it is very green north of Galilee, he said the green was more an olive color than here. The country, which is the size of New Jersey, also has a salt water lake, a fresh water lake and a sea.

"There is a tremendous amount of agriculture there," Steve noted. He added that it is very advanced, saying, "That is Israel's contribution to the area. They brought western technology there."

The Rodgers said they saw a lot of very advanced farm equipment, including International Harvester and John Deere.

Much of the farming is done on kibbutzim, which are "total cooperatives," according to Steve. The kibbutz owns the land which the people work and they are given their material needs. In some kibbutzim, the families have individual homes; in others, children live in a group environment.

When the Rodgers arrived in May, the wheat harvest was just being concluded. Steve pointed out, "It rains from December to February, and that's the only time they can grow anything." The Israelis use a lot of irrigation and have reclaimed much land that was once desert.

Fruits and vegetables are the mainstays of agriculture and of the Israeli diet. Michelle says with a laugh, "They eat cucumbers and tomatoes for breakfast." Furthermore, she said it was not unusual to see children eating tomatoes on a bus much like children here might eat an apple.

The famous Jaffa oranges are products of Israel and because of the abundance of orange groves, it was possible to buy freshly squeezed orange juice readily. Michelle said, "Everywhere we went there were little stands, and they squeezed the oranges before our eyes."

Having grown up on a dairy farm, Michelle observed, "Dairies are located on kibbutzim. Milk is purchased in plastic bags and it is not homogenized and I don't think it is pasteurized. Milk is sold by the liter, and it doesn't keep very well. Their whole milk tasted like our low-fat milk."

Being a home economist, Michelle took more than a passing interest in food and food prices but was somewhat stymied because of the custom of pricing all foods in code on a "price board" at the front of the store. Thus, as you walked around the "super-sol," or grocery store, no prices were on the products. However, Michelle noted, "Anything in cans was very expensive."

A Coke cost one dollar in Israel, but because of the high inflation rate soda machines are not found in that country. For the few machines there, tokens must be purchased at the post office.

Steve and Michelle stayed for a short time in the home of friends from the United States who are teaching there, but mostly they stayed in "hospices" - organizations run for tourists.

Thus they also ate many meals out. But Michelle observed, "There are very few sit-down restaurants - most are eat and go." A common eating place in Israel is "McDavids", a Hebrew cousin to the popular McDonalds. Michelle recalls eating a dish called "St. Peter's fish," with the fish having come from the Sea of Galilee. She said, "It's the best fish I've ever eaten in my life. They served it head and all!"

An unusual dish which was popular for lunch was "pnalaiel," consisting of chick peas made into a paste and deep fat fried in round balls, served in pita bread. This was topped by cucumbers, Announcing two new Field Boss® tractors. Because work-saving features shouldn't cost extra as options.

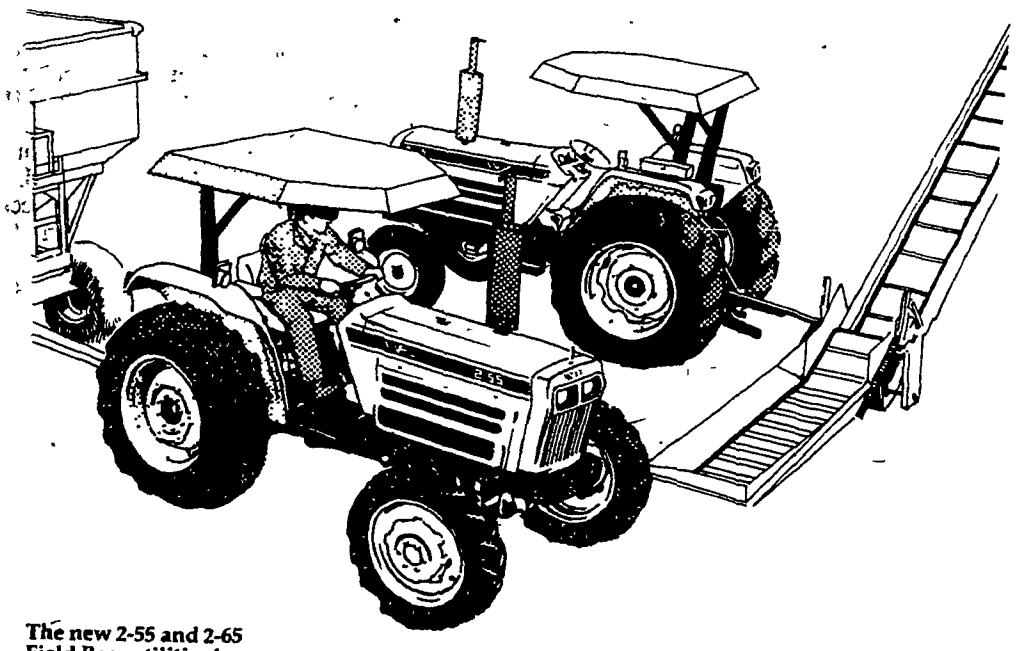
If you use your utility tractor as much as most people, you know the more work-saving features the better. If only they didn't cost extra...

Extra features without extra expense. Our new 2-55 and 2-65 Field Boss® utilities come loaded with work-saving features other companies make you pay extra for as options. Plus, features a lot of other tractors don't offer. Like our 16 forward speed synchromesh transmission that lets you shift on-the-go.

Tighter turning. You'll like the quickness and agility of the 2-55 and 2-65, too. The four wheel drive models, for instance, turn almost as tight as most two wheel drives. A big plus in the tight spots.

We can't begin to list all the features of these new tractors here. So come in and see for yourself. It'll be worth the trip.



The new 2-55 and 2-65 Field Boss utilities have more standard work-saving features than nearly any other utility. Features you have to order as options on other tractors.

tomatoes and other salad bar kinds of vegetables.

A highlight of the trip for both Steve and Michelle was a visit to an Arab home in a refugee camp. "We were very welcome there. They were so hospitable. We were offered pineapple drink and mint tea."

They explained that the refugee camps were, in fact, slums and sections of larger cities. No improvements are allowed, there is no answer and nothing like a youth center is allowed. There is a patrol for those entering or leaving a given area, but the area is not sealed off. Homes in these areas are very small, limited to one story and often just one or two rooms. Some refugees have lived in these centers since 1948, when they were first displaced from their homes. Most have jobs, and most of these Arabs work for Israelis.

Once when they were hitchhiking, a very acceptable, safe and common practice in that country, they were picked up by an Arab who made friends with them and insisted on taking them home to meet his family. This was typical of the reception they received.

Michelle noted, "We were very acceptable there, but not favored. There were many, many tourists, it was like Intercourse, Pennsylvania, all the time."

Clothing proved to be very expensive, and most women's clothing seemed to have to be purchased in boutiques, where prices might average $50 for skirts and $30 for blouses. Michelle said it is her understanding that women purchase one or two really good outfits and wear them over and over. She said, "They follow American trends in clothing."

Shoe stores were in abundance and many designer clothes were in evidence, including designer jeans and designer eyeglasses. In fact, jeans were everywhere and many public employees like bus drivers wore jeans instead of uniforms.

School children wore uniforms and Michelle said, "They are schooled religiously in history. They are very disciplined." Public schools are the norm, and religious instruction is given before or after school. "The children are very forward and independent. They aren't paranoid: they are used to the soldiers being everywhere."

A normal work week in Israel is six days, and the Sabbath is from sundown Friday until sundown Saturday. In addition to the Jewish population there are Christians and Moslems as well as a small group of "Jewish believers", those who follow the teachings of Jesus.

Visiting the ruins and the holy places made Israel and the Christian religion more real to Steve and Michelle. Spending three weeks in this troubled area of the world also brought home to them the realities of the tragic problems which continue to plague the country. It was no ordinary vacation, but it was one which will not soon be forgotten.

Steve concluded, "It was very good timing for us. It's fascinating."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

If you have never seen a flock of fifty of more goldfinches fluttering around in a tree, then you have missed a beautiful experience.

Only twice in my life have I been treated to such a sight. One time it was in a small willow along a stream and this spring it was in our white mulberry tree.

Usually you are attracted by their twittering sound as they chirp continuously and move rapidly. Their tiny yellow bodies can be recognized by their roller-coaster flight and their clear song. Sorry to say but they are close relatives of the pesty sparrows that live at our house and in my garden.

Another sight that surprised me last week was the sight of a squirrel sitting in our apricot tree and quietly nibbling the tiny grapes off of our white grape vine. Somehow this vine escaped from its trellis and climbed a nearby tree. Even with me standing nearby and scolding, this grey squirrel continued eating delicately at the tiny

If only I could have reached him! He often runs on the top of the rail fence surrounding my garden as I can recognize him because he has a scrawny red tail.

The other week, after another big flood covered our meadow, I saw a groundhog sitting on top of the same rail fence. Maybe he didn't want to get his feet wet. We have an over abundant supply of these rodents. During the night of the flood, we had to get up at 3 a.m. and chase our herd of cows through water to the safety of higher ground and the barn. It happened to be the same day that we had workmen come and build a completely new front porch. While they worked, the muddy waters of the Conestoga rushed by taking trees, boats and drums downstream and leaving lots of debris behind.

Ag celebration in search of slogan

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Maryland Agriculture Week officials are searching for a theme for the 1983 celebration, according to President Judy Godfrey.

If you have a slogan that reflects the accomplishments of Maryland Agriculture, why not enter the 1983 slogan contest? The winner will receive two tickets to the annual Ag Week Legislative Dinner in February 1983.

The 1982 slogan was "Maryland Agriculture: Land of Bountiful Harvest."

Maryland Ag Week is a 13-year-old forum for communicating the diversity of Maryland agriculture. Industry officials also sponsor statewide shopping mall exhibits during February and March as a means of educating the urban citizen.

Deadline for entries is August 20, 1982. Ideas and any suggested art to illustrate the theme should be mailed to Martha Myers, University of Maryland, Cooperative Extension Service, Department of Information and Publications, College Park, MD 20742. Receipt of entries will not be acknowledged.

Winners will be announced during the fall of 1982.

Have a summer strawberry feast

Great recipes should be used frequently. . . .and most recipes calling for strawberries are just that — great, so use them all summer long.

Included in our list of recipes this week are enough dishes to have a day-long strawberry feast. Starting with breakfast, we have Strawberry Pineapple Jam; and to finish off the day in a warm way, we have Strawberry Nut Bread.

Happy Strawberrying!

STRAWBERRY NUT BREAD

1 can (21 oz.) strawberry pie filing
2 eggs
1/3 c. oil
2 1/2 c. all-purpose flour
1/2 c. sugar
1 T. baking powder
1/2 t. salt
1/2 c. chopped nuts

Set aside 1/2 cup of the strawberry pie filling to be used for either strawberry cream cheese spread or strawberry butter (below). Combine remaining strawberry filling, eggs, and oil in large mixing bowl. Sift or thoroughly stir dry ingredients to evenly distribute baking powder and salt throughout the flour and sugar. Add nuts to dry igredients. Mix dry ingredients with strawberry/egg mixture, stirring only to combine. Pour batter into 9x5x3 inch loaf pan that has been oiled and the bottom lined with waxed paper. (Two smaller loaf pans may be substituted). Bake at 350 degrees for 85-90 minutes or until a long toothpick inserted near center does not reveal any gumminess. Cool 5 minutes, remove from pan to finish cooling on rack. Serve with your choice of these spreads:

STRAWBERRY CREAM CHEESE SPREAD

Combine 1/2 cup strawberry pie filing with 3 oz. package softened cream cheese.

STRAWBERRY BUTTER

Combine 1/2 c. strawberry pie filing, 1/2 c. (1 stick) softened butter, and 1/4 c. confectioners' sugar.

Diana King, Baltimore

STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE JAM

2 c. prepared fruit
1 can crushed pineapple in syrup, drained
2 T. lemon juice
5 c. sugar
1 pouch Certo fruit pectin

First prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 quart strawberries. Measure 2 cups into 6- or 8-quart saucepot. Add pineapple and lemon juice.

Now make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit in saucepot. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Ladle quickly into hot jars, filling to within 1/4 inch of top. Cover and process in boiling water bath for 5 minutes.

Karen Tosconny, Rl Harrisburg

STRAWBERRY JELLO SALAD

2 large pkg. strawberry gelatin
4 c. hot water
1 qt. frozen strawberries
10 oz. crushed pineapple
3 mashed bananas

If strawberries are unsweetened, add 1/2 c. sugar.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add strawberries, pineapple, and bananas. Put half of mixture in a 13x9 inch pan and refrigerate. Mix up one package of whipped topping. Then add one small package of cream cheese and remaining gelatin mixture. Pour this half on top of jelled mixture. Refrigerate.

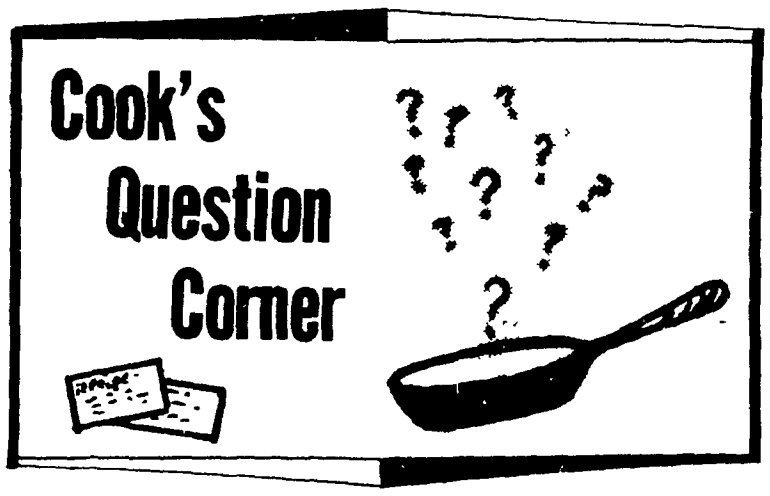
Here's a dessert that's absolutely unbeatable - fresh strawberries with an elegant sour cream custard sauce. The sauce tastefully complements fresh strawberries without masking their wonderful flavors.



NOTE - Lancaster Farming does not have the facilities to kitchen-test recipes if we are to continue to offer readers such a large selection and variety. Recipes are used as they are received from readers and it is the responsibility of the sender to submit correct, tested recipes.

QUESTION - Can anyone help me with some cheese recipes? I would like recipes to make Swiss, longhorn, Colby, cream cheese, etc. from scratch. I have extra milk and would like to make cheese with it.

CORRECTION - The recipe I submitted earlier, and which you ran, "Grandma Baker's Hot Milk Cake," calls for 2 t. baking powder, not the 2 T. listed. So cooks, if you saved this recipe, please make this correction.

Strawberry feast

STRAWBERRY BREAD

3 c. flour
1 t. salt
1 t. baking soda
1 T. cinnamon
2 1/2 c. strawberries, sliced
1 1/4 c. chopped pecans or walnuts
2 c. sugar
3 eggs
1 1/4 c. oil
red food coloring

Beat eggs well. Combine flour, salt, baking soda, cinnamon and sugar. Make a well in the center. Add eggs and oil, stir only until moist. Stir in berries and nuts. Blend in food coloring. Spoon into two lightly greased bread pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until done. Cool. Let stand overnight for better taste. This is a moist and delicious bread.

Darlene Kreider, Quarryville

STRAWBERRY PUDDING

1 c. marshmallows
2 c. frozen strawberries
1 box (3 oz.) strawberry gelatin
2 1/4 c. flour
1 1/2 c. sugar
1/2 c. solid shortening
3 t. baking powder
1/2 t. salt
1 c. milk
1 t. vanilla
3 eggs

Sprinkle marshmallows on bottom of pan, thoroughly combine strawberry syrup with dry gelatin and set aside. In larger bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Beat 3 minutes at medium speed. Pour batter over marshmallows in pan and spoon strawberry mix evenly over batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes. Serve with milk. Best when eaten warm.

Irene Shirk, Mifflinburg

SOUR CREAM CUSTARD SAUCE

4 eggs
1/2 c. sugar
1/4 t. salt
1 c. milk
1 c. dairy sour cream
1 1/2 t. vanilla

In medium saucepan, blend together eggs, sugar and salt. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and just coats a metal spoon. Cool quickly by setting pan in bowl of ice or cold water and stirring for a few minutes. Stir in sour cream and vanilla. Cover and refrigerate. Chill thoroughly.

Department of Agriculture

STRAWBERRY BAVARIAN PIE

1 c. graham cracker crumbs
1/4 c. sugar
1/4 c. butter

Lightly mix together crumbs, sugar and melted butter. Pat mixture onto bottom and side of a greased 9 inch pie plate. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes. Cool.

Filling

1 T. unflavored gelatin
1/4 c. cold water
1 1/2 c. hulled strawberries
1/3 c. sugar
1/2 pint heavy cream, whipped whole strawberries

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water to soften. Place in a saucepan and cook over a low heat until gelatin dissolves. Mix the strawberries with sugar. Pour dissolved gelatin over strawberries and mix. Chill in refrigerator until mixture has consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold whipped cream into chilled gelatin mixture. Pour into baked pie shell and chill in refrigerator until firm, 1 to 2 hours. Garnish with whole strawberries.

AAM joins Canadian group

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Agriculture Movement National Chairman Marvin Meek has announced a joint meeting of the Canadian Agriculture Movement and the American Agriculture Movement. This meeting will consolidate both organizations efforts into a joint effort to gain a fair and reasonable price for all agriculture commodities.

The meeting will take place along the Canadian border in the Internation Peace Gardens in North Dakota. This history-making event is scheduled for July 20 at 12 noon.

The unity of the two Farm Organizations reemphasizes the dire economical collapse that all the world is facing due to the under payment of the agriculture sector, Meek says.

Combating diseases

Rainy weather in June has contributed to plant disease problems in some areas. Appearance of a variety of leafspot fungi on trees, shrubs and flowers has made home gardeners in these areas very conscious of the need to protect their plants.

Spraying with chemical fungicides is often helpful or necessary to control certain diseases in the home garden. But University of Delaware Extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney says fungicides aren't the only tool that can be used to combat plant diseases.

Home gardeners can reduce the incidence and severity of these diseases in many other ways, too. Here are some of his suggestions.

— Select a suitable location for planting. Some plants like sunny spots while others prefer more shade. Avoid extremely wet soils since they favor many root diseases. Improve drainage, where possible, to reduce these diseases.

— Practice rotation within your garden plot. Change its location occasionally, if this is possible. This helps prevent the build-up of disease-causing organisms.

— Select disease-resistant varieties when they're available. Check with your nursery or garden center about this important matter before making a purchase.

— Use only disease-free seed and transplants. Buy from a reputable seed company, greenhouse operator or nurseryman. Don't accept any plants (even at bargain prices) that appear to be unhealthy. Many disease-causing organisms can be carried to your garden on seeds or transplants.

— Fertilize your garden on the basis of soil test results. Plants that are too weak or too vigorous as a result of improper fertilization are more subject to diseases.

— Don't overcrowd plants. Crowding results in high humidity beneath the plant canopy--a condition which favors certain diseases such as downy mildew and Botrytis blight. Thin plants to permit free air circulation.

— Water properly. Try to maintain an even moisture supply and avoid wet-dry fluctuations. Avoid watering late in the day, as this favors disease development. Too much moisture also favors several root and foliage diseases.

— Control insect pests. These may carry and spread certain virus and bacterial diseases, such as bacterial wilt on cucumbers.

— Destroy diseased plants as soon as you see them in your garden. Otherwise they may serve as an infection source for other plants.

— Spade under or remove and compost crop refuse as soon as possible after you harvest your garden. This helps eliminate disease-causing organisms which can overwinter in crop debris left lying on the ground.

— Remove and destroy diseased tree and shrub branches before infection spreads. It's wise to prune out diseased plant tissues during the dormant period in fall or spring. Rake and destroy fallen leaves, since many disease-causing organisms live from one season to the next in them.

WAYNE, N.J. — A free booklet, "HOME AND GARDEN INSECT CONTROL," a concise and informative brochure on the control of insects in fruits, vegetables and ornamentals is now available from American Cyanamid Company.

The booklet, which is written for the homeowner, details the amount of insecticide one should use as well as the proper timing for application. It also includes sections on controlling mosquitos, flies and ants.

To receive a free copy of "HOME AND GARDEN INSECT CONTROL," write MALATHION/H-G, Dept. 614, American Cyanamid Company, One Cyanamid Plaza, Wayne, New Jersey 07470.

NPC goes to New Orleans in 1983

Martinsburg, WV — New Orleans - famous for its jazz, its cuisine, its architecture, and its colorful history - will be the site of the 1983 National Peach Coucil Convention, February 16-20, at the luxurious Fairmont Hotel.

In keeping with the general convention theme, the program has been divided into three sections: "Peaches, Toot Your Own Horn," "Keeping In Step With Change," and "Tune Up With New Ideas." A variety of production, research, promotion, and marketing topics will be discussed during these sessions.

The trade show adjacent to the meeting rooms, will provide excellent opportunities for exhibitors to display their newest equipment or services and for growers to shop in one location for the products and services necessary for a profitable orchard business.

The convention hotel is just a block from the French Quarter. The Fairmont is the perfrct location for NPC members to gather for the important educational and business sessions of the convention and within easy walking distance of the gaiety and excitement of the French Quarter.

Registration fees are $300 per couple or $150 for each single person attending. Room rates at the Fairmont for NPC attendees range from $65 to $95 for a single room and $75 to $105 for a double room. Reservations need to be made early and registration fees must be paid in order to obtain a room at the Fairmont.

The convention will officially open on Wednesday, February 16, the day after Mardi Gras. Since travel in the city will be almost impossible on Tuesday, it is recommended that attendees plan to arrive either before Mardi Gras or early on Wednesday to be there in time for the opening of the convention on Wednesday evening.

Plans should be made now to join others in the peach industry at the Fairmont Hotel, February 16-20, 1983, for one of NPC's greatest conventions. For more information and/or registration forms contact National Peach Council, P.O.Box 1085, Martinsburg, WV 25401, 304/267-6024.

Wildlife should be left alone

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Game Commission is renewing its annual plea to persons sympathetic to wildlife to leave wild "youngsters" in their natural habitat, and not to encourage or entice wildlife to congregate in areas where the creatures become obnoxious.

With many young birds and animals in the field and forest at this time of the year, persons finding the tiny creatures may innocently believe the wildlife has been deserted or "orphaned." Such is not the case.

Usually the parents, frightened by the approach of humans, have taken cover a short distance away. They will return to the care of their offspring as soon as they are left alone.

Human sympathies are understandably with young rabbits, birds, fawn deer, etc. Annually, wildlife conservation officers are plagued with "orphaned" wildlife which would have lived normal lives had they been left in the field or forest.

Few humans have the experience or training necessary to raise wildlife, and young birds and animals removed from natural surroundings usually die, despite the best intentions and efforts of humans.

Of equal concern are animals which are fed or otherwise attracted to particular locations, usually to be viewed by humans. Special problems are created by those who feed bears, inducing the cute, cuddly creatures to come to or remain in a certain area.

Later, these animals become a nuisance, constantly showing up for handouts, upsetting garbage cans, roaming through towns, climbing trees, frightening residents, etc. Then conservation officers are hastily summoned to trap and relocate the nuisance bruins, which often return quickly to repeat their upsetting and sometimes dangerous pranks.

Local 4-H'er joins IFYE program

LANCASTER — Rebecca Ruhl, daughter of Charles and Elinore Ruhl of Mount Joy, will be traveling to Trinidad and Tobago for six months as part of the 1982 International 4-H Farm Exchange program.

Rebecca is a recent graduate of Kutztown State College where she majored in communication design with a concentration in photography and design.

Before leaving on this sojourn on June 13, Becky was an employee in her father's retail-wholesale flower and greenhouse business. She was a member of the Mount Joy 4-H sewing, cooking, and cake decorating clubs and has, in recent years, worked as a volunteer at the Harrisburg Farm Show for the Pennsylvania Retail Florists Association.

Berks swine club meets

LEESPORT — The Berks County 4-H Swine Club recently held their June meeting at the Berks County Ag Center.

Guest speaker for the evening was a salesman from Wayne Feeds Inc. who discussed feeding and nutrition of market hogs.

The next meeting will be held July 13 at the farm of Joel Burkholder. A showing and fitting demonstration and a swine judging contest will be held.

Solanco 4-H gathers

LANCASTER — The Solanco 4-H club met for a slide presentation about two men who rode bikes from the west coast to the east coast, on June 22.

The next meeting will be held on July 27.

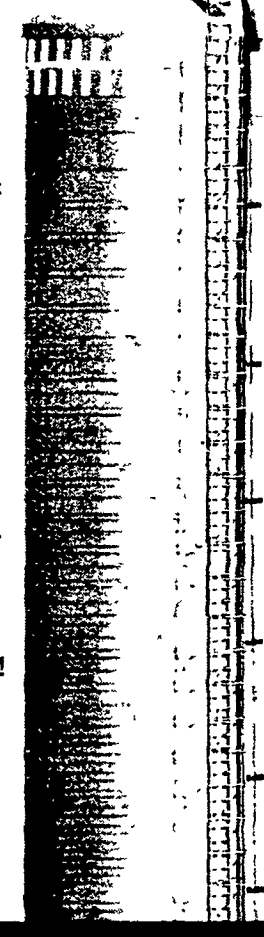
THERE'S NO BETTER WAY TO HANDLE HIGH MOISTURE CORN.



AND WE CAN PROVE IT TO YOU.

The many benefits of high moisture corn are all well known these days: No dryer costs, reduced shrinkage, less labor, less grain damage, fewer field losses, fewer bad weather problems — and a great feed!

And the only way to process high-moisture corn most effectively is with a Madison Grain-O-Matic® Here's why:

The light gray color of the Vibra-Cor® staves reflect direct sun ray heat 2½ times better than the dark color used by others! These thicker truss-beam design staves also provide superior insulation value.

Thus gases in the Grain-O-Matic® structure expand and contract much less than in a steel structure. Inside pressure is regulated by a precision vacuum and pressure valve. Every structure is air-pressure tested by experienced Madison crews. Result: Better feed and no breather bags, so you can fill clear to the top of the structure with nutrition packed high-moisture grain. And you also get the Madison/Laidig bottom unloader that provides fast, positive delivery day after day for a long, long time.

PICK A PERFECT PICKLE

Before you pack your peck of pickled peppers, be sure your pickles are perfect. Pickles are an art — everyone has advice on how to do them right. But maybe you need to know a little bit more. If you are going to enter yours in a local fair, you should know how the experts pick their pickles. Here's the inside scoop:

— Use standard canning jars, sealed with vacuum or self-sealing lids, but remove the screw or ring bands before exhibiting.

— Pack pickles with a headspace of ½ inch. Food should not be in contact with the underside of the lid.

— The pickles should be uniform — each piece being the same size and shape.

— The flavor should be natural and not over-spiced.

— The texture should be firm, not tough or soft—and the pickles should be translucent and crisp.

— The color of the pickles should be as near the natural color as possible, even throughout, and free from lighter or uncured places.

— The liquid should be clear and free from sediment or defects of any kind.

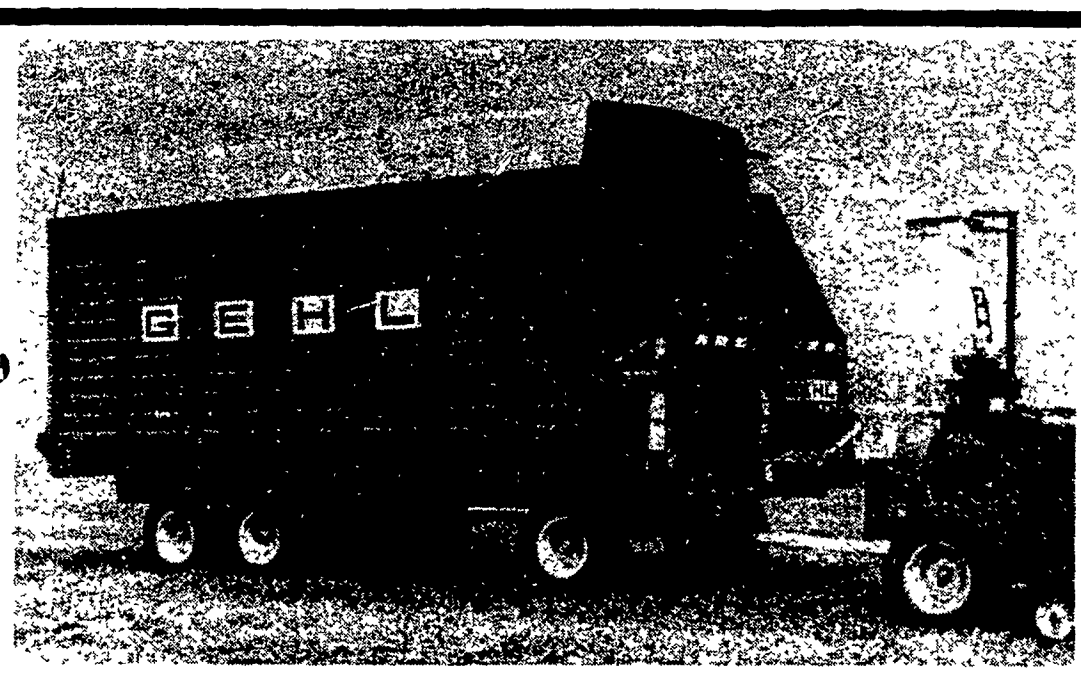
FACTS ABOUT TEA

There is no better way to quench a thirst than with a tall glass of iced tea. Iced tea is probably the most economical, versatile, and best-loved summertime refresher in America.

Do you know that iced tea is as all-American as apple pie? It was at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904, on a particularly hot summer day, that a merchant of Indian tea tried unsuccessfully to sell hot tea to the sweltering crowds. In desperation, he poured the hot brew over ice and created an instant success...which has remained an American favorite ever since.

Whether it's called Sun Tea or the more intriguing "Solar Tea," this energy way of brewing iced tea is gaining in popularity all across the country. Very simply, tea bags are placed in cold water in a glass container, then set in a sunny place allowing the sun's rays to brew the tea. Many iced tea lovers claim that tea brewed by the sun is the most delicious and crystal clear tea you will ever taste. Here are the directions:

1. Place 9 single tea bags or 3 family sized teabags in a gallon jar and fill with cold water; cover.
2. Place outside in hot sunshine for 3 to 4 hours. Refrigerate within 5 hours of brewing start.
3. Remove tea bags. Pour into ice-filled glasses. Makes 1 gallon.

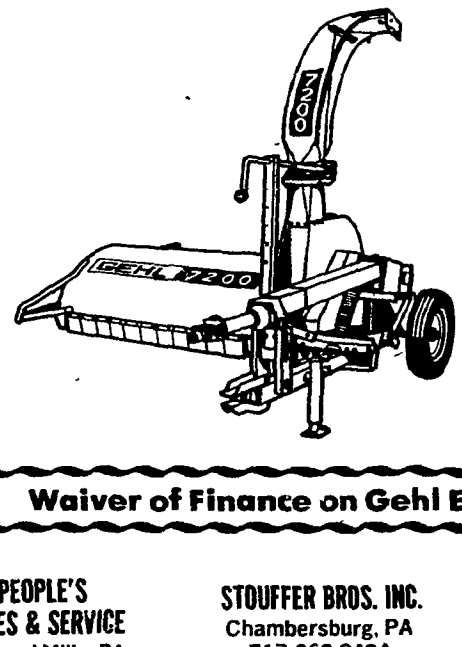


. . . the introduction of our new Gehl BU960 self-unloading forage box!

Our new, improved Gehl model 960 forage box is ready to order in three available sizes. The 14-foot unit features wood stakes and sides, while the 16-foot model offers both wood and steel stakes and sides. The all new 18-foot forage box is available with steel stakes and sides.

We've Put Good Ideas to Work with an all-new look and several refinements on our new 960 box. The 20-inch cross conveyor has been lowered three inches for easier unloading with a full eight inches extending beyond the box side for better silo positioning. A totally new designed roof, non-wrap beaters and the addition of steel to the main sills provide extra strength and durability to our new self-unloading unit. And the three-speed worm gear drive with two operating speeds and one sweep speed unloads crops quickly, easily with less time and spillage at the silo.

Versatility Pays!



Gehl's 7200 flail chopper green chops, shreds stalks, mows weeds and tackles other tough harvesting jobs with 39 double-edged, hardened steel flails. Unitized fan blades cut and throw material in one step for continuous crop flow. If you want a versatile, economical flail chopper, stop by today and see the Gehl 7200!

Cynthia Piwowar becomes Fayette County's princess

UNIONTOWN — Cynthia Piwowar of R6 Uniontown became the 1982 Fayette County Dairy Princess, Friday, June 25, here at the Uniontown Mall.

Selected to receive the title of alternate princess was Ricki Jo Seese, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Seese of Indiana Head.

Cynthia, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Piwowar Jr., was crowned by 1978 Fayette County Dairy Princess Pamela Ferens and was awarded a $100 savings bond donated by Fike's Dairy of Uniontown.

The new princess is a senior at Uniontown Area High School where she is a member of the usherettes, FBLA, and the National Honor Society. She is also actively involved in the Fayette 4-H dairy club and St. Joseph's Church.

Following graduation, Cynthia plans to attend a two-year business school to study accounting and computer information systems.

Promoting milk is not new to the new princess because she has traveled to many schools in the Fayette County area with her prize-winning Jersey and Holstein. She has also hosted many groups on her family's 160-acre farm.

The new alternate is a graduate of Geible High School and is attending Penn State Fayette Campus majoring in animal bioscience.

In high school, Ricki was vice president of her senior class, participated in girls' cross country and planned graduation exercises. She currently is a member of the Collegiate Speakers, a commentator in church, president of the 4-H county council, and has served as an aide at the special olympics. Ricki shows Brown Swiss as her 4-H project at the Fayette County Fair.

Judges for the event were Larry Bluhm, loan officer at Farm Credit Co-op in Uniontown; Beverly Minor, former PA state dairy princess, who, with husband Sam, operates a Holstein dairy farm and the Springhouse Dairy Store in Washington; and Lynn Taylor, 1978 Somerset County dairy princess, who is currently a senior at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown, majoring in public relations.

Cynthia Piwowar, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Piwowar of Uniontown was crowned 1982-83 dairy princess for Fayette County during ceremonies at the Uniontown Mall. The new princess is a senior at Uniontown Area High School and plans to attend a two-year business school upon graduation.

Janean Fry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frye of R5 Ligonier was crowned Westmoreland County's new dairy princess, Friday, June 25 at the Westmoreland Mall in Greensburg. Jill Barchesky, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barchesky of R2 Derry, was named first runner-up while alternate princess titles went to Lisa Zumbro, daughter of Mrs. Linda Danley. Far right is last year's princess Nancy Malik.

Westmoreland County crowns Janean Frye

GREENSBURG — The new 1982-83 dairy princess for Westmoreland County is Janean Frye, sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frye of R5 Ligonier.

Janean was crowned during ceremonies held June 25 at the Westmoreland Mall.

The new princess will be a senior at Ligonier Valley Senior High School and would like to attend Gannon University or Indiana University of Pennsylvania and study nursing and biology.

Janean is a member of the AFS Club, French Club, Ski Club, LVHS band, girls' track team and is a varisty cheerleader. She will be hosting an AFS student from New Zealand next year.

First runner-up is Jill Barchesky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barchesky of R2 Derry. This 5'7" blonde plans to go into the agri-business field after high school. She is a member of the FFA, parliamentary procedures team, American Legion Auxiliary, Women's Chorus and the New Life Community Church.

Alternate princess for the 1982-83 year is Lisa Zumbro, daughter of Linda Danley. Lisa resides with her grandmother, Thelma Zumbro of R2 West Newton. She is 17 years old and will be a senior at Yough Senior High School. Lisa hopes to fulfill both her interests as a medical assistant and a farmer. She plans to attend Median School in Pittsburgh.

Lisa is a member of the 4-H dairy club, County Council and junior class dance refreshment committee. She is also an office worker at school and a bible school helper.

Gail Gamble leads Wayne dairy royalty

HONESDALE — Gail Gamble, Pleasant Mount, has joined the list of a select few in Wayne County — those on the list of dairy princesses.

Gail will represent the county as the new dairy princess after having been chosen during ceremonies held at the Presbyterian Chapel in Honesdale, recently.

Selected to serve as alternate princess is Melanie Rutledge; an extra honor for this girl in that her mother Beverly is a former dairy princess.

Keeping it all in the family, the new princess also can claim a family member on the list of royalty. Her sister Peggy Gamble Nuttycombe is a past princess.

Gail is the daughter of Steve and Gerladine Gamble and Melanie is the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rutledge Sr.

Judges for the pageant were Russell Gunton, Region 3 director of PDA; Tom Jurchak, county Extension director form Lackawanna County; and Audrey Naylor, dairy princess chairman of Lackawanna County.

Ann Sanderson wins Crawford dairy crown

COCHRANTON — Ann Sanderson, daughter of Thomas and Caroline Sanderson of Conneaut Lake, recently was crowned the 1982-83 dairy princess for Crawford County.

Ann was crowned at the Robert Dickson Liberty Acres Farm in Cochranton.

Following graduation, Ann plans to attend nursing school and stay in farming part time. Her activities include 4-H, candy striper, district orchestra and pep band.

Ann remarked that she hopes to promote milk to young people and non-farm organizations, mostly.

Brenda Bacon, daughter of William and Barbara Bacon of Saegertown, was named alternate princess. Brenda is a graduate of Conneaut Valley High School where she was a majorette, cheerleader, photography editor of the yearbook and 4-H member.

LuAnn Caldwell, daugher of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Caldwell, also of Saegertown, was cited for best talent presentation of the evening.

Judges for the evening were Themla Curtis, Warren County

Karen Snyder earns dairy princess title

LIGHTSTREET — Karen Snyder of R2 Millville was crowned the 1982-83 dairy princess for Columbia and Luzerne counties, June 24, during ceremonies here at the grange hall.

The new princess is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Snyder.

First alternate princess for the new year is Sue Bowman of R4 Bloomsburg. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bowman.

Second alternate title goes to SuAnn Wech of R1 Stillwater. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Wech.

Judges for the pageant were Jack Grim, sales manager for 4-H Harvestore; Donald Hibbard, district manager for Sire Power; and Janet Kriebel, wife of 4-H leader.

Last year's princess, Roberta Bronson, also second runner-up in the state pageant, was on hand to crown the new princess.

Dog ownership requires responsibility, by law

HARRISBURG — With the onset of summer and an increase in outdoor activities, dog owners are reminded by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture of their legal responsibility to keep their dogs under control.

Don Moul, director of the Department's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement, said that all dogs must be under the direct control of the owner or a handler at all times.

"Free roaming dogs cause accidents, bite, damage property and can be a general nuisance," Moul said. "Dogs are personal property and owners are responsible for any damage caused by their pets," he added.

"Many dog-related problems would be alleviated if owners were more aware of their responsibilities. All pet owners really need to do is have their dogs licensed and keep them under control," Moul said.

Moul noted that all dogs six months of age or older must be licensed. "A license is an inexpensive means to identify your dog if it should stray. It shows you care for your pet," he said.

Moul also urged dog owners to properly inoculate their pets against rabies to help protect them from other animals that might carry the disease. Individuals should contact their veterinarian or local humane society for further information.

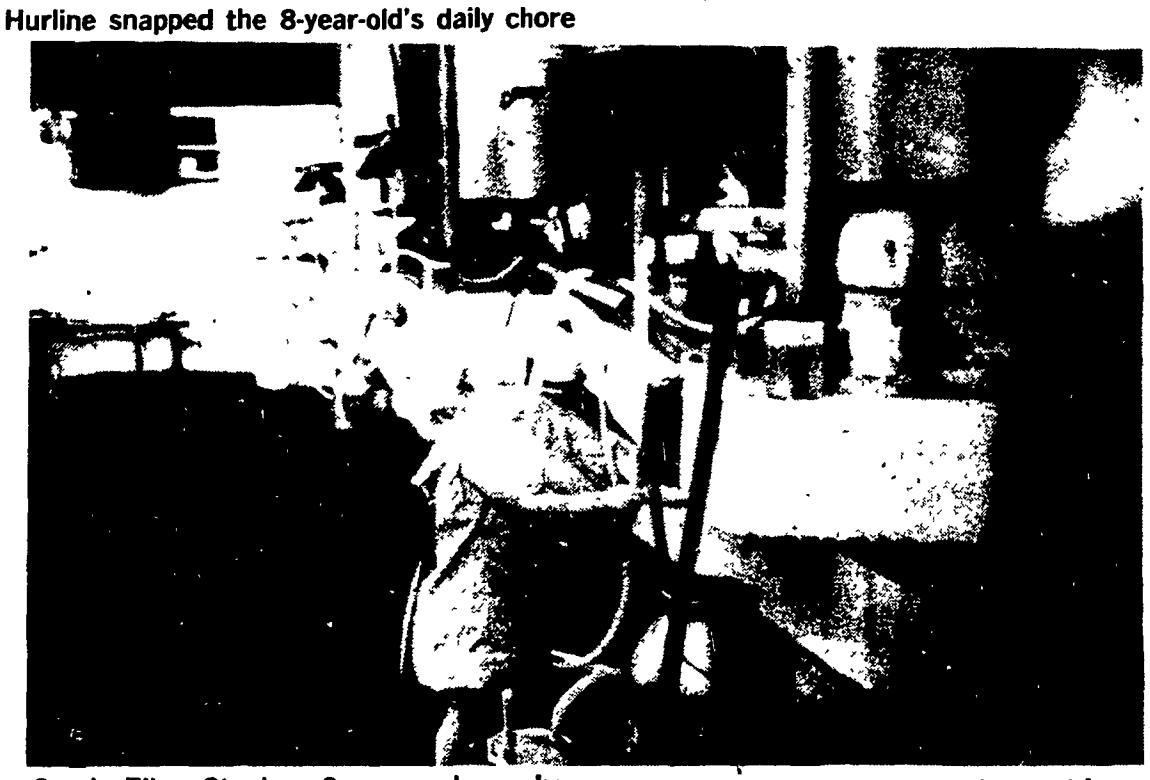
Howard Hurline is the driving force behind this herd of homeward bound bovines. Patricia Hurline snapped the 8-year-old's daily chore on the family's 80-head Holstein farm in Baldwin, Md. with a Nikon FE.



Sarah Ellen Stanley, 3, never knew her mom's camera caught her in the act of scrubbing the parlor. Sarah and her parents Mark and Rosalind now live on a vegetable farm in Mt. Airy, Md., but her interest in work has not subsided. Her mother snapped the action with a Konica C35.

Helping hands start early

LANCASTER — Help around the family farm comes in all sizes. And as many of our dairy photo entrants discovered what pint-size helpers lack in strength they make up for in enthusiasm.

The photos told the story that these mini-farmers can do everything from bringing in the cows to scrubbing down after milking.

While we can only share a sample of kid-power with you, the message is clear. Farm children are never too young to start learning the ins and outs of dairying.

For example, Michael Cosh pooh-poohed the idea of fancy milking machines and at the ripe old age of 15-months employed the tried but true hand milking. But more than seven years has elapsed since Michael's mom Joyce snapped his picture and today 9-year-old Michael is the chief calf feeder at Cosh Acres Farm in Sussex, New Jersery.

Another expert hand-milker, we discovered, was 2-year-old Megan Good of Marietta. Although the photograph was a little dark to reproduce, the original photo taken by Megan's mother Linda, captured Megan hand-milking the family goat. Megan, however, proved to be proficient with just one hand since the other was occupied with her baby doll.

You're never too young to learn. Michael Cosh was 15-months old when his mom Joyce discovered him hand milking a herd member and captured the scene with a Brownie camera. Today, Michael is 9-years-old and is a 4-H member is Sussex, New Jersey.

Sarah Ellen Stanley, according to her mother Rosalind, would much rather work than play with toys. Consequently, she was caught in the act of scrubbing down the milking parlor while helping her dad Mark. The Stanleys have since moved from the dairy and now operate a vegetable farm near Mt. Airy, Maryland. But Sarah, 3, wasn't dismayed, explains her mother. She now hoes instead of milks.

At 8-years-old, Howard Hurline is still one year away from joining 4-H. But the son of Patricia and Melvin Hurline keeps busy on the family Holstein dairy. His mother captured the moment between boy and beasts as Howard brought the cows up for milking. In addition, the Baldwin, Maryland youth helps his mom with her registered Montadale sheep flock.

Dawn and Dave Windle of Atglen get a little extra help each time their nephew Jeremy visits.

Jeremy Nickodenski, 4, provides some helpful energy each time he visits his aunt and uncle Dawn and Dave Windle of Atglen. Jeremy's favorite chore, explains Dawn, is helping to feed, which she captured with a 110 pocket instamatic.

Jeremy's favorite job, explains Aunt Dawn, is helping Uncle Dave feed the cows.

Finally, we received entries of tired little farmers at the end of a long day. And it seemed that no place was too uncomfortable for the hard-working tykes. The future farmers slumbered in tent flaps, next to cows and even leaned against walls.

Melissa Wolgemuth snoozed in a soft straw bed while her parents Susan and Jeff finished the evening milking. Although the 3-year-old York County youth has no set chores, her dad explains that the barn is her favorite place because it contains her tricycle and plenty of cats.

We hope you've enjoyed a look at agriculture's diminutive work force. Watch future issues for our Dairy Photo Album, made possible by those who shared a little of their dairy life with us.

Lancaster begins new all-breeds dairy club

Glenn Shirk helps Mike Peiffer clip his animal at their Saturday workshop day - the first held by the new Kids and Cows Club, an all-breeds club for dairy 4-H'ers.

QUARRYVILLE — The Lancaster County 4-H program continues to expand this year with the opening of a new dairy club primarily serving the youth at the southern end of the county.

At the second meeting of the newly organized club, the members brought suggestions for names and finally voted the "Kids and Cows Dairy Club" into existence.

Thirty-three youngsters signed up this spring as members of this all-breed dairy club — something new for Lancaster County. Previously, members of the dairy 4-H projects in the county had to belong to either a Holstein Club or the color breed club.

Due to the number of youngsters interested in joining a dairy club in the southern end of the county, several parents decided to take the initiative and start up a local all-breed club to centralize meetings and avoid some of the traveling necessitated by belonging to a county-wide club.

Bill Arrowsmith (Jersey), Don Trimble (Brown Swiss), and Fay Eckman (Holstein), put their collective 4-H involvement together, with the help of their children who have belonged to established 4-H county clubs for several years, to offer old and new 4-H members alike the opportunity to work within an all-breed, community-based club.

Under the guidance of the Extension office, the club got off the ground early this spring with 33 members. The first meeting was held at the Don Trimble farm at R2 Peach Bottom.

At the second meeting, the group moved to bigger quarters at the Hoffman Building at the Solanco Fair Grounds. At this meeting, members voted on a name and elected officers for the year. They also planned some activities including upcoming meetings and a Saturday workday in preparation for round-ups.

With the help of previous members of the established clubs, a work Saturday was held last week which included demonstrations and actual hands-on practice in preparing and showing young dairy animals.

From 10 to 3 p.m., 27 "Kids" and 24 calves met at the Solanco show barn. Organizers of the work day were the local club leaders and the Dale Bushong family from Mountville, along with Glenn Shirk from the Extension office. Kris Esbenshade and Cindy Trimble gave a demonstration on showbox information. Matthew and Dale Bushong gave some pointers on training and showing animals. Later, Doug Hershberger explained the basics of clipping the animals for showing and Glenn Shirk demonstrated proper hoof trimming procedures.

Members had to clip, wash and show whatever calf befell their lot. Some youngsters had an easier time than others if they happened to get a cleaner calf or a tamer one than other kids.

Handling clippers, brushes, soap and practicing showing tactics for the first time was a lot for one day for the young novices, but as Bob Hershberger, one of the fathers helping with the day-long program put it, "The kids are really willing to get to the work."

Before the day ended, Glenn Shirk put the members through a mock show experience and instructed the two groups, one made up of experienced showmen and the other first-timers, in the basics and finer points of showing and fitting.

SILAGE CONDITIONER PRESERVATIVE and NUTRIENT BALANCER

MOPRO THE PROFIT MAKER

MOPRO 100 LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

A revolutionary new concept in improving silages. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

York Jr. Holstein members share showing-fitting fun

SEVEN VALLEYS — Two-legged and four-legged youngsters shared in a show ring seminar June 30 as the York County Junior Holstein club held its annual fitting and showing workshop at Bupplynn Farms.

Pairs of juniors, a more experienced dairyman with a beginner, were teamed with unbroken heifer calves and given a few hours to clip, wash and groom their animal. Twenty-five juniors and a dozen somewhat-reluctant calves then paraded for fitting inspection before the eye of judge Dale Olver, progeny analyst for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative.

Pulled to the head of the fitting line-up was the winning team of Cory Lawrence and David King. Second place went to David Krone and Tim Warner, with Sue Eisenhart and Kenton McCleary capturing the third-place ribbons.

Olver complimented the top two pairs on their outstanding clipping job, and noted that he had to rely on such tiny details as fluffing out the tail hairs in order to make his final decision.

Other teams, placed in order, were: Dana Doll and Lisa Kilgore; Roy Thompson, Amy Shoemaker and Jenelle Boyer; Gary Crowl and Richard Bupp; Bridgette Boyer and Joe Arnold; Steve Eisenhart and Ron Stine; Lesley King and Andrea Kauffman; Patty Bupp and Angie Shoemaker; Downa Doll and Kelly Kilgore.

Lesley King was named champion of the showing competition, with Patty Bupp winning the reserve honors. Both girls won their senior and intermediate divisions, and went into final runoff competition with junior category winner Denise Godfrey.

Other top winners in the junior division were Tim Warner, Jenelle Boyer, Angie Shoemaker and Amy Shoemaker. Placing in the intermediate age class were Joe

Visit Europe's largest dairy show

BEREA, Ohio — A visit to the largest dairy show in Europe is one of the important features in a tour for dairyproducers to England, Scotland and Wales. The 15-day tour will leave the U.S. Sept. 13.

Called "The Dairy Farming Event '82," The show will be held on England's National Agricultural Showgrounds in Warwickshire. The site also is used for continuous agricultural research including management and housing studies. Exhibits and demonstrations on breeding, feeding, recording and accounting, farm machinery, milking equipment, and latest developments in the use of micro-processors and computers, plus some of the world's finest dairy cattle will be featured.

Tour member also will visit dairy farms in Scotland, Wales and England with a chance to talk with farmers and inspect herds.

Another highlight of the tour will be an overnight stay with farm hosts in Herefordshire. One or two couples will visit with each farmer overnight and get a firsthand look at the farming operation.

Major sightseeing in the British Isles will be included. Cities to be visited include Edinburgh, Ruthin, Bath, Stratford-Upon-Avon and London.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"This place looks like a game refuge," groaned the teenager as we entered the garden one day last week to pick and pluck the fruits of earlier planting labors.

Overnight, the peas, string beans, raspberries, carrots, broccoli, zucchini cauliflower — plus ample weeds — had propagated and were screaming for attention.

Something else was screaming, too.

It was a guinea hen, exiting the buffet of bugs that dine on the vegetable plants, and squawking her displeasure at our intrusion into her brunch dessert.

She wasn't eating alone. A bevy of colorful bantam roosters was noisily departing the back end of the patch, boasting and quarreling among themselves, as usual, over some irrelevant argument.

Pockmarked between the ample traces of lettuce-loving bunnies were craters left when the steers made a pasture-prison break and, with all the farm to roam across, had selected you-know-who's muddy garden.

Parting of the lush growth in the bean row revealed handfuls of long, crisp purple "Royalty" string beans, framing the adorable face of the gray-black, striped tiger kitten. Dubbed Sir Don Gato, after a fourth-grade music song about a brave, adventurous cat, he's my favorite of this year's abundant kitten crop, and turns up wherever we happen to be working.

Plus, he'd brought along his brothers and sisters who soon discovered that hands and arms searching through the bean bushes make great targets for pouncing practice.

Shortly, Fritz arrived on the scene to add his doggy two cents, chasing a couple of kittens up the raspberry post, just to remind us that he was worthy of a trifle of attention as well.

When four of the kittens, along with a mother cat, curled up beneath me as I crouched and crawled along the row, harvest had to halt a moment while I extricated myself from the pile of fur.

"Good grief, I feel like a mother hen with her chicks all hiding under her wing."

"Or maybe like an old cluck" came back an instant second opinion from the garden assistant.

Move over Rodney Dangerfield. I "don't get no respect" either.

Beekeepers swarm to DVC

DOYLESTOWN — Favored by fine weather, the Delaware Valley College three day-beekeeping short course attracted more than 100 people. Included in this group were people of all ages and backgrounds from seven states.

Kelly Barr, the Pennsylvania Honey Queen, set up an attractive display, contributed comments to the short course, and talked with those taking the course.

Also, attending the course for one day was Imkermeister Pieritz and his son Chris, West Germans who were spending five weeks visiting various beekeepers and beekeeping operations on the East Coast.

The course, one of two beekeeping short courses offered each year by Delaware Valley College, generated much interest and enthusiasm in honey bees and in beekeeping. There were many experienced beekeepers in the group as well as many novices.

The course was under the direction of Robert Berthold, assistant chairman of the biology department at the College. He was assisted by Jack Matthenius, the New Jersey supervisor of beeculture; Chuck Whitbeck, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture bee inspector; Frank Makowski, commercial beekeeper and bee supply dealer from Belvidere, N.J.; and Alex Houston, long time beekeeper and bee supply dealer from Hilltown, Pa.

Due to response, Delaware Valley College plans to again offer their spring and summer courses in 1983. Anyone interested in information when it is available can write to Bees, Delaware Valley College, Doylestown, PA 18901.

CCC drops loan interest rate

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Commodity and farm storage loans disbursed in July by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 13.5 percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank.

The new rate, down from 13.625 percent, reflects the interest rate charged by CCC by the U.S. Treasury in July, Rank said.

The PRIME LINE

Dover to host Young Farmers

DOVER — More than 400 Young Farmers from throughout Pennsylvania are expected for the statewide summer conference being hosted by the Dover Chapter in York County next Friday and Saturday.

The conference will feature a diversified program of farm and industrial tours, a banquet and chicken barbecue and volleyball and horseshoe tournaments.

The Friday evening banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Wise Haven Banquet Center and the noon chicken barbecue next Saturday will be held at the York County 4-H Center. Most events, including registration, meetings, exhibits and displays are planned at the 4-H Center.

Attending Young Farmers will be given a choice of two scheduled tours of York County farms and industries on Friday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Tour "A" on Friday will include the poultry, potato and grain operation of Master Farmer George Wolf, the York County sanitary landfill which is destined for agricultural use and the limestone mining operation of the J. E. Baker Co.

Tour "B" on Friday includes the swine and steer operation of Jerry and Carolyn Rutter, the Thomasville Stone and Lime Co. and Martin's Potato Chip Co.

The Friday evening banquet at Wise Haven, featuring a ham and beef buffet, will also include musical entertainment by the White Rose Four.

Next Satutrday from 8:30 a.m. to noon, the Young Farmers will also have a choice of two tours.

One of the tours will cover the grain farm of Gary Huntsberger, the Wayne and Jed Beshore dairy farm and casket-making at the York-Hoover Corporation.

An alternate tour will visit many historical sites in York, including Plough Tavern, General Gates House, Trinity Church, Farmers's Market, the Bonham House and the York County Historical Society.

Following the chicken barbecue at the 4-H Center, the Young Farmers will compete in volleyball and horseshoe tournaments.

New strategy fights lagging lamb leg sales

DENVER, Colo., — The lamb industry is facing its traditional slump, aggravated by a drop in leg of lamb sales. But as summer temperatures rise so could sales because of a new leg of lamb push.

National market reports show live lamb prices have dropped 10 percent since mid-May, off $7 a head. This computes to $770,000 a week in losses.

The American Sheep Producers Council is trying a new marketing strategy to turn those dismal figures around. Their campaign is aimed at getting Americans to think of lamb on the outdoor grill, instead of just in the kitchen oven.

It is an effort to push a new feature for the summer cookout — the leg of lamb family pack. It consists of sirloin chops, a center cut roast, and shish kabob cubes or a boneless rolled and tied leg, rotisserie ready.

The American Sheep Producers Council is the nation's promotional arm of the Sheep Industry, funded by Sheep Producers throughout the country.

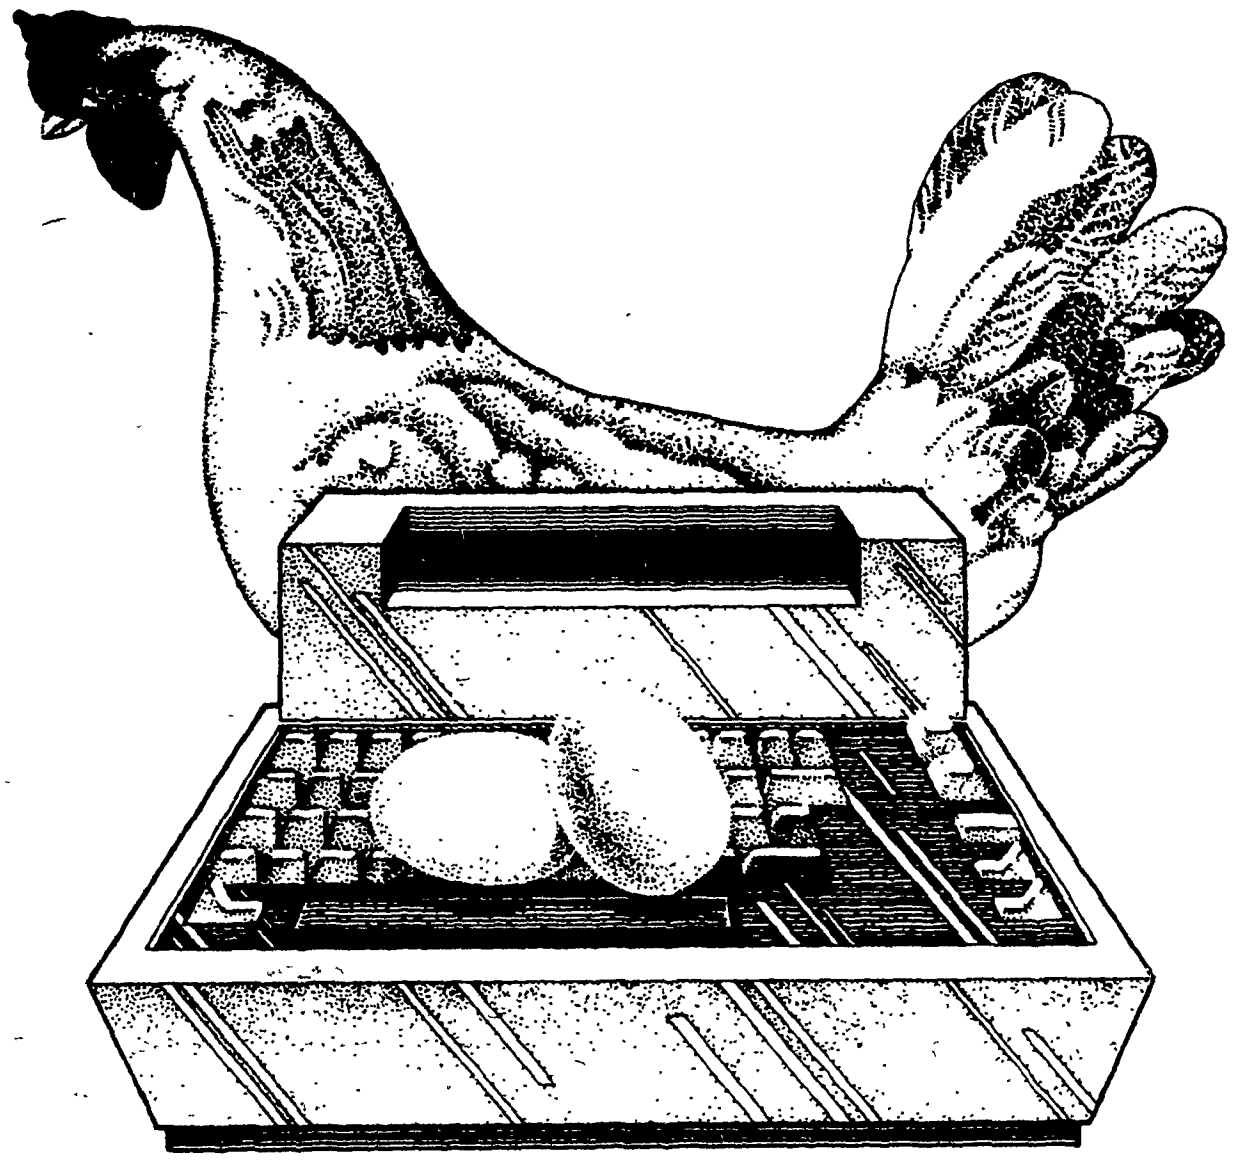
The BAM Way To Improve Egg Production



The BAM Feeding and Management System from Wayne® Feeds is a unique way to optimize hen performance. Combining nutritional knowledge with computer technology, the BAM system predicts your birds' energy requirements. It then objectively determines the proper feeding program to meet those needs at the least cost.

Based on specific flock information, or "vital signs," BAM tailors a program to your hens' particular needs. Using this input, BAM can also help you make valuable management decisions about your operation.

Another very helpful feature of the BAM system is the Cash Flow Program, which enables you to forecast income and expenses for a full lay cycle. This can greatly assist you and your banker in making financial decisions.

With your first feed order, your Wayne Feeds representative can give you a BAM Starter Kit, which helps you collect the flock data needed by the computer. With that, you've taken the first step toward improved egg production.

The BAM Feeding and Management System should give you more control of your operation and your profit operation and your profit potential. Call us today and let us show you how.

Bankert tops York 4-H Hog Round-up

STEWARTSTOWN — Greg Bankert left Sechrist Sales auction Monday evening $450 richer after selling his overall champion 4-H round-up hog to Hatfield Packing Company for $2.00 per pound.

The 230-pound Chester-Duroc crossbred was one of five 4-H project hogs owned by the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bankert, R3, Hanover. It was the second champion winner shown by the third-year 4-H member who owns about 20 head of hogs, caring for them and helping with the family herd between his fifth grade studies at Heidelberg Elementary School.

Young Bankert's prize-winner edged out an entry by older brother, Brian, to win the heavyweight division, before claiming the top honors.

Reserve champion overall market hog was the entry of Dana Holloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Holloway, R1, New Freedom. Three Sons Meat Market R2, York bid last at $1.51 for the pink-rosette winner.

Dana is twelve-years-old and a third-year member of the 4-H swine project club. Her winning hog had earlier won a purple ribbon topping all other medium-weight entries, over reserve winner Gus Parlett.

She also captured top honors in the pairs class, with Three Sons Meat Market buying those two champions for 87 cents per pound.

The three dozen 4-H market round-up entries averaged 79 cents, with the champion price, and 73 cents without the top bid. Hog buyers also included Snyders Feed Mill, Godfrey Brothers, Kesslers, Raymond Thomas and Spangler and Sprenkle Feeds, Inc.

Gus Parlett took top fitting honors in the intermediate age division, and topped senior division winner Mike Burgard in the runoff for the fitting championship. Junior age group fitting winner was Mike Parzer.

Brian Bankert won his senior division in showmanship and then took champion honors over intermediate category winner Kim Ferrence. Junior division winner in showmanship was Marcy Spahr.

In the lightweight hog class, Gary Burgard topped his brother Mike Burgard for the champion honors. Mike took blues in two of the lightweight classes, yielding the third class to Gary.

In addition to her mediumweight champion, Dana Holloway also won a second mediumweight class. Winner of the third mediumweight class was Gus Parlett, whose entry then took the reserve honors in that division.

Heavyweight class winners Greg and Brian Bankert edged out the third blue-ribbon winner Dana Holloway in that division for champion and reserve heavyweight awards.

Dana Holloway's winning pair topped four other contenders in that division. Second was Mike Burgard, followed by Gary Burgard, Gus Parlett and Shelley Bankert. — JB

Franklin Co. begins Horsemanship for Handicapped program

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG — Most handicapped youth and adults in Franklin County had never experienced the thrill, satisfaction and challenge of being on horseback until the opening of the Horsemanship for the Handicapped riding program supervised by the Franklin County 4-H clubs and the Easter Seal Society.

On Saturday, June 19, volunteers involved with the program held an open hosue and dedication of the new facility for the public.

Following is a poem included in a pamphlet which was distributed at Franklin County's open house for handicapped riding.

I saw a child who couldn't walk sit on a horse, laugh and talk then ride it through a field of daisies and yet he could not not walk unaided.

sit on a horse, and make it go through woods of green and places he had never been to sit and stare, except from a chair.

I saw a child who could only crawl
mount a horse and sit up tall.
Put it through degrees of paces and laugh at the wonder on our faces.

I saw a child born into strife take up and hold the reins of life and that same child, I heard him say
Thank God for showing me the way....

John Anthony Davies

Bradley Boyd, program participant, mounts Pokey to demonstrate some of his horsemanship skills during the opening day of the facility.

After viewing a similar type of therapy program in the state of Michigan, the only one in the United States at that time, the Franklin County 4-H'ers felt they had the ability and knowledge of horsemanship to undertake such a project. So, in February of 1980 a joint committee of representatives of Easter Seal and 4-H joined together to establish a program of therapy using horses.

Franklin County Commissioners were impressed with the program and donated the use of 1.5 acres of land at the county farm on which to establish such a program. Robert Kessler, Franklin County agent said that funds were raised for building materials through cookie sales, ham sandwich sales, business and individual donations. Through a CETA youth grant, monies were secured for the labor.

In April, the building began, and to date the facility has four box stalls, one hay storage, a mounting area and an office. Kessler added, "There are still some finishing touches to be completed, but we are all very pleased with the youth's work in building the facility."

The program has been underway for a year. Horses were donated by Nina Hill, Chambersburg, Mr. and Mrs. Sheet of Newville, and Tempel Farms of Illinois who donated two Lippizan animals.

Under the instruction of volunteers Nina Hill, Karen Stull and others, six children - three boys and three girls with various disabilities attend the program each Saturday morning at the facilities on Franklin Farm Lane in Chambersburg.

The six children range in age from five to twelve and are taught the basic skills of riding.

The primary purpose of the program is to use horseback riding as therapy to enhance or supplement other forms of therapy and to make the experience as enjoyable as possible for the rider.

Karen Appleman, state coordinator for the Horsemanship for the Handicapped Program said, "These handicapped children are experiencing freedom for the first time and it is exciting to see." Appleman was impressed with Franklin County's facilities as well as the whole State of Pennsylvania. She stated that Pennsylvania has become a leader in the handicapped program with 28 facilities in operation. Appleman stated, "We have more than doubled our handicapped horsemanship facilities in 2 years, when there was only 10 facilities in the state."

Franklin County Commissioner Fred Rock and program participant, Bardley Boyd cut the dedication ribbon officially opening the Horsemanship for Handicapped facility on Saturday, June 19.

Bradley Boyd, a participant of the program demonstrates his skills at the open house. Once he is suited up with his riding helmet and safety belt, he is ready to go. Bradley mounts his favorite horse, Pokey, from the mounting block and is now ready to ride assisted by three volunteer escorts, two on his side and one leader.

Bradley demonstrates his skills using the reins to turn the horse in circles, plays Simon-Says with the Instructor and completes other simple movements that will help improve his balance, coordination, endurance and strength.

Appleman remarked, "The horse is an equalizer to the handicapped; on the horse the children feel that they can do things that normal children can do."

Sarah Wenger, another participant, appears to be developing a genuine love for horses according to her parents. Sarah's mother reports that Sarah grins from ear to ear now when horses are mentioned.

FFA chapters report contest winners

LANCASTER — Various Future Farmers of America Chapters in both New Jersey and Pennsylvania report winners in various contests conducted at their respective state FFA conventions held recently.

The New Jersey convention was held on the campus of Rutgers University, while the Pennsylvania FFA Activities Week was held at Penn State.

Among chapters forwarding reports of winners are:

Attending the New Jersey state convention from the Belvidere Chapter were Michelle Lucas, Tammy Disbrow, Carole Schanzlin, Jack Burdge, Ed March, Tom Hartung, Don Duckworth, Chris March, Mark Lucas, Greg Goodman, Darrin Volk, Chereen Sauck, Jim Cowell and Janet Johnson, state secretary. Advisors Bryan Leh and Mike Ridge also attended.

Chapter awards won by the Belvidere FFA'ers included a second in the National Chapter Evaluation competition, second in public relations, named as superior chapter, third in National Chapter Safety and a first-place regional award and a fourth in the state in BOAC competition.

Individual and team awards included a first by the livestock judging team composed of Chris March, who placed first; Chereen Sauck, second; and Ed March, fourth. The team will compete in the Eastern Regional Contest at Springfield, Mass. Sept. 17-19 and at Kansas City in November.

Other individual awards included a fourth in poultry judging for Alan Sauck, a fourth for Don Duckworth in tractor driving, the State Farmer Degree to Jim Cowell, Tammy Disbrow, Michelle Lucas, Chereen Sauck, the American Farmer Degree to Albert Steckel and the award as the 1982 New Jersey FFA Advisor of the Year to Bryan Leh.

Warwick FFA

Winners from the Warwick Chapter in Lititz at the Pennsylvania FFA Activities Week included Linda Ehrgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ehrgood, Owl Hill Road, Lititz, sixth, gold medal, horse judging; Dean Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Long. Briar Hill Road, Lititz, seventh, silver, meats judging; Dave Spoo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Spoo, Church Road, Lititz, seventh, silver, wildlife; and Darrell Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Snyder, Kissel Hill Road, Lititz, gold medal as member of Lancaster County softball team which won state title.

Also attending from Warwick Chapter were Mark Seigford in forestry snd Mike Pfautz, horse judging.

Upper Bucks FFA

Among awards won by members of the Upper Bucks Tech FFA Chapter at Perkasie were:

Larry Shelmire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shelmire Jr., Quakertown, won a fifth-place gold medal in the tractor driving competition.

Eric Powers, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Janney, Ottsville, took an honorable mention in the meats judging.

Dwayne Helm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Helm, Quakertown, also received an honorable mention in the livestock judging.

Other chapter participants were Greg Tyson, Ottsville, meats judging; Kris Shive, Quakertown, dairy showmanship; Diane Mumbauer, Quakertown, horse judging.

Twin Valley FFA

Nine members of the Twin Valley Chapter at R2 Elverson earned awards and the chapter, along with reporter Pam Trostle, were recognized for submitting the most articles to the state FFA magazine during the past year.

Rod Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stoltzfus, R2 Elverson, placed seventh in livestock judging. As a gold medal winner, he will be one of three students to represent the state this fall at the Atlantic Rural Exposition Livestock Judging Contest in Richmond, Va.

Pam Trostle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Trostle, R1 Mohnton, received a third-place gold medal in wildlife.

Also, Greg Raser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Raser, R1 Glenmore, fourth, silver, salesmanship; Wade Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bernard, R2 Elverson, eighth, bronze, agronomy; Dave Sowa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sowa, R1 Birdsboro, 19th bronze, forestry; Kevin Griest, son of Mr.and Mrs. Howard Griest Jr., R1 Honey Brook, bronze, small gas engines.

Honorable mention awards went to Ron Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bennett, Elverson, wildlife; Dave Noyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Noyes, R2 Elverson, poultry judging; Duane Aulenbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Aulenbach, R1 Birdsboro, small gas engines. The chapter's team also took an honorable mention in the small gas engines team competition.

Also attending the Activities Week at Penn State from the Twin Valley chapter were Brenda Werner and Kelly Matthes, members of the State FFA Band; Mary McMullen, member of the State FFA Chorus; Donald Stoltzfus, candidate for state office; Scott Stoltzfus, livestock judging; Lisa Yoder, interview contest; Tom Hornberger, meats contest; Ronald Frederick, advisor, and Mrs. Frederick as chaperones.

Late corn vulnerable to second brood borers

NEWARK, Del. — Last year, field corn suffered more damage than usual from second generation European corn borers. Injury took the form of ear drop and stalk breakages.

University of Delaware Extension pest management specialist Mark Graustein warns second brood ECB could again be a problem this season. He advises growers to be on the lookout for signs of infestation — either eggs or larvae. Light second-generation moth activity began the last week in June.

"Research in the Midwest and elsewhere indicates that the ECB generally has little effect on yield if it attacks plants after the brown silk stage," Graustein says.

Because conditions early in the season delayed development of last year's corn crop, second generation ECB was able to infest it before plants had reached that stage. Cool weather in June this year has again put corn behind its normal growth for this time in July, leaving plants vulnerable to the borer.

"Usually, second brood infestation occurs during the first two or three weeks in July," the specialist says. "The longer it takes corn to reach the brown silk stage in July, the more susceptible it is to second brood damage."

The entomologist recommends that farmers examine plants routinely from tassle to brown silk for signs of either ECB eggs or larvae. "In general," he says, "we don't recommend treatment unless 50 percent or more plants have one or more egg masses."

The egg masses are creamy white, about a quarter-inch or less in diameter, and irregular in shape. They're usually laid near the midrib on the underside of the leaf.

"We recommend growers check at least 20 consecutive plants in five places in a field for egg masses or the presence of live borers," Graustein says. Check the middle third of each plant from leaves two nodes above the ear to leaves two nodes below it. Check for live borers in the leaf axils in this section of the plant.

"You may not actually see the larvae, but you'll see their injury or frass," he says. Treat if 50 percent or more plants are infested.

In deciding whether or not to treat, remember that the closer the corn is to brown silk, the less impact the borer will have on yield. Also, the closer to brown silk, the less effective controls from a spray application will be. Two applications 10 days apart are necessary to get a high level of control.

"Even though this may be a year when corn is particularly susceptible to second generation borer attack, it may still not pay to treat, when all factors are considered," Graustein says. These factors include the cost of control, only a moderate degree of anticipated control if there's time for just one treatment, and the projected price of corn.

High management corn growing under irrigation is most likely to benefit, if treatment is called for. In this case, the pest management specialist strongly recommends making two applications if possible.

Insecticides labeled for control of second generation ECB include: Furadan 10G, 10 lb./acre (aerial); Dyfonate 20G, 5 lb./acre (aerial); Diazinon, 14 lb./acre (aerial); and Sevin 80S, 2.5 lb./acre (aerial or through irrigation system).

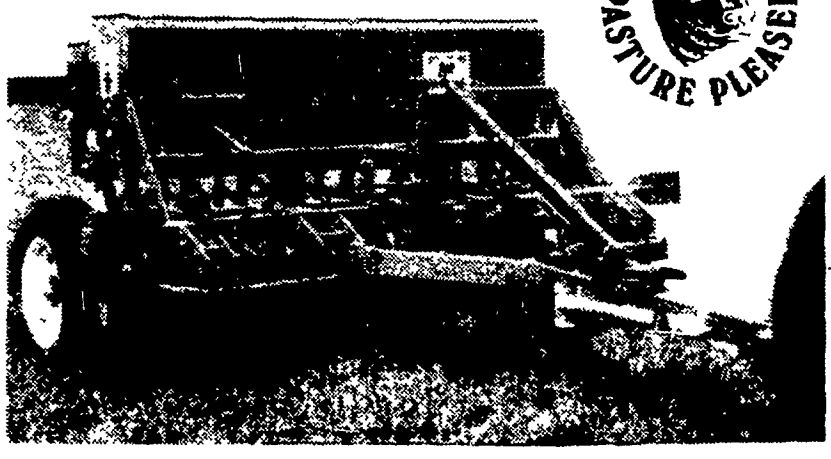
One Pasture Pleaser is all you need to seed pasture land and stubble plant wheat, sorghum & soybeans

The Tye Pasture Pleaser is the year 'round planter...
* just right for spring pasture renovation
* just right for spring no till planting
* just right for fall pasture renovation
* just right for fall no till planting



Tye sets the pace in pasture renovators

The Pasture Pleaser overseeds (or interseeds) in sod, earth, permanent or improved pasture. The Pasture Pleaser has what it takes:
* Independently spring loaded, swivel coulters and a spring loaded drive coulter cut through vegetation and roots to allow the double disc openers to deposit seeds at a shallow depth with minimum disturbance.
* Adjustable internally fluted seeders dispense the seed evenly—alfalfa, clover, oats, bird's-foot trefoil, grass, lespedeza, small grains along with soybeans and most other varieties.
* Independently spring loaded press wheels firm the soil around the seed to help assure proper seed germination

Models: 80" and 160" with 8" and 10" spacing in 3-point and pull type hitches
For over 16 years farmers have been counting on Tye for tough, reliable equipment

USDA seeks comments on ASCS programs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has called for public comment on proposals for conservation, emergency conservation and water bank programs administered by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

According to ASCS Administrator Everett Rank, the deadline for receiving comments is Sept. 9. Rank said USDA will hold a public meeting here Sept. 9 to discuss recommendations by state and county conservation review groups on these three programs.

Conservation review groups — formerly known as program development groups — were formed to help USDA carry out rural conservation and environmental programs, Rank said. These groups have the responsibility for developing recommendations on program changes, changes in administrative procedures, policy guidelines and evaluations of program effectiveness and operating arrangements, he said.

Rank said conservation cost-share assistance is offered to encourage eligible farmers to voluntarily perform soil and water conservation, pollution abatement, emergency conservation and wildlife measures. Under the program, USDA shares the cost of such work with farmers who ordinarily would not or could not perform needed conservation practices without the federal assistance, he said.

Because of space limitations, persons interested in attending the meeting should make reservations, Rank said. To reserve space and for additional information contact the director of the conservation and environmental protection division, ASCS, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C., 20013, phone 202-447-6221.

The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in room 4960 of USDA's South Building.

Pa. reports less wheat, corn

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania farmers on June 1 indicated they will harvest more acres of rye and hay, the same acreage of soybeans and fewer acres of corn, wheat, oats, barley and tobacco based on last year's figures, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Acreages to be harvested and percent change from last year are as follows: corn, 1,370,000 acres, down two percent; wheat, 228,000 acres, down 16 percent; oats, 335,000 acres, down three percent; barley, 72,000 acres, down five percent; soybeans; 100,000 acres, unchanged; rye, 12,000 acres, up nine percent; tobacco, 13,000 acres, down two percent; and hay, 2,000,000 acres, up three percent.

At the United States level corn growers plan to harves 73.6 million acres for grain in 1982, down one percent from 1981. Feed-grain (corn, sorghum, oats and barley) acreage, placed at 106 million acres, is fractionally below last year. Winter wheat acreage for harvest, at a record high 59.0 million acres is one percent above last year. Food-grain (wheat, rice and rye) acreage is placed at 83.5 million acres.

Md. herbicide application knocks out weeds

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — If two days last week are any indication of what fate awaits the bane of summer farm crops and home gardens, most farmers and home do-it-yourselfers may be seeing some light soon at the end of the tunnel in the perrenial battle to eliminate weeds.

Hundreds of Maryland farmers, agribusiness people tromped through test plots over a 150-mile swath of the state where research scientists from the University of Maryland are looking for new and improved ways to kill the stubborn weeds, choking growth in corn, soybeans, vegetables and some fruit crops. Their tour was part of the annual "Weed Science Caravan" held by the University at four state research centers.

Most of the new experimental herbicides under study by scientists for the university's Agricultural Experiment Station are chemical controls applied after weeds appear, according to Ronald L. Ritter, MAES weed scientist and an assistant professor of agronomy at the University.

And, he said, some of these "post-emergent" herbicides hold some promise of relief.

At MAES's Wye Research Center near Queenstown, for example, representatives from agrichemical companies saw some of these experimental compounds' success in plots of corn and soybeans.

But for corn farmers yearning for a cure now, Ritter says new application methods, using chemicals on the commercial market now, are reaping rewards in the battle of the weeds.

Experimental equipment now under study at the Wye Research Center was able to knock down thick weed growth in waist-high corn without damaging the crop.

Using three commercially-available herbicides — Lorox, Paraquat and Evik — this equipment, called a "post-directed rig," concentrated its spray away from corn plants and virtually eliminated weeds in test plots, according to Ritter.

The weed caravan tours are a cooperative effort of MAES with the University's departments of agronomy and horticulture and cover MAES's Vegetable Research Farm at Salisbury, the Poplar Hill Research Farm near Quantico, the Plant Research Farm at Silver Spring and the Wye Research Center, Queenstown.

This plot has been treated with a commercially available herbicide applied with experimental equipment at the Wye Research Center, Queenstown, Md. This equipment, called a "post-directed rig," enables farmers to apply knockdown weed control chemicals to rampant weeds even when corn plants have reached 3-4 feet. Here with Dr. Ritter is Jim Bryan, right, sales representative for the Dupont Co.'s biochemicals department, a participant in the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station's weed caravan.

Before, this test plot of corn was an example of a weed problem out of control, according to Dr. Ronald L. Ritter, MAES scientist and an assistant professor of agronomy for the University of Maryland.

Farming's Futures

By David K. Sauder
Commodity Broker
Trade Tech, Lancaster

The first step in using futures markets more effectively is to study the local basis — the difference between the futures market price for a selected month and the local spot market price.

This basis is a key to building a better marketing plan, regardless of whether that plan involves hedging in futures.

Why is basis so useful as a marketing guide? Because it's more predictable from year to year than the movement of either cash or futures prices.

Basis is expressed as cents under or cents over price quotations for "nearby futures" (the nearest maturing futures contract) or for a specified futures contract month.

Keep records of prices

To develop a guide to your local basis patterns, record and compare daily or weekly local cash prices against the futures market quotations for your commodity over the last year — better still, over the last three years.

Because futures contracts mature in different months, basis patterns should be examined for each contract maturity month. Your state Extension service may already have done this for past years, or you can record cash prices form Lancaster Farming to keep your records current.

If the data are charted for any futures contract month, the two lines showing cash and futures prices will move roughly in parallel, with the cash price typically below the futures price. Even with the generally parallel movement, basis varies quiet a lot.

A basis chart or table can serve as an early warning signal of potential problems or opportunities in marketing crops. If the basis is narrowing, it may herald a good profit opportunity. If it is widening, farmers should look for the reason.

A market indicator

Many farmers use futures markets and basis patterns as an information source, preferring to "speculate" on the prices of their cash commodities. Others use futures indirectly, through forward contracts, basis contracts, or deferred pricing arrangements with cash market buyers.

Even if you deal strictly in the cash market, the local basis pattern can be an important pricing tool. For example, if you're being offered a cash price of 50 cents under and you know the local basis at that time of year should be around 45 cents under, you might want to shop around to see if you can get a better price somewhere else.

There may be a good reason why the local basis isn't typical — such as tight storage due to a transportation backup in your area — but it's also possible that the buyer's offer reflects his particular situation and is under the local market price.

Price protection

Basis patterns are particularly important to the hedger. Through hedging, you can use the futures market to protect yourself against any major adverse price movements and to take advantage of normal basis patterns.

Some examples will make this clearer. In early June the cash price for corn at some points was around $2.40 per bushel and the futures market was offering $2.92 for December 1980 corn at Chicago — a basis of 52 cents under.

Let's consider what a farm family that had just planted a few hundred acres of corn might have done back in June. If they planned to market their corn crop locally sometime in late November but expected cash prices to drop by fall, they might have examined their basis figures.

If, from their records, they expected their local basis on December futures to be around 42 cents under in late November, they might have used a futures hedge for part of their expected crop to try to lock in a price of $2.50 per bushel (the current futures price of $2.92 minus the expected late November basis of 42 cents).

To do this, let's say they decided to sell December futures contracts equal to half their expected fall harvest. Why not all of their expected crop? Because hedging only a portion of their expected crop protects them against heavy losses in futures.

Hedging the whole crop

Suppose they hedged every bushel they expected to harvest. If the national crop falls short of expectations, futures (and cash) prices could rise by harvesttime. That would mean the family would lose money on the futures market. And if their own crop also fell short of the quantity they hedged, they would have no offset for that part of their crop in the cash market.

Our sample family played it safe. After they placed their hedge, it doesn't matter whether cash or futures prices rise or fall for the hedged part of their crop.

As long as their basis prediction is accurate, they will get the price they seek — $2.50 per bushel (minus 2 or 3 cents for brokerage fees and interest on the margin deposit). Any losses or gains in cash prices will be offset by equivalent losses or gains in futures.

We'll continue this discussion next week.

U. of Md. welcomes new ag dean

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The University of Maryland Board of Regents has approved President John S. Toll's appointment of Donald A. Hegwood is dean of the College of Agriculture on the College Park Campus. A horticulture expert with over 23 years of research, teaching and agricultural extension experience, Hegwood has been horticulture department chairman at the University of Missouri — Columbia since 1977.

He will take over the deanship at Maryland on Sept. 1 from Larry N. Vanderhoef, provost of the Divison of Agricultural and Life Sciences, who has been serving as acting dean during a national search for a permanent heat of the agriculture college.

"Hegwood has shown outstanding capabilities in developing innovative research and teaching programs, as well as in expanding public understanding of the importance of agriculture's role to our society," said College Park Chancellor Robert L. Gluckstern in nominating the new dean.

"His longtime managerial experience in Cooperative Extension Service and Agricultural Experiment Station programs will enhance the many cooperative efforts between the University of Maryland and the state's agricultural community."

As agriculture dean, Hegwood will administer the instruction programs of a college with more than 1,600 undergraduate students and 12 academic degree programs. These programs include agricultural chemistry, agricultural engineering, agricultural and extension education, agricultural and resource economics, agronomy, animal science, conservation and resource development, dairy science, food science, general agriculture, horticulture, and poultry science.

He will also oversee the Institute of Applied Agriculture, a two-year vocational-technical certificate program with an enrollment of approximately 135 students.

In addition to his responsibilities for all agriculture teaching functions at the 1862 land-grant university, Hegwood will serve as a member of the Agricultural Administrative group, chaired by the vice-president for agricultural affairs, and the UMCP Agricultural Coordinating Committee, chaired by the provost of the Division of Agricultural and Life Sciences.

The 56-year-old native of southeast Mississippi is a specialist in the development of intensified production systems for vegetable crops through studies of germination, growth, mineral nutrition, soil moisture, and plant adaptability.

He received his B.S. degree in 1954 and his M.S. in 1959, both from Mississippi State University. He earned a Ph.D. degree from Louisiana State University in 1965 and served as assistant professor of horticulture at LSU from 1964 to 1967.

From 1967 to 1970 Hegwood was assistant professor, University of Georgia Cooperative Extension Service, during which time he planned and conducted grower meetings nad training sessions with county Extension agents. He also served as state chairman for the National Junior Horticultural Assn. From 1970 to 1972, as assistant professor with the University of Georgia's Coastal Plain Experiment Station at Tifton, Ga., he conducted research on snap and lima beans and participated in many programs for growers and agricultural business leaders.

From 1972 to 1975 his research in the horticulture department at the University of Georgia concentrated on mineral nutrition of horticultural crops and commercial vegetable production.

In 1975 Hegwood was appointed associate professor at Mississippi State University's Department of Horticulture, and in 1977 he became professor and chairman of the Department of Horticulture at the University of Missouri.

He is author or co-author of more than 50 articles appearing in horticultural and agronomy journals and has served in a leadership capacity for professional groups including the American Society for Horticultural Science, International Society for Horticultural Science, Soil Science Society of America, Crop Science Society of America, and the American Forestry Association.

Hegwood was born at Sunrall, Miss. He is married to the former Frances Burke of Natchez, Miss. They are the parents of three sons.

Adams Farmers' Assn. meets

GETTYSBURG — At their monthly meeting, the Adams County Farmers' Association came out in favor of the Sunshine Law and the continuation of open meetings. The county association's local affairs chairman Arthur Musselman urged members to seek legislative support.

The Association is preparing for its summer picnic to be held July 19 at 7 p.m. at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

The local farmers also are concentrating their thoughts on policy proposals which are being submitted to chairman Fred Scott of R1 Littlestown. Deadline for mailing suggestions to Scott is Sept. 1, so that the proposals can be readied for the county's annual meeting, tentatively set for Oct. 5.

The Adams Association nominated Howard Waybright for the Outstanding Service to Agriculture award to be presented by the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association at the November annual meeting.

In discussing low-interest farm loan legislation, Adams Farmers' Association President Mervin Myers said, "Young farmers just trying to get started may benefit if money is available for borrowing. At the high interest rates today, a young farmer finds it very hard to get into the business."

LANCASTER — Ever wonder how the judges at the county fair know whose home preserves are the winners? If you know ahead of time, yours might be the best of show this year.

Here are some tips from Gerald D. Kuhn, Extension food science specialist at Penn State:

— Exhibit in standard canning jars, sealed with vacuum of self-sealing lids, but with screw or ring bands removed — that means no paraffin.

— Pack full to within ¼ inch of top. The surface should be free of foam and food should not be in contact with the underside of the lid.

— The fruit should hold its shape, should be somewhat translucent, the color should be characteristic of the fruit and free from discoloration caused by overcooking or improper storage. The flavor of the fruit should be characteristic of its type, and its texture should be tender.

— The syrup should be clear but of a color characteristic of the fruit and it should be free of sediment. The consistency of the syrup can vary from that of honey to a semi-jelly, and the fruit should be well distributed throughout.

Warm weather pushes grain harvest ahead

HARRISBURG — The week ending July 4 produced the warmest weather so far this season and allowed farmers across the Commonwealth an average of four days for field activities, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. Topsoil moisture for the week was rated mostly adequate to surplus.

Soybeans in Pennsylvania are 92 percent planted compared with 94 percent last year. In the northern region soybean planting is virtually complete, in the central region 88 percent is planted, and in the southern region 92 percent is planted.

Cool weather has slowed corn growth somewhat, but overall, the crop still looks good. Corn averaged 23 inches high in the state compared with 26 inches last year. Corn in the northern, central and southern regions averaged 18, 23 and 31 inches respectively.

Statewide, 29 percent of the barley crop is ripe and eight percent is harvested compared with 34 percent ripe and 26 percent harvested last year. In the northern region 15 percent is ripe and less than five percent is harvested. In the central region 15 percent is ripe and five percent is harvested, while in the southern region 68 percent is ripe and 23 percent is harvested.

Statewide, 62 percent of the wheat crop is turning yellow and eight percent is ripe compared with 57 percent turning yellow and 20 percent ripe last year. In the northern region 51 percent is turning yellow and less than five percent is ripe. In the central region 70 percent is turning yellow and less than five percent is ripe, while in the southern region 64 percent is turning yellow and 24 percent is ripe.

The Commonwealth's oat crop is 77 percent headed and five percent turning yellow compared with 74 percent headed and 12 percent turning yellow last year. In the northern region 67 percent is headed and less than 5 percent is turning yellow. In the central region 93 percent is headed and less than five percent is turning yellow, while in the southern region 70 percent is headed and 17 percent is turning yellow.

First crop alfalfa is 79 percent harvested compared with 88 percent last year, while second crop alfalfa is eight percent harvested compared with 21 percent last year. Statewide, first crop clover-timothy is 67 percent harvested compared with 78 percent last year. The quality of hay made in Pennsylvania during the week was rated fair by 67 percent of the reporters, good by 31 percent and poor by two percent. The amount of feed obtained from pastures was rated average by 67 percent of the reporters, above average by 31 percent and below average by two percent.

TWO MACHINES IN ONE !

KUHN GRS 21 GYROSTAR

RAKING -
Shift tine arms to horizontal position and lower rear deflectors for fast raking into a high loose windrow with no roping.

TEDDING, CONDITIONING -
Set tines in vertical position to pick up and bend stems (to condition) and spread in a wide fluffy swath for faster drying. Also spreads rained-on windrows to speed drying.

Covers 10 ft. width. Operates at 5 to 7 m.p.h.
Like all Kuhn machines, GYROSTAR is built to perform and built to last.

NEW GEHL BALERS

with T.D.C. - The Simple System

A round baler is a round baler! Right?

Wrong! There are a number of types of round balers available today Some balers form soft center bales by simply packing and packing the crop 'till the bale rolls up Some are belt balers that make very dense bales with tight core and wrap. And there are balers that use spikes and chains to form round bales. Only Gehl balers, with T D C give total Total Density Control, total operator control over the type of bale he makes - small core, less dense, more dense, or anywhere in between.

Hydraulic twine wrapping mechanism, bale counter, make the size bale you can handle

FARMERS REPORT MORE PRODUCTIVITY WITH AN INTERNATIONAL AXIAL-FLOW

Get More Bushels Per Day, More Bushels Per Acre, More Dollars Per Bushel, And More Bushels Per Gallon Of Fuel.

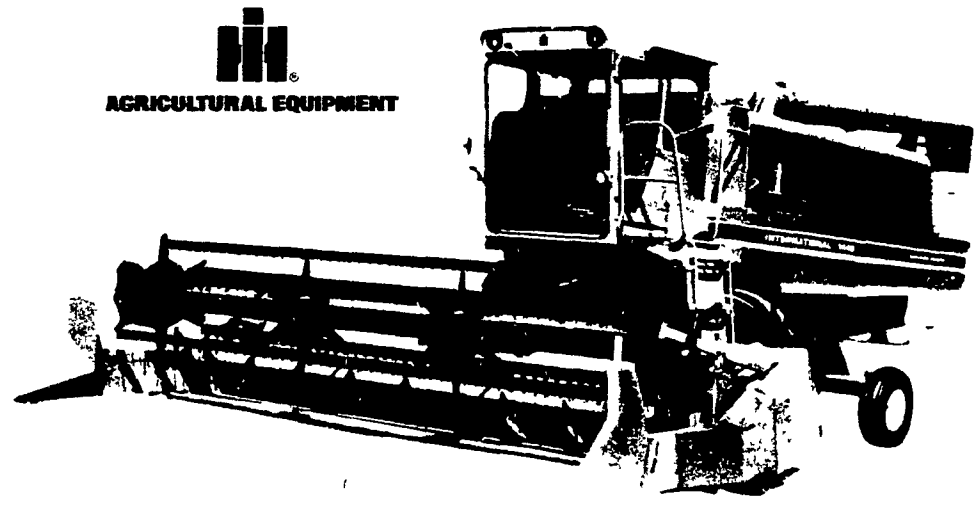
		1440 Vs. Class IV	1486 Vs. Class V	1486 Vs. Class V
More Bushels Per Day Percent increase in bushels per 10-hr. day	Corn	+33%	+21%	+35%
	Beans	+26%	+18%	+26%
More Bushels Per Acre Extra bushel from less grain loss	Corn	+.63 +.91 sidehill	+.56 +.76 sidehill	+.33 +.66 sidehill
	Beans	+.65 +.85 sidehill	+.58 +.87 sidehill	+.64 +.84 sidehill
More Dollars Per Bushel Increased value per bushel from less dockage	Corn	+1.8¢	+1.75¢	+1.53¢
	Beans	+1.8¢	+1.75¢	+1.53¢
More Bushels Per Gallon Percent increase in bushels per gallon	Corn	+39%	+25%	+28%
	Beans	+31%	+22%	+24%

*More than 1600 owners of Axial-Flow combines compared the productivity of their Axial-Flow combines with their prior combines. These facts are from the more than 1000 corn/bean farmers reporting.

Increased Productivity Does Not Always Have To Carry A Higher Price Tag. IH Combines Are About The Same Price As Comparable Conventional Combines.

AGRICULTURAL EQUIPMENT



THE FACTS ARE SIMPLE

Year after year more farmers are noticing the impressive results of International Axial-Flow Combines. When your neighbors get increased performance and productivity like outlined above, its no wonder that International Axial-Flow combines have earned the trust and admiration of farmers all over the East.

The New ROLL-A-MIX

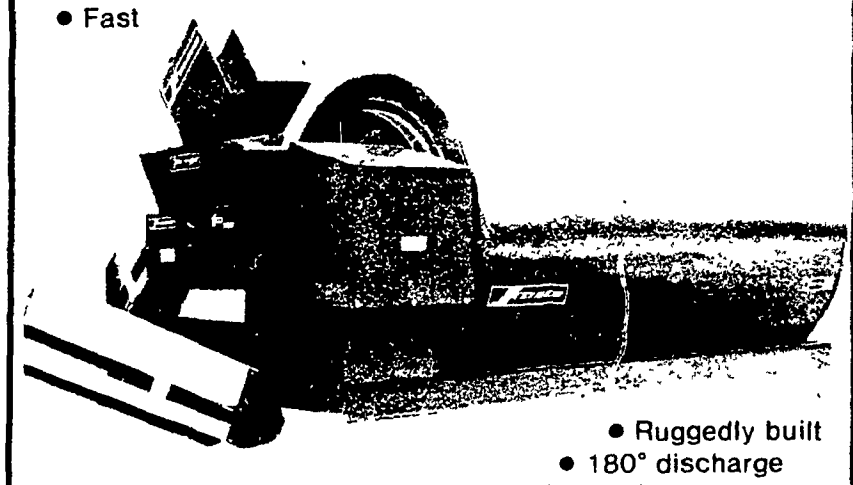
by STEINER

- Low power requirements
- Few moving parts
- Won't over mix
- Fast



- Ruggedly built
- 180° discharge
- On the farm proven

Low HP and less wear are two direct results of the tumbling action of the feed instead of the high resistance of conventional auger mixing

6 sizes — 45 80, 133, 216, 270 and 324 cu ft

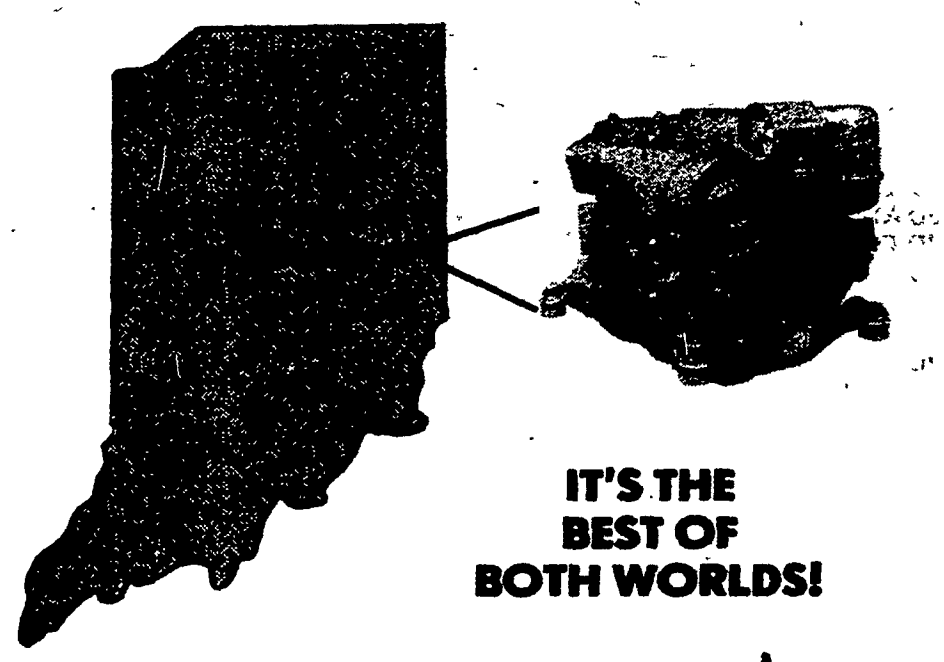
DEUTZ DIESELS FROM INDIANA?



IT'S THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS!

Deutz customers know from experience that Deutz diesels are a creation of German engineering and production craftsmanship. All those happy Deutz users will be even happier to learn that — NOW DEUTZ DIESELS ARE MADE IN USA - at an engine plant Deutz purchased in Richmond, Indiana.

Domestic production in the 20-160 hp range gives us and our Deutz customers a tremendous advantage over all other air-cooled diesels.

Invest in a sure thing - Deutz diesels have been famous for fuel economy and reliability since Amos Stauffer first sold Deutz diesels in this area - 25 years ago. We are equally famous for superb Deutz service.

Don't just buy a "bargain" diesel which is supposed to be "built like a Deutz". BUY A DEUTZ AND BE SURE YOU HAVE MADE A GOOD INVESTMENT. A Deutz diesel will usually recover the difference in price thru fuel savings alone within one year.

The Vicon KM-240 cuts and conditions the tallest, tangled, wettest, heaviest, hay. This new mower-conditioner eliminates a pick-up reel; so you can put up more hay - FASTER. With a working width of 7'10", it can mow twice as much area in a day as most competitive models. Most competitors use a pick-up reel, which limits ground speed, adds maintenance problems and allows leaf loss.

The Vicon six-disc cutter bar feeds your crop directly, stem first, into rubber rollers that condition green hay or wet grass. It dries faster and bales easier, saving time and labor.

The KM-240 has no chains, no belts, no sickle bar. If you need only a mower, look at the Vicon CM-165 (4 discs-5½' working width) or the CM-240 6 discs-7'10" working width). Both make clean cuts in heavy grass or tangled crops.

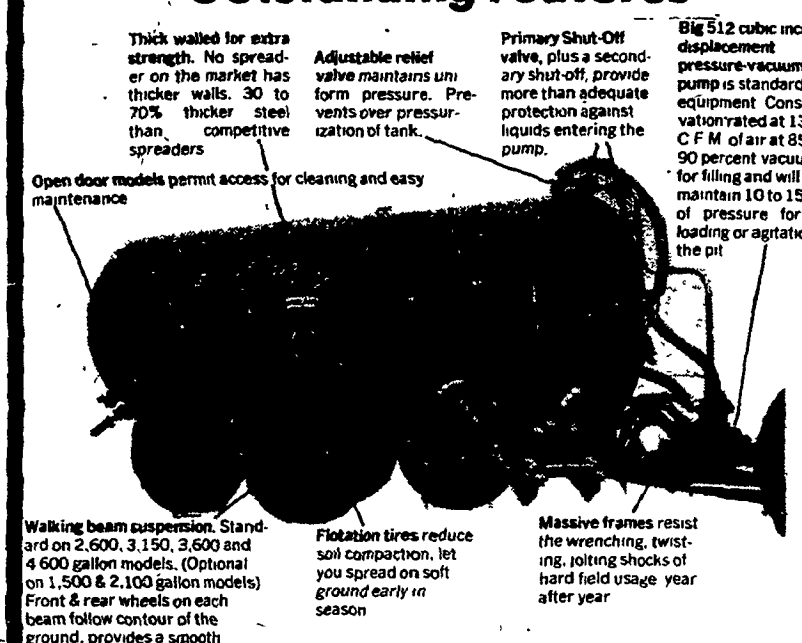
Outstanding Features



Thick walled for extra strength. No spreader on the market has thicker walls. 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders
Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure. Prevents over pressurization of tank.
Primary Shut-Off valve, plus a secondary shut-off, provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump.
Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure-vacuum pump is standard equipment Conservation rated at 135 C F M of air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit
Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance
Walking beam suspension. Standard on 2,600, 3,150, 3,600 and 4 600 gallon models. (Optional on 1,500 & 2,100 gallon models) Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground, provides a smooth level ride
Flotation tires reduce soil compaction, let you spread on soft ground early in season
Massive frames resist the wrenching, twisting, jolting shocks of hard field usage year after year

Sizes - 800 gal. thru 4600 gal.
Both vacuum & augermatic spreaders for truck mount or trailer type

—SPECIAL—

GUNITE Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite. Below are some of the properties of Gunite:

1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration

Reseal and restrengthen your silo with Gunite

Talk to the man who knows forage handling systems.

Badger has been building forage equipment for over 30 years. They know what it takes to make forage equipment that is profitably efficient. And they know what is needed to make forage farming profitable.

Badger Dealers also offer the best finance and interest waiver programs, making your equipment easier to purchase.

In season waiver of forage equipment till November 1, 1982.

It's easy to understand why you'll never see a Badger Box in "the forage box graveyard".

You can't buy a better box than Badger's. Start with specially treated acid resistant exterior grade plywood, bolted to steel channel stakes. No nails anywhere. Add to that a tough welded and bolted undercarriage built to carry the big loads. Match all this with Badger's simple and reliable heavy roller chain drive, a beater design that delivers a smooth even discharge to the blower. And then mount it on Badger's own heavy duty single or tandem axle running gear and you've got a box that will stand up to the toughest punishment.

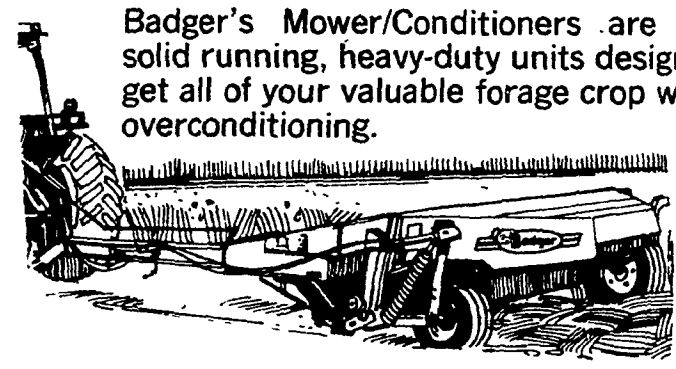
NOW Badger Northland dealers offer leasing on all equipment.

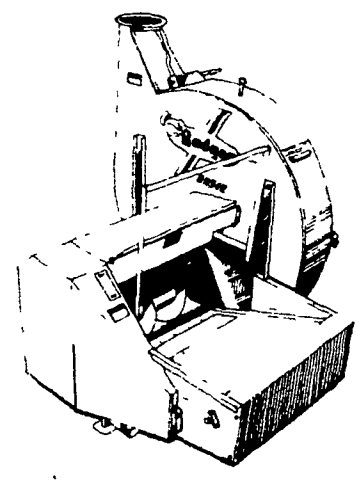
Badger's Mower/Conditioner...ground hugging, clean cutting efficiency at its best!

Badger's Mower/Conditioners are quiet, solid running, heavy-duty units designed to get all of your valuable forage crop without overconditioning.



Built rugged for less maintenance, longer life, adjustable dial hitch reel speed and tooth pitch. Wheel to cutter bar distance is only 38" to follow ground contours and get all the crop. Unitized header dampens high speed bounce.

Get non-stop silo filling with a Badger Northland Blower!

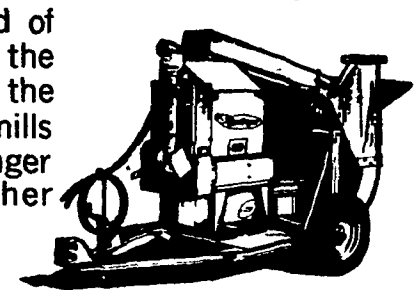


Badger Blowers make short work of filling high silos. And they consistently outperform other models in volume and speed. Forage or grain, Badger Blowers will handle it all. It's simply the least costly to operate, smoothest running, toughest blower you can buy.

And now, Badger offers a new blower for 1000 RPM tractors!

Now you can process whole cob earcorn and fill a structure up to 80 feet high using one machine and one tractor.

Badger's Earcorn Blower Mill handles wet, shucky, even frozen earcorn. The unique crusher unit shells corn and shreds the cob ahead of the rollers which crack the kernels and reduce the cob further. Other mills available with tilting auger discharge and other options.



WAIVER OF FINANCE TILL
Oct. 1, '82, on all spreaders, liquid manure pumps & tanks (at participating dealers)

Sweigard shows heifer to reserve championship

GAITHERSBURG, Md. — Dauphin County's Kaye Sweigard, Halifax, showed her bred-and-owned Angus heifer to reserve champion honors during the Eastern Regional Junior Angus Heifer Show held here recently.

Sweigard's heifer, MVAF Blackbird 140, was one of 145 cattle from 15 states entered in the two-day event at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds.

In stiff competition, Pennsylvania juniors placed second to Virginia Junior Angus exhibitors in the Group of Five class. New Jersey placed third, Maryland was fourth, and South Carolina stood fifth.

Judge Randy Daniel of Colbert, Georgia, tagged an Angus heifer, Omega Erica 126, owned by Christine Simmons of Williamstown, Michigan to intermediate champ before selecting her as his grand champion. Stablemate Omega Erica 137 brought Christine the reserve yearling honors.

Dameron Lass 1102, the champion yearling owned by Anita Weaver of Stuarts Draft, Virginia, was tagged reserve grand champion heifer.

The champion bred-and-owned heifer was Deans Hedgerow Edetta 381, exhibited by Rick Petow of Kensington, Connecticut.

Dauphin County's Kaye Sweigard, Halifax exhibited MVAF Blackbird 140 to the reserve champion bred-and-owned honors during the recent Eastern Regional Junior Angus Heifer Show held in Gaithersburg, Md.

The Avco New Idea Model 858 Uni-System Corn Sheller features minimal kernel damage.

New Idea cites sheller

COLDWATER, Oh. — As a long-term veteran in the manufacturing of self-propelled and pull-type rotary corn shelling equipment, Avco New Idea announces the introduction of the new Model 858 Uni-System Corn Sheller.

Self-propelled (by a Uni-System Power Unit from Avco New Idea), this new design in rotary corn shelling technology has undergone five years of on-the-farm testing on thousands of acres of corn throughout the corn belt and in Florida.

Operated this past fall in Nebraska, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois, the Model 858 has the capacity of most 8-row machines and shells corn with an exclusive corn-against-corn gentleness that provides clean shelling with minimal kernel damage.

Gramoxone gets OK

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Special local need registrations for the use of Gramoxone paraquat manufactured by ICI Americas Inc. have been approved in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia.

Three special local need registrations approved in Pennsylvania include use of Gramoxone on alfalfa for weed control between cuttings and for weed control in dormant alfalfa. It also may be applied on oats for preplant or crop preemergence weed control.

In Delaware Gramoxone may be applied for weed control between cuttings on established alfalfa stands.

It may be applied on Virginia alfalfa as a postharvest weed control on established stands.

Gramoxone may be applied on alfalfa in West Virginia for weed control between cuttings. Applied broadcast by ground equipment, it may be sprayed on established stands.

Gramoxone is a Restricted Use Pesticide, and the label should be consulted for specific use guidelines.

MF introduces mid-size tractor

DES MOINES, Ia. — The 90-PTO-horsepower MF 2640 has been introduced by Massey-Ferguson in the mid-range class of farm tractors. It is available in both two- and four-wheel-drive models.

The MF 2640 is powered by a 354-cubic-inch direct injection Perkins diesel engine. Its large bore design delivers maximum torque at low engine RPM, producing excellent lugging ability.

The cab's operator features include a deep-cushioned, spring suspension seat. The cab has 51 square feet of window area and tinted glass. The cab is climate controlled with high-capacity blower, heater and air conditioner — all standard equipment. And isolation mounting of the cab, with extensive use of sound-deadening acoustic isolation, minimizes cab noise and vibration.

The transmission has eight forward and six reverse gears, plus a two-speed powershift. This produces a selection of 16 forward and 12 reverse speeds. The transmission's syncromesh design allows clutch shifting on-the-go between gears 1-4 and 5-8. The powershift allows shifting to the high or low range without clutching.

The MF 2640's fully independent PTO is hydraulically engaged. The operator can engage or disengage the PTO on-the-move. The PTO or 1000 RPM by selection of interchangeable shafts.

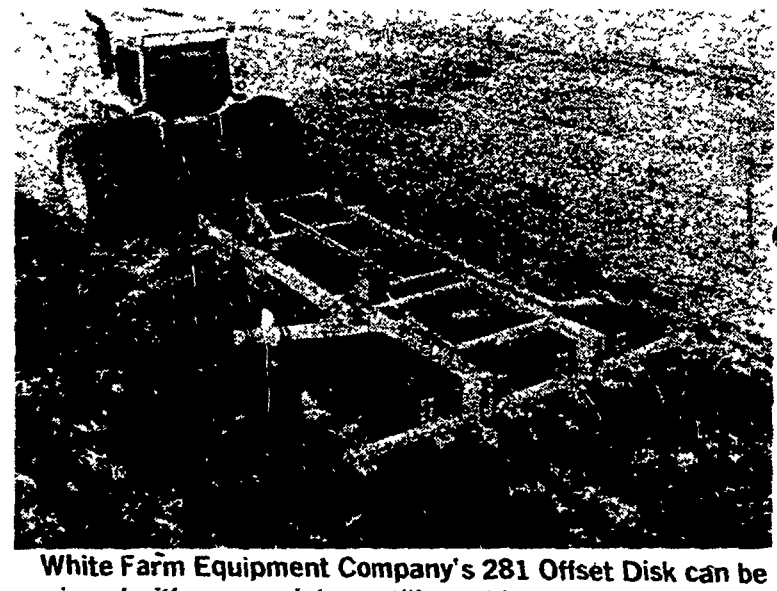
The 4WD model features on-the-go hydraulic engagement of the front axle to save time during field operation. This model's standard differential can lock both front and rear axles, providing extra traction and pulling power when necessary.

Flow to the MF 2640's three-point linkage, power steering and optional third spool valve is supplied by a 14.5 gallon-per-minute, dual-element gear pump. This big flow capacity provides quick response for simultaneous steering and implement operation. The pump also supplies an additional 5.3 GPM capacity for operating the PTO, powershift, differential lock and transmission lubrication. A second 15 GPM gear pump supplies oil to the standard two-speed auxiliary valve.

Disk harrow features minimum tillage unit

OAK BROOK, Il. — White Farm Equipment Company introduces a new minimum tillage chisel attachment for their 281 offset disk harrow. Operators can now use the offset disk with the chisel attachment as a conservation tillage tool in the fall, in addition to using the offset disk for primary and secondary tillage in the spring.



White Farm Equipment Company's 281 Offset Disk can be equipped with a new minimum tillage chisel attachment.

"The addition of the minimum tillagle attachment makes the 281 offset disk an ideal tool for operators who want to conserve water and reduce soil erosion through minimum tillage, but also want to bury a little more trash," says Roger Hipwell, Director of Marketing Services for White Farm Equipment Company.

In the fall, with the chisel attached to the 281, an operator can disk heavy trash and crack the hardpan in one pass, saving time, fuel and trips over the field. The chisel ridges the ground to conserve water and reduce soil erosion. The single rank of widely-spaced chisels (28" to 32") cuts a maximum of seven inches below the disk cut, and can be adjusted to cut at shallower depths.

In the spring, the offset disk can be used two ways. The chisel attachment can be removed or lifted out of the ground hydraulically, making the offset disk a primary tillage tool, or, by running faster and at shallower depths, the offset disk can work as a secondary tillage tool.

The 281 offset disk features a welded 4"x8"x5/16" box beam main and gang frames with ¼" solid or cutaway spherical blades. The disk can be adapted to various crop and soil conditions by adjusting the front offset from 10 through 23 degrees and the rear gang angles from 10 through 28 degrees.

Five models of the 281 offset disk are available, each with a minimum tillage attachment to fit. Disk sizes range from 10'10" to 17'10", with 24" or 26" blade sizes. The smallest disk weighs approximately 5,400 lbs. with 25 blades, while the largest weighs approximately 7,300 lbs. with 41 blades.

Reynolds funds Md. tobacco research

A particularly stubborn strain of "wildfire," more virulent in Maryland this year than in recent years, will be the subject of a tobacco research study funded in part by the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Here, Claude McKee, right, professor and principal investigator in the study for the University of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station looks at an experimental plot of tobacco with R.J. Reynolds' William B. James, left, coordinator of the company's agricultural research and development. The tobacco company recently presented the University with a gift of $13,500 for tobacco production research.

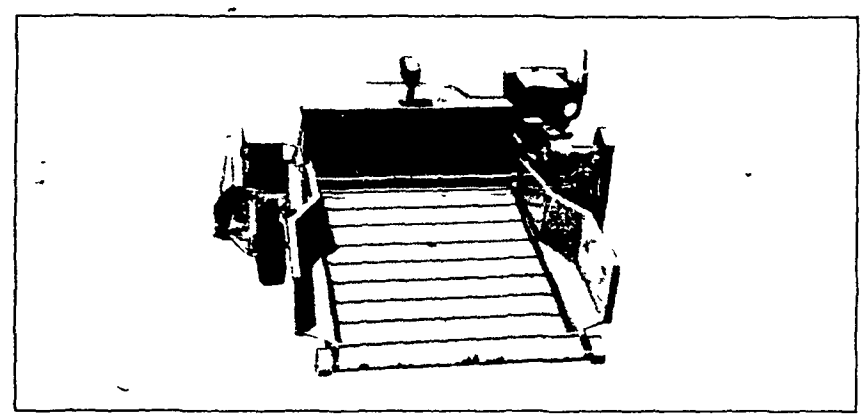
The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM



MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG: "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage . Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage . . . a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help. I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing."

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made" . . says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon.

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days"

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs to finish.

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements"

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain"

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed . I can guarantee at least that" says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging It's just like feeding grass I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System . "

HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU

New Pioneer winter wheat is available

DES MOINES, Ia. — A new, higher yielding soft red winter wheat seed, which has been developed for the southeastern U.S., has been announced by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

The new seed is Pioneer Variety 2550, which is a medium height, mid-maturity, beardless soft red winter wheat.

Also, Pioneer Hi-Bred International announced that its soybean seed will be marketed under the Pioneer brand name, instead of the previous Peterson brand name.

In yield trials since 1977, wheat variety 2550 has shown a 10 percent yield advantage over many popular varieties and even outproduced Pioneer S76 and S78.

It has been developed for the southeastern U.S., including the southern half of Pennsylvania and all of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia.

The new variety has excellent straw strength and tolerance to drought stress. Variety 2550 also resists shattering and has high harvest-ability. Compared to S76, 2550 averages about two inches shorter in height and flowers one day earlier.

It has a good tolerance to Spindle Streak Mosaic Virus (SSMV) and Soil Borne Mosaic Virus (SBMV). It has also shown good tolerance to prevalent races of leaf rust, powdery mildew and various leaf blights.

Leffler to hold solar seminars

MOUNT JOY — A series of solar energy seminars will be held this month by Carlos R. Leffler, Inc. at Mount Joy, New Holland, Lebanon and Sinking Springs.

A demonstration and film presentation will cover domestic solar system components, functions, applications and benefits.

Persons attending the seminars will have the opportunity to discuss their own domestic solar programs and will have the opportunity to learn how sunlight can be converted into energy for heating various facilities around the home and farm.

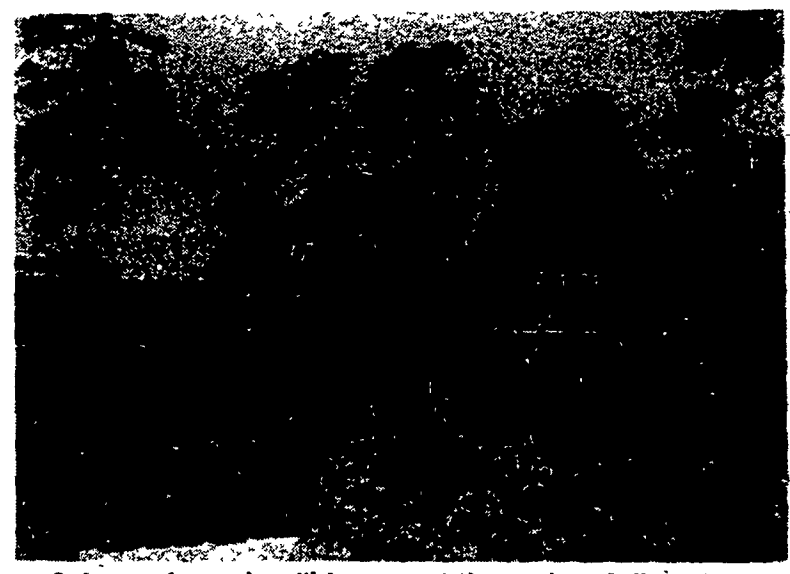
Attendance is free, but advance registration is required. Additional information and registration is available by calling the Mount Joy, New Holland, Sinking Springs or Richland offices of Carlos R. Leffler.

The Mount Joy solar seminar will be held on Wednesday, July 14, at 7 p.m. at the Mount Joy Office, a short distance east of the Rt. 283 Rheems exit on Cloverleaf Road. Registration deadline at (717) 653-8026 is July 9.

The New Holland seminar will be held on Thursday, July 22, at 7 p.m. at the Liberty Fire Company. Registration deadline at (717) 354-4136 is July 16.

The Richland seminar will be held on Tuesday, July 20, at 7 p.m. at the Quality Inn at Rt. 72 and Cornwall Road in Lebanon. Registration deadline at (717) 866-2105 is July 16.

The Sinking Springs seminar will be held on Thursday, July 29, at 7 p.m. at the Sinking Springs Fire Company. Registration deadline at (215) 678-7011 is July 23.



Solar roof panels will be one of the topics of dicussion at seminar series planned by Carlos R. Leffler, Inc.

Student gets award

ATLANTA, Ga. — A University of Delaware student is among six outstanding graduate students in soil and plant science who have been chosen to receive fellowship awards from the Potash & Phosphate Institute.

The Delaware winner is Philip M. Jardine, a native of Delaware. He received the American Society of Agronomy outstanding senior award for the 1981 academic year and graduated with distinction and cum laude from the University of Delaware. He is continuing work toward a Ph. D. in soil chemistry.

His research program seeks better understanding of potassium-calcium exchange in heterogeneous soil systems.

Co-op delivers 1st tractor

SHIPPENSBURG — The Cumberland Valley Cooperative Farm Service has delivered the first utility size Ford 1000 series compact tractor to Rockwell Landscaping Inc., R6, Shippensburg. CVC is the only Ford dealer in the Cumberland Valley, extending from Mechanicsburg, Pa. to Hagerstown, Md.

Cumberland Valley Cooperative's Ford tractor line includes five compact new diesels, ranging from 13 to 30 horsepower. The tractors are ideal for cleanup chores, and feature a sturdy front-end loader matched to the model selected.

They have built-in hydraulics, three point hitch, power take-off, ten or twelve speed transmission and differential lock — all standard equipment. Optional four-wheel drive is available.

John E. Crouse, left, manager of CVC Farmservice, hands keys to new Ford 1000 series compact tractor to Stewart Rockwell, manager of landscaping firm.

Much ado about foreign farm owners

The Agriculture Department has once again summarized foreign interest in American farmland, and once again comes to the same conclusion. There isn't very much.

In the late 1970s the hue and cry went up about foreigners buying American farms. And so Congress passed a law requiring the Department of Agriculture to gather such information and submit an annual report.

The latest information, as of Dec. 31, 1981, shows that foreigners own less than one percent of U.S. agricultural land, including farms and forests. That amounts to about 12.7 million acres. The figure represents a substantial gain over the previous year, but it's still a relatively small amount of land.

The issue of foreign farmland ownership is confused by the way it's reported. There are all kinds of ways to hide foreign ownership, and there's also the requirement of the law that says any corporation with five percent or more of foreign ownership must report its agricultural landholdings.

So a corporation with five percent foreign ownership might own 1,000 acres and would report it as such. But does that mean that foreigners own that 1,000 acres or do they own five percent of 1,000 acres? Or do they actually own nome of it as such, but simply own stock in an American corporation?

The Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act gives the Department of Agriculture considerable authority to find out who owns farmland, but even then ownership beyond the third level is not reported. So a foreign owner can hide his agricultural investment by establishing a system with more than three levels of ownership. That sounds complicated, but it's not that hard to do.

The report shows that corporations own most of the foreign-owned land — 85 percent of the 12.7 million acres in fact. And about two-thirds of that is actually owned by U.S. corporations, which have five percent or more of foreign ownership.

That creates a big area of questionable data, and that 4.9 million acre increase in foreign ownership shrinks considerably when you consider that 2.1 million acres of it became classified as foreign-owned when a major U.S. corporation became 20 percent foreign-owned during 1981.

You think foreigners would be rushing to grab up land in the fertile Midwest breadbasket. And they do own some there. But surprisingly, the largest foreign-owned acreage is in Maine, where foreigners own 14 percent of Maine's privately owned agricultural land, and 21 percent of the U.S. total of recorded foreign-owned agricultural land.

That situation exists because of three large timber companies that own 96 percent of the foreign held land in that state. One of those companies has only partial interest in 33 percent of the acres, and the other two companies are U.S. companies which recently became partially foreign-owned.

Other states with large foreign holdings include Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Texas. Those states account for about a fourth of foreign ownership. Rhode Island is the only state with no reported foreign ownership. Delaware reports about 8,000 acres; Maryland 38,000; and Pennsylvania 158,000.

While it might be in vogue to suspect those oil-rich nations of gobbling up American farmland, the report documents that the big owners are Canada, France, the United Kingdom, West Germany, and the Netherland Antilles. Interests from those nations hold 78 percent of the foreign-owned agricultural land. Foreign holdings range from something in excess of four million acres for Canada down to only one acre for Yugoslavia.

In a somewhat humerous vein, it's interesting to note that tiny, little Liechtenstein, the smallest nation in the world with only a few square miles of land area, owns 105,000 acres of U.S. agricultural land. And that excludes any holdings through U.S. corporations. That means individuals and other forms of proprietorship own considerably more U.S. acres than the whole nation of Liechtenstein. And while the data doesn't suggest where those holdings are located, or whether they are in fact in one place, it would be interesting to speculate that the entire nation might just close up its tiny country, move to America and start over again in much larger quarters. What a fascinating thought.

Finally, this note. What does all this information gathering cost the American taxpayer? Well the Department of Agriculture says that data gathering and analysis of foreign landholdings cost the Department of Agriculture about $530,000 during 1981. But during that same period, assessed penalties for late filings by foreign landowners amounted to about $667,000. So the penalties more than offset the cost.

At last, Congress has come up with a moneymaker. Now if they can just use that philosophy with some other parts of government, maybe the taxpayers can get a break.

July is Peach Month

MARTINSBURG, WV — President Reagan has officially designated July as National Peach Month, according to the National Peach Council. The resolution calling for the declaration was passed by the House and Senate and was signed by the President on March 16.

The official resolution recognized the peach as the number one summer fruit, a valuable source of nutrients and, at thirty-eight calories each, a low calorie snack. In signing the resolution, the president called upon Americans to "incorporate nutritious peaches into their diets and to celebrate this month with appropriate activities that will make the benefits of the succulent fruit and a well balanced diet known to consumers of America".

Despite the short crop this year, the NPC Board of Directors decided to use this occasion to bring the qualities of this excellent summer fruit to the attention of consumers over the nation, and hope that governors of peach producing states will follow suit.

National Peach Council is directing a portion of its promotional activities at publicizing National Peach Month this year, though not as much as had been planned before the winter freezes.

Penn State looks at the past 24 years of dairying

BY BLAIR J. SMITH,
Penn State and
REID S. MILLER, PMMB

UNIVERSITY PARK — For the forty-sixth time, June is Dairy Month. This month continues to be one with the largest fluid milk surpluses. Special advertising campaigns will again promote the sale of milk and dairy products.

The content and method of such campaigns have changed a great deal over the years. Even more profound, surely, are the changes that have taken place in the production, processing, and consumption of milk and dairy products.

Milk production

The number of milk cows decreased rather uniformly from 1957 through 1973, when a low of 669,000 was recorded. By 1981, however, the number of milk cows had risen to 721,000, a level greater than any since 1969. Changes in production per cow, though generally upward, were quite uniform through 1967, but have been more erratic since. The last eight or nine years have been ones of almost unparalleled variations in cull dairy beef and dairy feed prices, with changes in milk prices not very well correlated. Thus, milk-feed price ratios have fluctuated greatly, and the stop and go culling practices have introduced instability into the dairy industry.

For the last 24 years, the number of commercial dairy farmers has trended downward. In 1981 the number stood at only 40 percent of the 1957 level. Milk cows per farm, on the other hand, more than doubled during that period of time. Size of farm measured in acres was up only 42 percent, however, suggesting that total land in dairy farm is down quite a bit from earlier levels.

Milk processing and manufacturing

Through 1978 the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce published annual estimates of the number of dairy establishments, including those that processed fluid milk and those that manufactured the several major dairy products. In 1978 there were fewer than half as many plants for butter and condensed and evaporated milk as there were in 1957. Over the same period both fluid-milk and frozen-products plants declined to about one-fourth of their number in the first year of the data series.

The production of frozen dairy products and mixes has varied through time, although not by a great deal. Butter production is clearly upward. The production of cheese is up quite significantly, especially in the last five or six years.

During the past 24 years, the production of cottage cheese has almost doubled, but there has been relatively little change since 1973. The production of nonfat dry-milk powder has varied more than that of any other product, in 1963 reaching a peak that was four times greater than its low in 1975. The more than doubling of production from 1979 to 1980 is also notable.

Fluid-milk plants packaged an average of 4,869,048 pounds in 1957 and an average of 19,949,237 pounds in 1977-79, an increase of over 300 percent.

With respect to fluid-milk processing, it is interesting to note that Pennsylvania has an unusually large number of "juggers." These are dairymen who sell their own milk at their farm, and are not subject to licensing and regulation by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board. They must, however, meet the sanitary standards established by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, just as any other milk producer and processor must.

In 1981 an estimated 239 juggers were operating in Pennsylvania. These producer-processors accounted for an estimated 2.7 percent of all the milk produced in Pennsylvania that year.

Sales of fluid milk

For October of each odd-numbered year, the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board obtains sales of fluid-milk products in Pennsylvania by market area, type of outlet, type of container, size of container, and type of product. These surveys have been conducted since October 1957.

Type of outlet

What has happened with respect to type of outlet through which milk is sold in Pennsylvania?

Sales through "other" outlets such as restaurants, schools, institutions, and vending machines have generally not changed much during the last 24 years. The unusually large drop in 1981 is mainly due to a decline in school sales, resulting from the Philadelphia area schools strike and the withdrawal of school-lunch and school-milk subsidies by the federal government.

The most remarkable changes have obviously been in sales through stores and home delivery. These changes have been almost equal — in opposite directions: Sometime between 1965 and 1967, sales through stores exceeded home delivery sales for the first time in history. Home delivery of milk will probably be continued for some time but is unlikely ever to gain a larger share of the market than it now has.

Type of container

Dramatic change has also taken place with respect to the type of containers in which milk is sold in Pennsylvania. Glass, once the queen (or king) of the milk containers, now has a lower share of the market than home delivery.

Sales in paper surpassed glass between 1961 and 1963, and sales in plastic relegated glass to last place sometime between 1969 and 1971. With the advent of returnable plastic, it seems certain that plastic will some day overtake paper as the leading type of container.

The apparent "dip" in paper sales in 1967 was probably due to the fact that there was some plastic being reported as paper prior to the time plastic was listed separately. Sales in all other types of containers (commercial dispensers, bag in box, and other bulk containers) have been of relatively minor importance through the years, varying from 3 to 7 percent of total sales during the 1957-81 period.

Size of container

The proud quart container, once the symbol of the dairy industry, has fallen to less than 8 percent of total sales. It is now least among the four major sizes of containers, upstaged even by half-pints sometime between 1973 and 1975.

Also during that period gallons surpassed half gallons for the first time. Other sizes of containers accounted for the remaining sales. Containers of less than quart size (other than half-pints) made up 2 to 3 percent of all sales, and containers greater than a gallon made up 3 to 4 percent of all sales. These proportions did not change much over the 24-year period covered by this article.

Type of product

The changes in type of product sold in Pennsylvania, though not as dramatic as the changes already reported for type of outlet and size and type of container, are nevertheless quite significant. Whole milk with more than 4 percent butterfat represented 8.1 percent of sales in 1957 but fell to 0.7 percent in 1981. Skim milk rose from 2.5 percent of sales in 1957 to 5.6 percent in 1981. Sales of buttermilk, at almost 1 percent in 1981, made up the rest of the sales by type of product.

Phenomenal changes in many major aspects of the Pennsylvania dairy industry have taken place in the last 24 years. These trends are expected to continue for at least the next few years. Much will depend, however, on the nature of public policy with respect to feed grains, milk price supports, dairy imports, federal and state milk-marketing-order regulations, substitutes for dairy products, and the like. Of no small importance will be the level and effectiveness of advertising and promotional programs to maintain or increase sales of milk and dairy products.

Fleas, a nuisance in the home

LANCASTER -- Fleas, those tiny biting insects, are not only a discomfort and nuisance in homes of pet owners -- they are often health hazards too.

Fleas can transmit dog and cat tapeworm, as well as some human diseases. Both animals and people can develop allergic reactions to flea bites. A pet seen nibbling and biting, or frequently scratching its fur probably has fleas. When examining the hair coat, one may not see the tiny fleas because they move swiftly among the hairs. However, flea excreta, small jet black particles about the size of salt granules, may be evident.

Fleas found on the pet are only part of the problem. The female flea lays her eggs not only on the animal, but also on the pet's bedding, the rug, and in small cracks and crevices throughout the house. In about one week the eggs hatch into worm-like larvae which feed on tiny bits of organic matter on the floor and furniture. The larvae develop into adult fleas one to five weeks later.

Treatment against fleas, the adults, eggs and larvae, must include the floor, upholstery, and bedding, as well as the pet. A variety of methods are available to treat a pet. Commercial animal treatments come in spray, powder, dip and soap forms. Of course, to insure safety and best results when using the insecticide, read the label and follow all directions and precautions carefully.

AGCC convention climaxes a year of change

ROANOKE,Va. — American Guernsey Cattle Club President Russell Wirt of Lewiston. Minnesota summed up AGCC activities of the past year in his annual report at the 105th Convention by saying, "1981 was a year of many changes for The AGCC. I believe most of them will be viewed as positive when looked back upon at some point in the future...it is not where we are, but where we are headed."

These comments set the stage for and captured the mood of a productive annual meeting of The American Guernsey Cattle Club in Roanoke, Virginia the last week of April.

The AGCC Board of Directors met for two and one-half days prior to the Convention and took action on several key issues.

In the area of milk marketing the Board endorsed five priorities for the AGCC as follows: to work for higher standards for fluid milk; to work for reestablishment of the school milk program; to support end-product pricing for milk going into hard products; to support joint efforts with other breeds on these matters; and to continue and/or institute a voluntary checkoff system to finance these goals.

A special committee was appointed to work on joint efforts in milk marketing with other breeds.

Unanimous approval was given for a new Type Appraisal program and its rules to be governed and administered jointly by The AGCC and The American Jersey Cattle Club.

Under this new program appraisers endorsed by both organization's Boards will appraise Guernseys and Jerseys. The previous practice of The AGCC Field Representative clerking for the appraiser will be discontinued.

To encourage earlier registration of animals, the Board acted to allow the registration of calves under three months of age at the reduced fee of $8.00 for females and $16.00 for bulls with an effective date of July 1, 1982.

Also approved was a new pedigree format to make the AGCC pedigree a more valuable and useful tool for both merchandising and breeding. The new pedigrees should be available later this year.

The Board voted to sponsor only two national shows starting in 1983. One of these will annually be held in conjunction with the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin with the other alternating between the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg and the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Kentucky. The Western International Dairy Exposition in Fresno, California was added to the list of 1982 approved shows.

Future national youth award nominees will be considered from Director Districts in the future rather than Field Representative areas. The Board also approved additional funding for Junior activities and programs.

The directors endorsed increased advertising and subscription rates for the Guernsey Breeders' Journal as well as magazine policies to put it on a sounder financial basis. They approved the proposed Journal Department move to Delaware, Ohio scheduled for June 1982.

In response to a Dairy Shrine request for a Guernsey cow photograph to hang in the Shrine's new museum as a representative of the breed, the Board voted to have that of Cleverlands Nances Judy Jean, owned by Ray Orisio of Woodburn, Oregon sent for this purpose.

One of the highlights of the Convention's Youth Banquet was the crowning of the 1982 National Guernsey Queen, Linda Basse of Muskego, Wisconsin. She is the 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Basse and is a student double majoring in Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Journalism at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. The two National Guernsey Princesses for 1982 are Janet Forner of Chaska, Minnesota (first runner-up) and Shelly Woodard of Maize, Kansas (second runner-up).

The National Young Guernsey Farmer recognized was Dennis Tyrrell of Browerville, Minnesota. He and his wife, Cheryl, operate Oak Crest Farm with his parents. They milk 88 Guernseys with a DHIR herd average of 10,923 pounds of milk and 550 pounds of butterfat. The runner-up in this contest was Thomas J. Franks of Wawaka, Indiana.

A Scenery Hill, Pennsylvania young woman was named the National Guernsey Youth for 1982. Alisa Fava, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fava, is a junior in Dairy Science at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. The National Youth Award runner-up was Larry Lakey of Trempealeau, Wisconsin.

This year's Liebers Trophy winner for lifetime milk production was Cleverlands Nances Judy Jean owned by Ray Orisio. The recipient of the Nyala-Bedford Trophy for mature equivalent, two-year-old milk production was Pauline Dias on Cleverlands Zenith Orpha Lee. Sniders Prince Lily garnered the Tarbell Trophy for owners John Myers and Dr. Marvin Sanner of Littlestown, for her top mature equivalent butterfat record. Kreuger leaves Ohio to accept Penn State post UNIVERSITY PARK — Charles R. Krueger has been named associate dean for research and associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State, effective August 1.

Krueger is currently assistant director of the Ohio State University Agricultural and Research Center in Wooster, Ohio. He will succeed Robert F. Hutton, who has been acting associate dean since 1979.

In announcing the appointment, Samuel H. Smith, dean of the College of Agriculture, said "Penn State is fortunate to have attracted Dr. Krueger, who is widely recognized as an administrator in the area of agricultural research and who has a broad background in both plant and animal science."

Krueger, in a telephone interview, said he is looking forward to coming to Penn State where the agricultural research reflects the diverse agricultural base of the state. He sees part of his role as helping Penn State's Experiment Station become more visible to the people of Pennsylvania.

He stressed that research teaching and Extension must be tied together. "This link provides a unique system and a unique service for citizens," he said.

"The Experiment Station is responsible for all college research, and under Dr. Krueger's leadership, I expect to see it become more active in working with scientists and departments in establishing research priorities and recognizing areas the college needs to move into to meet future needs," Smith said.

The Experiment Station goes back to the Hatch Act of 1887, through which Congress provided for at least one agricultural experiment station in each state to promote scientific investigation and experimentation. Besides facilities at University Park, the Penn State Experiment Station includes field laboratories at Rock Springs, Biglerville, Rector, Landisville, and near Erie.

"Research leadership is a key in fostering interdisciplinary research. We are looking to Dr. Krueger as an advocate for our research proposals, in organizing and facilitating interdepartmental approaches," Smith said. He also said Krueger will be the College of Agriculture's liaison with the graduate school for any matters involving graduate studies.

Krueger joined Ohio State in 1978 after leaving South Dakota State University, where he was head of the Department of Plant Science. His major research areas have been in pasture systems and forage crops with emphasis on the effects of various systems on dairy cows and on farm economy. He has taught in the areas of forage crops and pasture management.

A native of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Krueger earned his bachelor's, master's, and doctor of philosophy degrees at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His PhD in agronomy, with botany and dairy science minors, was conferred in 1967.

He is a member of the American Society of Agronomy, the Crop Science Society of America, the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology, the American Dairy Science Society, and the American Forage and Grasslands Council.

Berks ASCS gets funds

LEESPORT — Donald E. Lutz, chairman of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, announced that additional funds have been made available for multiflora rose control under the 1982 Agricultural Conservation Program.

"Although the original county allocation of ACP funds were all approved for Berks County farmers months ago, cancellations and underspending have released some funds to be recommitted. We are therefore taking a limited amount of 1982 ACP requests now for multiflora rose and other ACP practices," reported Lutz.

The practice cannot be started before approval is given for the cost-shares.

For 1982 multiflora rose control ACP benefits are 40 percent of the cost of the chemicals not to exceed $54 per acre. A private applicator's certification is required. required.

Applications for cost-share help are being taken at the ASCS office in the Berks County Agricultural Center in Bern Township. The next Berks County ASC Committee meeting at which action will be taken on applications received will tentatively be set for Tuesday, July 20.

AGCC convention

milk production went to Dendels Orchards M C Doreen with Jack production went to Dendels Orchards M C Doreen with Jack Dendel of Allegan, Michigan the owner.

Climaxing an event-filled national convention, the National Guernsey Heifer Sale and the Dogwood Classic/Southern Quality Sale attracted 49 buyers and many more spectators to the fancy Hotel Roanoke on April 28.

When the dust settled from the National Heifer Sale, Clearbranch Jeans Amelia had topped the bidding activity at the $4,400 level for consignors Herman and Jimmy Haga of Fort Valley, Georgia. This Clovelly Top Hornet senior calf is out of McDonalds Darimost Jean, the well-known Excellent Western Glow Darimost daughter with three class-leading records, three lactations over 1,000 pounds of butterfat and a +1,407M +$232 Cow Index. The next dam in this popular pedigree is 94 points with over 150,000 pounds of milk and has twice produced over 1,135 pounds of butterfat. The new owners of this heifer are Marvin Q. and Mary E. Sanner and David B. and Mervin K. Myers of Littlestown. Thirty-four head totalled $46,600 in this sale and averaged $1,370.58.

The $4,500 top of the Dogwood Classic was an open heifer sired by Maurana Wis Telestar and consigned by D. Lynn Brubaker of Dayton, Virginia. This short-aged junior yearling is from two generations of Very Good dams, the first a Gold Star daughter of Applebrook Fames Corporal with 20,380 pounds of milk as a junior four-year-old. Leroy Lindley of Hamilton, Ohio picked this +882M +$124 pedigree-indexed heifer Thirty head totalled $46,450 in this sale and averaged $1,548.33.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Farming, A Troubled Busienss

You've heard it all before, so I'm not telling you anything new. Squeezed profit margins, adverse weather, an indifferent political climate, unfair competition from overseas, tight and expensive credit, extremely high capital costs in relation to income, and problem on top of problem, surpluses.

In the 25 plus years I have been an Extension agent, I've seen this cycle repeated several times. However I don't ever remember a period of time when the outlook has been so rough as it appears to be now. Let's explore some of the problem areas and some alternative solutions.

Squeezed Profit Margins

This is the worst culprit because it both causes and is caused by some of the other problems. In addition, it takes a lot of the joy out of farming. Who wants to work for a negative return except a self confirmed masochist?

Records

I've said it before and will continue saying it. Your only salvation is records so you know what it is cost you to produce an item and why.

For example: I have worked with several hundred dairy producers in the past year. Some are producing milk for less than ten dollars per hundred. Others are eroding their capital base because it is costing them as much as twenty dollars per hundred. A dairy farmer will not be able to survive in business today unless he can get that cost down to the milk price.

Example two: I have been working with some pork producers in the past year. I'm convinced that most pork producers know very little about their business. None of them knew how much it was costing them to produce a pound of pork. Very few of them knew their feed conversion figure. Most guessed at the number of pigs weaned per sow per year but few could document or even come close to reconciling that figure with animals sold.

Analysis

Just as important as the record [illegible]em. I have worked with DHIA in the past so the lack of use of a farm analysis should not surprise me. Any farmer who pays for a farm analysis or business analysis is entitled to an explanation of that analysis. Every farmer who does not get an analysis should get one regardless of the type of record system being used.

If you have an accountant, county agent, or other farm advisor who has sold you on the value of an analysis, you have one advantage over the other person. if you do not understand how to use that analysis or it's crazy figures, it is up to you to contact who ever helped you with your analysis and ask for help in understanding or correcting it. Your advisor cannot be a mind reader. Perhaps by working together you and your advisor can:

— learn how to use the results of the analysis to increase profits or reduce losses;

— learn how to do a better job collecting data that is fed into the analysis;

— get a more meaningful analysis; and

— survive in this tremendous business of farming.

Remember your farm advisor has as much at stake as you - he or she can only survive if you survive.

Billion Pound Barrier

Once again, Order 2 producers broke the billion pound barrier with the highest production for the month since 1967 by beating last May's shipments by eight million pounds. Order 2 handles received 1.038 billion pounds which was four percent more than last month but less one percent over last year.

Class 1 sales were off 600,000 pounds on a daily basis due to a holiday weekend and with the increased production the utilization fell to 36.1 percent-the lowest for May since 1955.

Slightly lower Class prices — one cent on Class 1 and five cents on Class 11 — also contributed to the decline along with a ten cent increase in the Louisville Plan payment. Taken all together the uniform price for May was $12.61 down 21 cents from April and 22 cents lower than last year.

May is the peak production month nationally so it appears that eastern processing facilities were once again adequate to a spring flush that has been the highest in many years. The only marketing difficulties reported seemed to come from the western states where milk was moved as far east as Nebraska for processing. A switch from past patterns when milk moved from east to west during times of peak production.

After the Referendum

With the defeat of the proposed Milk Marketing Program by a 1.5 to 1 majority of 83 per cent of the eligible voters, dairymen in Pennsylvania can turn their attention to the proposals being made to Congress to change the dairy price support program that's only six months old.

At least they can try to do that if the weatherman shows a little more cooperation than he has the first two weeks of June by providing enough sunshine to get that first cutting in the mow or in the silo.

Both the Senate and the House agriculture committees have conducted hearings on most of the proposed legislation and the Senate committee will have their second session on June 24. Still in effect until Congress changes it, is the legislation passed in December that provides for a support price of $13.10 for manufacturing grade milk of average butterfat test until the new marketing year starts October 1. Then the support price is to increase to $13.25 for the next year.

New Legislation

Even though the manufacturing grade milk price was 53 cents below the support price in April, government costs for the program had grown to a quarter million dollars an hour and the administration is asking for new legislation that would reduce production as well as price support costs.

Their own proposal revolves mainly around giving the Secretary of Agriculture discretion to set the support price wherever he feels it should be after January 1st with the present $13.10 continuing without an increase until the end of the year. No promises have been made but the Secretary has indicated it would not fall below $12.00 at that time and probably there would be less of a cut if definite signs of declining production were evident during the last half of this year.

The theory behind the proposal is that declining farm prices would discourage production, reduce the supply and lower the government costs of the price support production, reduce the supply and lower the government costs of the price support program. The price drop is no greater and even less than some other proposals but it is a method of using price alone to reduce production. This could be the quickest and simplest method but some argue that the cut is not deep enough to reduce production and may even increase it. A second argument is that it is hardest on the producer who contributed the least to the present supply/demand imbalance and many of these may be lost to the industry.

Complete Discretion

However, much of the criticism of the proposal is giving the Secretary discretion to set the support price in January. The administration's reasoning is that

Exports have negative effects on egg prices

UNIVERSITY PARK — Are export markets a positive or a negative market for eggs? Can an export market be maintained when egg prices are profitable to egg producers? Are future exports destined to be only a surplus removal program?

Answering these questions, Penn State Poultry Marketing Specialist A. Kermit Birth said "exporting eggs could add to the instability of egg prices and have a negative effect even if egg exports are not subsidized by governments."

"In looking at the future of export markets, one must distinguish between long-term steady exports at prices profitable to producers and 'fill-in' exports. The latter would be exports shipped when egg prices for export from the United States are lower than prices for similar quality eggs available elsewhere.

"Long-term profitable export markets may be difficult to find, build, and maintain. Production of eggs in selected countries throughout the world is expected to increase two percent in 1982."

U.S. exports will continue to compete against government subsidized exports from other countries, as well as increased production at home and abroad, noted Birth. He pointed out that egg exports in 1981 equalled 234 million dozen or about four percent of the total year's production. This represented an increase of 64 percent over the previous year's export figures. Japan led the import market, receiving 31 percent of the U.S. egg exports.

Despite these increases in export sales, Birth observed, "payments to producers generally were not high enough to prevent business losses." The Penn State marketing specialist blamed "fill-in" exports and delayed production adjustments for the pricing problem.

"During the past year, filling of export orders not only reduced the egg supply at a given time, but the accompanying publicity in trade papers tended to strengthen prices beyond the amount consumers would pay for the remaining supply of eggs.

"Prices weakened more than expected shortly after the export order was assembled at dockside. This type of action delayed supply adjustments needed to make the egg production business profitable to the majority of producers in the egg industry."

Birth asked and answered the question of what would happen if export markets were lost. "It doesn't matter whether the loss is due to increased production in the countries which are importing eggs or in other exporting countries. If prices in the United States are about equal to the average cost of production when export markets are lost, production will have to be cut back if the producers are to receive profitable prices."

He emphasized the "demand for eggs is inelastic," pointing out a one percent change in supply causes a much larger change in price in the opposite direction.

Birth asked producers to consider the economic impact on producer and industry income if the surplus is removed by exports over the short term or if producers reduce their output by an amount equal to the export market.

An export order of eggs at a specific time can also complicate the decision-making proces of egg breakers, Birth stressed. It adds a new dimension in deciding whether to purchase eggs to be frozen and dried for future delivery or to delay purchase until later, all of which will impact on the price the eggs.

In summation, Birth said, "The export market for eggs is not likely to improve the profitability of the egg industry. It could have a disastrous impact on the industry if there is too great a dependence on fill-in export orders.

"The higher the percentage of egg production exported, the greater the risk of a negative influence on the egg industry."

Milk Check

no one can be sure now what the situation will be at that time and some flexibility is needed to make an equitable decision. It is pointed our that this was one of the failings of the program in the past because it didn't allow the support price to fall below 80 percent of Parity when market conditions indicated that it should.

The counter argument, of course, is that it puts too much decision making on the Secretary who may be subject to political or budgetary pressures that would influence the support price as it has even with Congress in the past.

NMPF Proposal

The Dairy Stabilization Program proposed by the National Milk Producers Federation is about 180 degrees away from the administration's request. It provides for a two price system that would keep the present support price for 90 percent of the milk production and pay for the other ten percent at prices that would make it competitive in world markets.

It would provide year end refunds for producers who lowered production during the year. For those who didn't, the average price would be about a dollar lower. Government purchases would be limited to five billion pounds of milk equivalent compared to last year's 13 billion pounds. The remainder of the surplus milk would be paid for out of the lower prices on the ten percent of the milk from producers who didn't cut back.

The reason for the 90 percent, 10 percent split is because government purchases last year were equal to ten percent of the milk produced. If you can cut production by ten percent all the milk can be sold commercially and reduce government purchases to what is needed for other federal programs.

Another difference in the NMPF plan is to establish a National Dairy Board of milk producers to direct the program including the sale of surplus dairy products to foreign countries. This takes the responsibility from the Secretary of Agriculture and gives more control to the producers particularly in foreign sales.

A separate proposal from the Dairy Stabilization Program but part of the NMPF plan is a contribution by all producers of five cents a hundred to finance a national effort to promote the sale of milk and dairy products.

Other proposals in the legislative hopper will be reviewed in the future to provide a cross section of all the schemes under consideration but producers will need to work at keeping abreast of the changing scene if they want to be part of the decision making.
